The credit is specifically earmarked for the Third Plan.

This credit will be for a period of eight years and will bear an interest of 2½ per cent per annum, the first instalment becoming payable one year after the completion of the last delivery against each project. The credit will be repaid by deliveries of Indian goods such as pig iron, chemical and engineering goods, non-ferrous metals, processed and other ores and semi-finished products. Subsequently through letters exchanged in September 1959 the agreement was renewed for a further period upto January 1960 and the French Government undertook to make available financing facilities upto a further amount of 25 billion francs. The facility is in the nature of suppliers' credits for exports from France to India. The contracts relate mostly to capital equipment for fertilizer, sugar and paper making plants and electrical equipment. Assistance in the matter of equipment and training of Indians abroad is also provided.

Japan: In 1958, the Government of Japan established a line of credit amounting to 18 billion yen (about Rs. 23·8 crores) in favour of the Government of India through the Export-Import Bank of Japan for the import of capital goods from Japan. Upto November 18, 1960 loan agreements of the value of Rs. 11·8 crores have been entered into with the Export-Import Bank of Japan and loan applications to the value of Rs. 5·2 crores are pending with the Export-Import Bank of Japan. The balance has been fully covered by approvals already given for purchase of equipment required for power projects, ports, etc. In addition, the Government of Japan have made available two credits of $10 million (Rs. 4·8 crores) each. The first credit which is in the nature of a ceiling for suppliers' credits has been completely utilised while the terms and conditions of the second are yet to be negotiated.

The Government of Japan has offered Rs. 3·81 crores credit for the mining equipment required for the Orissa Iron Ore Project.

Technical assistance is also provided by the Japanese Government.

Norway: By end March 1960 the value of assistance extended by the Norwegian Government for the fishery development project in Kerala, which is based on a tripartite agreement between the United Nations and the Governments of Norway and India, amounted to Rs. 2·19 crores. This was provided in the form of financial and technical assistance viz. machinery, technicians, scholarships and fellowships.

Rumania: The agreement was signed on 20th Oct. 1958 by which the Government of Rumania has agreed to extend on a long-term basis a credit of Rs. 5·2 crores towards the cost of equipment and technical services required for the establishment of an oil refinery at Gauhati. The interest is 2·5 per cent. Fifteen per cent of the credit will be repaid in six instalments the first to commence 30 days after signing the agreement and the last after the refinery is able to produce the full range of products. The balance of 85 per cent will be repaid in 10 instalments, the first two commencing on 31st Dec. 1961 and the last ending on 31st Dec. 1965.

Of this, Rs. 75 crores were for Rourkela Steel Project and Rs. 19 crores for import of capital goods from West Germany. During 1960, two credits of Rs. 14 crores each were authorised. Excepting Rourkela Credit, which was utilised to the extent of Rs. 59 crores by the end of October 1960, all the other credits have been fully drawn by the end of December 1960.

An agreement granting India a loan of 330 million marks for the Third Five-Year Plan was signed at Bonn on April 29, 1961. The loan agreement was signed by the Indian Ambassador in West Germany.

With the exception of the two wheat loans in 1957-58 and 1958-59 totalling Rs. 15·7 crores the entire assistance from Canada has been in the form of outright grants. For 1960-61 aid worth $25 million has been approved. Out of this, $7 million has been earmarked for supply of wheat, $11·7 million for import of non-ferrous metals and $0·6 million for the Atomic Reactor. A sum of $3·5 million will go to the 3rd stage of Kundah Hydro-Electric Project in Madras. The remaining allocation is under consideration. The aid received so far has been used for a wide variety of projects.

In the first two years, the funds were utilised to purchase wheat and flour as well as construction equipment for the Tungabhadra Project and electrical equipment for the Ramagundam Project in Hyderabad. The allocations for subsequent years were used for the supply of radio equipment, Rail wagons, Diesel Rail Cars, etc. By the end of March 1960, nearly Rs. 11·4 crores were utilised for these projects.

New Zealand: The Government of New Zealand has been providing assistance under the Colombo Plan since 1951-52. EDUCATION

Note: Educational statistics are provided in a series of tables under 'Late Particulars'.

SINCE August 15, 1947 Education at the Centre has been constituted into a separate Ministry of Education. The State Governments are fully autonomous in regard to educational matters except in respect of educational development programme for which they receive grants-in-aid from the Central Government. Such programme has to be approved by the Central Government who have to examine whether it is in accord with the All-India approved educational policy.

The Ministry has offices in London, Washington, Nairobi and Bonn.

It is responsible for the four Central Universities of Aligarh, Banaras, Delhi and Visva Bharati, and some institutions of higher learning. Other departments that come within the purview of the Ministry are: UNESCO, Indian Wheat Loan Education Programme, National Book Trust, Social Welfare, Youth Welfare, Sports and Games, National Discipline, Child Welfare Scholarship Schemes, Propagation and Development of Hindi, National Archives, Indian Historical Records Commission, Institute of Audio Visual Education, Directorate of Extension Programme in Secondary Education, Rural Higher Education, National Institute of Basic Education, National Fundamental Education Centre, Delhi Public Library, the Institute of Library Science, Delhi and the Institute of Workers' Social Education, Indore.

The work of the Ministry is distributed among eight Divisions: Elementary and Basic Education, Secondary Education, Higher Education and UNESCO, Hindi, Social Education and Social Welfare, Physical Education and Recreation, Scholarships, and Administrative.

The Central Advisory Board of Education meets every year usually in January to review the progress of education in the various States. It consists of 44 members with the Union Minister of Education as Chairman. All the State Education Ministers, representatives of Parliament, Inter-University Board and other specialised bodies and educationists are members of the Board.

The Board has 5 Standing Committees to deal with various educational problems. These are: Primary and Pre-Primary Education Committee, Social Education Committee, Secondary Education Committee, Higher Education Committee and General Purposes Committee.

Some of the other educational bodies associated with the Ministry are:

All-India Council for Elementary Education, All-India Council for Technical Education,* National Council for Women's Education and the University Grants Commission.

* This is under a different Ministry.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

For secondary education, there is a division in the Ministry itself, and a subordinate office called Directorate of Extension Programmes for Secondary Education. The latter performs advisory as well as executive functions.

In the States, the Secretary, Department of Education, is the permanent head of the Department and the Director of Education acts as an expert Adviser to the Minister in charge of Education. The Director controls the inspecting staff and the teaching staff of the Government institutions. In some States the functions of Director are discharged by the Educational Officer, in others by the Education Secretary.

The authority of Government in controlling the system of public instruction is in part shared with and in part delegated to Universities, and Boards of Secondary and Intermediate Education as regards secondary education, and to local bodies as regards elementary education in some States.

The control over higher education is exercised through the University Grants Commission.

At the beginning of 1961 there were 46 universities and 14 Boards of Secondary Education.

Scientific Research, Technical Education and Cultural activities come within the purview of the Ministry of Scientific Research and Cultural Affairs.

Institutions under private management are controlled by Government and by local bodies by "recognition" and by the payment of grants-in-aid, with the assistance of the inspecting staffs employed by Government and by local bodies.

The average annual cost per student in primary, secondary and higher education was respectively Rs. 26·1, Rs. 63·3, Rs. 474·1 in 1957-58.

For every 100 rupees of the Central provision for 1960-61, 36 were for technical education, 27 for primary education, 5 for secondary education, 13 for university education, 10 for miscellaneous items and 9 for scholarships and social welfare.

Of the States and Union Territories, one set apart more than 25 per cent of its budget for education for 1960-61, nine between 20 and 25 per cent, 13 between 10 and 20 per cent, while the remaining nine less than 10 per cent.

Bombay earmarked the largest amount for education in 1960-61, followed by Uttar Pradesh, Madras, Andhra Pradesh and Kerala among the States, whereas Delhi, Tripura, Himachal Pradesh and Naga Hills Tuensang Area occupied corresponding positions among the Union Territories.

Bombay had the largest number of educational institutions in 1957-58 (69,655) as against Uttar Pradesh, a more thickly populated State, which had 42,725. On an average, for every 500 people there was one educational institution in Manipur and Tripura, one for every 700 in Assam, one for every 800 in Mysore and Orissa, one for every 900 in Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, West Bengal, Andaman & Nicobar Islands and Himachal Pradesh. Of the remaining units, seven fell in the range 1,000-1,500, two between 1,500-2,000, while in N.E.F.A. one institution catered for about 6,000 people.

Taking all institutions, for every 1,300 persons in 1949-50 there was one educational institution as against 1,000 in 1957-58.

The average expenditure on education per head of population depicts a progressive rise from Rs. 3·2 in 1950-51 to Rs. 5·9 in 1957-58, representing an increase of about 84 per cent.

Taking all types of educational institutions in the country during the year 1957-58, 11 out of every 13 were situated in rural areas. Eight universities and colleges, 70 secondary schools, 90 primary and pre-primary schools and 78 vocational and special schools, out of every 100 in each category, are located in rural areas.

Out of one lakh population of each of the Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and other backward classes, the number of persons educated beyond the matriculation stage was approximately 33, 15 and 53 respectively in 1955-56. (The figure for the total population of the country was 158). In 1959-60 as many as 61,962 such students were in receipt of scholarships as against 655 in 1947-48.

The progressive rise in expenditure on scholarships awarded to scheduled castes, scheduled tribes and other backward classes for post-matriculation studies has gone up about 55 times since the country attained independence.

It is found that 3,655 foreign students were studying at Indian universities and colleges on March 31, 1959. Of these 506 were in receipt of Government of India scholarships.

National Discipline

A great step in student discipline was taken when the National Discipline Scheme was sanctioned as a part of the educational development programme under the Second Five Year Plan. The scheme aims at infusing in the younger generation a sense of discipline and citizenship and inspiring them to moral and spiritual values which are the accepted common cultural heritage of this country.

This Scheme is in operation in the Punjab, Bombay,* West Bengal, Delhi, M.P., Kashmir and U.P. The State Governments of Bombay* and Punjab have their own schemes under the general supervision of the Central Ministry.

The number of schools where the Scheme has been extended is as follows (Jan. 1961):

Delhi and Rajasthan 179; Punjab 312; Madhya Pradesh 10; U.P. 23; Maharashtra 383; Gujarat 96; Jammu and Kashmir 17; West Bengal 70; Andaman & Nicobar Islands (Extended in Nov. 60, figures awaited). Total 1,090.

The total number of children at present under training is broken up as follows:

Delhi and Rajasthan 76,500; Punjab 198,274; Madhya Pradesh 12,239; Uttar Pradesh 12,322; Maharashtra 184,010; Jammu and Kashmir 7,721; West Bengal 35,383; Andaman & Nicobar Islands (Extended in Nov. 1960, figures awaited). Total 585,438.

Unlike other unilateral Discipline Schemes this has a wide scope and training is imparted under its five following phases:

(a) Physical Training: Through a carefully chalked out programme of physical education and games team spirit and leadership are developed among the students. Formal drill is taken to be the foundation of discipline.

(b) Mental Training: A new spirit of enthusiastic patriotism is infused into students, through lectures; the child is assisted in forming his personality and character in keeping with the country's tradition, culture and heritage.

(c) Cultural Development: The feeling of belonging to a composite culture of a nation is awakened and developed in the younger generation.

(d) Organisation: A concentrated, methodical and corporate working of the young minds is encouraged.

(e) Administration: Along with methodical planning an elementary practice in administration and administrative set up is given at an early age.

In this connection it may be mentioned that the University Grants Commission appointed a committee to study the problem of Discipline amongst students. The Ministry of Education also appointed a committee under the Chairmanship of Mr. Shri Prakasa in August 1959. This Committee also recommended that stress should be laid on good manners and the promotion of courtesy and that some form of physical training should be compulsory.

Since October 1960 a Central Training Institute has been started at Sariska near Alwar to train instructors for the National Discipline Scheme. At present 600 trainees are undergoing training there. This is the first of the four training institutions to be started under the Third Five Year Plan to train 11,000 inservice physical training instructors, 11,000 selected young school teachers and 5,000 new candidates.

PRIMARY EDUCATION

Primary Education in India has made considerable progress since the attainment of Independence. Under Article 45 of the Constitution, the State is required to provide free and compulsory education for all children up to the age of 14 years before January 1960. In 1947, only about 30 per cent of the children in the age-group 6-11 were in schools. This percentage rose to 40 at the beginning of the First Plan; to 50 at the end of the First Plan and was expected to rise to 60 at the end of the Second Plan. The Third Plan proposes to raise it still further to 80. The total enrolment in this age-group has increased from about 140 lakhs in 1947-48 to 185 lakhs in 1950-51; to 251 lakhs in 1955-56; and to 340 lakhs in 1960-61. By the end of the Third Five Year Plan, this enrolment is expected to rise by 180 lakhs and reach the figure of 520 lakhs which is almost equal to the entire population of U.K. The increase of enrolment in the age-group 11-14 has also been equally good. In 1946-47, only 12 per cent of children in this age-group were at schools. By 1950–51, this percentage increased to about 18, and it was expected to rise to about 23 by 1960–61. At the end of the Third Five Year Plan, about 100 lakhs of children are expected to be enrolled in classes VI–VIII and the percentage of children in the age-group 11–14 actually enrolled in schools is expected to rise to 30. It may thus be possible for India to fulfil the Constitutional Directive by about 1975. The most important programmes about expansion relate to the raising of the minimum qualifications for primary teachers from a pass at the middle school to a pass at the secondary schools, increasing the percentage of trained teachers and raising the duration of the training course uniformly to two years; improving the remuneration of primary teachers; provision of free supply of books and writing materials to needy children; associating the local communities with the administration of Primary Education; and the provision of midday meals.

During the Third Five Year Plan, intensive efforts will be made, particularly in the backward States, to organise annual enrolment drives and increase the enrolment of children. Special attention will be paid to increasing the enrolment of girls and a number of programmes have been drawn up for this purpose. These include: educating public opinion to overcome traditional prejudices against the education of girls; recruitment of women teachers in increasing numbers; provision of amenities and inducements for girls to be enrolled in the schools, etc.

Basic Education: Under this, instruction will be imparted in a correlated manner through a useful and productive craft. A good deal of progress has already been made in this sector and a fair percentage of schools has already been converted to the basic pattern. During the Third Five Year Plan, a programme of orientating all primary schools to the basic pattern has been undertaken and is expected to be completed by 1963.

SECONDARY EDUCATION

No. of secondary schools in 1958-59: 13,516.

Enrolment in secondary schools: 11 lakhs.

No. of multi-purpose schools end of March 1959: 1,329.

No. of Higher Secondary Schools end of March 1959: 1,484.

Allotment for 1959–60: Rs. 4 crores.

Central assistance for increased pay of teachers 1957–58: Rs. 42·61 lakhs.

* Bilingual.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

The Centre bears half the increased cost of all schemes in the conversion of secondary schools into multi-purpose and higher secondary type and the training of teachers for these schools for which Central assistance is given at 60 per cent.

The accepted pattern of education comprises eight years of elementary (Basic) education; three years of secondary education with diversified courses to give it a vocational bias and make it a terminal point for entry into trade or profession; and three years of university education leading to the first degree. Some of the States have adopted a pattern of seven years of elementary (Basic) education followed by four years of secondary education.

At the secondary stage, a child should in addition to the core curriculum which would include languages, social studies, general science and one compulsory craft—opt for one of the following diversified courses to be provided in reorganized multi-purpose schools:—humanities, science, technical, commerce, agriculture, fine arts or home science.

Except science, humanities and commerce the groups are relatively new to secondary schools. Multi-purpose schools are schools in which these have been introduced.

The scheme for the conversion of high schools into multi-purpose schools was launched in 1954 along with a number of ancillary schemes, such as the training of teachers in new subjects, improvement of teaching facilities particularly in science, of school libraries, the introduction of craft in middle schools, and also other miscellaneous schemes like teachers' seminars, training of career masters, etc.

The formula about language teaching now generally accepted is formed of three items:

1. Mother-tongue; or regional language; or mother-tongue and regional language; or mother-tongue and classical language; or regional language and classical language.
2. English or a modern European language.
3. Hindi for non-Hindi areas; or modern Indian language for Hindi areas.

Examinations

The Ministry of Education formulated a long-term programme of examination reform in 1957. This programme was accepted by the Secretaries and Chairman of various Secondary Education Boards in the country and was implemented from January 1958.

The reform seeks to bring about an improvement not only in the procedures of the final examination at the end of the secondary school, but also to effect a closer integration between the education objectives, learning procedures and methods of evaluation. In order to implement this comprehensive programme, an Examination Unit staffed with trained evaluation officers has been set up in the Directorate of Extension Programmes for Secondary Education. During the past two and half years the unit has completed the first phase of the programme and introduced a fair section of secondary school teachers and educationists to the concept and technique of evaluation through workshops conducted at various levels. Test items have been prepared with the help of teachers and after due try-out, screening and analysis are being supplied to the Boards to serve as illustrative material. The unit has also brought out literature on the new concept for use by secondary school teachers and Boards. Since the success of the reform depends upon the extent to which training colleges participate in it and prepare teachers under training in the new method, the unit has also given considerable attention to associate the training colleges in the programme. Over 60 colleges have participated so far in extensive and intensive work. Steps have also been taken to incorporate the new evaluation concept in the B.Ed. or B.T. syllabus in the course of next two or three years. Since the reform of examination seeks to lay emphasis on the evaluation of a pupil's achievement throughout his school career, the programme has given emphasis to the introduction of internal assessment by the Boards. Some Boards have already begun to give weightage to internal assessment to the extent of about 20 per cent. The Examination Unit has made a study of the problems that have arisen in the course of this implementation and its findings were discussed by the Conference of Secretaries held in January, 1961. Annual conferences of Secretaries of Boards have been held to discuss the periodical progress made in the reform and to plan further work ahead.

As the reform has to reach every secondary school and secondary school teacher, it is essential for its success to establish State Evaluation Units which will implement the further stages of the reform in the States. State Governments have already been addressed in the matter and it is expected that State Evaluation Units will be established in all the States by the end of the Third Plan. The Central Unit conducted a training course during the months of September and October, 1960, for the future personnel of these units. Twenty-seven officers from 13 States and two territories participated.

Educational and Vocational Guidance

The provision of diversified courses has given rise to the need for educational and vocational guidance on the part of teachers and school administrators. Accordingly it was recommended that Bureaus of Educational and Vocational Guidance should be established in every State. Bureaus now exist in Andhra, Assam, Bombay*, Bihar, Kerala, Orissa, U.P. and Madhya Pradesh.

At the Centre there is a Central Bureau of Educational and Vocational Guidance. This was established in Oct. 1954. It has been engaged in the preparation of notes on group guidance in the classroom and the organization of training courses and seminars for counsellors. A post-graduate course in educational and vocational guidance for leader counsellors was held in Delhi from May 1958 to June 1959.

The following States have taken measures to nationalize the production of text books partially or wholly: Andhra, Assam, Bihar, Kashmir, Kerala, M.P., Punjab, Rajasthan, U.P., Orissa, Madras, Mysore and West Bengal. At present all the State Governments except Punjab, Jammu and Kashmir, Mysore and Madras have established their Bureaus of Educational and Vocational Guidance, but the position in the multi-purpose schools is not very satisfactory.

Science

The Secondary Education Commission made two recommendations with regard to the provision of Science: 1. That every secondary school should provide general science as a core subject. 2. That elective science should be provided in as many as possible to encourage students with a special talent in the subject to pursue further study.

A significant aspect of the programme of strengthening Science teaching in secondary schools is the organisation of science clubs where pupils are provided with opportunities for creative scientific activities. 347 such science clubs were established upto the 15th of November 1959. Forty of these clubs are located in Training Colleges where they help to co-ordinate and direct the activities of other member clubs. 115 new clubs have been given financial assistance during the year 1960–61.

The Central Institute of English at Hyderabad for research in English teaching and training started functioning in November 1958. It imparts training to secondary school teachers, lectures in training colleges, and inspectorate officers. It conducts two courses a year each of a duration of four to five months.

For the promotion of Gandhiji's teaching and way of life a selection of suitable books is being made for primary, secondary and university levels.

Higher Secondary Pattern

Below we describe the position in regard to the reorganization of secondary education in the various States.

Nine States and two Union Territories (Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Kerala, Madhya Pradesh, Mysore, Orissa, Punjab, Rajasthan, West Bengal, Delhi and Tripura) have already introduced the revised pattern of Secondary Education. Madras State has introduced it from 1959–60.

With regard to the progress of reorganisation, by the end of the Second Plan about 1,500 schools would have been upgraded in the country. All the States except Gujarat and U.P. would have introduced higher Secondary Pattern. During the Third Plan it is expected that about half the Secondary Schools would be converted to the new pattern.

A new office known as the Directorate of Extension Programmes for Secondary Education has been set up. It has advisory as well as executive powers and it helps to implement the recommendations of the Secondary Education Commission.

(A summary of the difficulties experienced by multi-purpose schools is given in the 1959-60 edition of the Directory).

Midday Feeding: The States of Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Gujarat, Kerala, Mysore, Orissa, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal adopted the scheme of midday feeding of children in schools.

UNESCO Aid for Technical Education: UNESCO has approved assistance to the extent of $ 1,587,800 (Rs. 75,60,952·38) for the period 1961–62 for technical education and scientific research programmes in India.

Assistance to Blind and Dumb Students: The Government proposed to set up a training centre for the adult deaf and dumb during the Third Plan.

During 1960–61, about Rs. 1,27,000 had been distributed by way of scholarships for the blind, deaf and dumb. Over Rs. 2½ lakhs had been spent on the Training Centre for the Adult Blind at Dehra Dun and about Rs. 97,000 on the Model School for Blind Children in the same city.

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION

Position on 31st March 1958:—

No. of Universities: 46 (Jan. 1961).

No. of Gen. Education—Arts & Science Colleges: 817.

No. of Technical and Professional Colleges: 637.

Total no. of students: 8,61,695.

Second Plan allotment: Rs. 19·59 crores (revised).

The policy in regard to university education is largely the one recommended by the Indian University Education Commission which made a report in 1949. (This report is summarized in a previous edition.)

There is now a University Grants Commission. (See also the note below.) Its duty is to take such steps as it thinks fit for the promotion and co-ordination of university education and for the determination and maintenance of the standards of teaching, examination and research.

Universities

There were in all 45 universities in India in 1960. The names of the universities with the names of the Vice-Chancellors are given below.

The Central Universities are four: Aligarh, Banaras, Visva Bharati and Delhi.

It may be mentioned here that for purposes of employment under the Central Government the degrees and diplomas of various institutions besides the universities mentioned below are recognized.

The Government of India has approved an expenditure of Rs. 1·90 crores for the establishment of an Agricultural University at Rudrapur in Uttar Pradesh.

To be set up by the State Government on the model of the Land Grant Colleges of U.S.A., the University will aim at developing rural leadership and competence. The 16,000-acre Tarai State Farm will be attached to it for use as a laboratory for research and experiment.

The University, which will be the first of its kind in the country, will have three constituent colleges—an Agricultural College, a College of Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Sciences and a College of Agricultural Engineering and Technology, besides a Science Block. It will provide comprehensive education on agriculture and allied subjects on the basis of an "integrated system of teaching".

It will have a capacity to train 325 candidates per year—25 per cent of the seats being specifically reserved for students from outside the State.

It may be explained here that the establishment of "rural universities" was originally suggested in 1948 by the University Education Commission, which visualised a "Rural University" as "a ring of small, resident under-graduate colleges with specialised and university facilities in the centre". The joint Indo-American team set up by the Ministry of Food and Agriculture in 1954 also recommended the establishment of such universities and made concrete proposals.

The "Rural University" as recommended by the team and Dean H. W. Hannah of the University of Illinois, who subsequently prepared a blue-print, closely resembles as already explained, the Land Grant Colleges in the U.S.A. which have contributed significantly to the development of agriculture in America.

The foundation stone of the first Gandhi Bhawan in an Indian university was laid by the Prime Minister at Delhi University, on Dec. 17, 1959.

Under a programme jointly sponsored by the Gandhi Smarak Nidhi and University Grants Commission, Gandhi Bhawans are to be set up in universities to promote and facilitate the study of Gandhiji's ideals and his way of life. Initially, construction of Gandhi Bhawans is to be undertaken in seven universities including Delhi, Kerala, Allahabad, Patna, Punjab, Nagpur and Rajasthan.

The total cost of the building at Delhi University, which has been designed by Stein, Chatterjee and Polk, architects, is estimated at Rs. 1,60,000 which will be shared between the Gandhi Smarak Nidhi and University Grants Commission.

The main object in establishing these Bhawans is to provide within the university campus a suitable place to keep Gandhian literature; to hold study classes and discussions on the life, ideals and work of Mahatma Gandhi; to arrange for lectures on these topics and to encourage students to undertake such items of constructive work as can be done inside or close to the campus, which will reflect the ideas and methods of work indicated by Mahatma Gandhi.

The University Grants Commission has selected 39 colleges from 17 universities, which fulfil the prescribed conditions, for introducing the scheme of hobby workshops.

The universities are: Agra, Andhra, Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi, Gauhati, Gorakhpur, Gujarat, Kerala, Madras, Mysore, Nagpur, Punjab, Poona, Rajasthan, Saugar and S. V. Vidyapeeth.

The Commission has requested the universities to obtain necessary plans and estimates from the colleges and details of expenditure required in connection with the implementation of the scheme of hobby workshops.

A scheme of compulsory national service for students, prepared by the Ministry of Education, was placed before the Education Ministers' Conference held in Delhi in August 1959 for consideration.

The Education Ministers' Conference suggested among other things, the appointment of a committee to work out the details of the proposed pilot projects. A committee under the chairmanship of Dr. C. D. Deshmukh was set up in September and its report was published in Feb. 1960. It has recommended that all students passing out of higher secondary schools or pre-university classes should be required to do nine to twelve months of compulsory national service.

The University Grants Commission awarded 73 fellowships for the year 1959-60. Of these 26 were post-Doctoral (Junior) Fellowships of Rs. 300 p.m. each and 17 were senior Research Fellowships of Rs. 500 p.m. each and 30 Research fellowships of the value of Rs. 400 p.m. each for Engineering and Technological Subjects.

Three-Year Course

The following 23 Universities have introduced the three-year degree course:

Delhi, Jadavpur, Sagar, Madras, Baroda, Karnatak, Kerala, Osmania, Visva Bharati, Mysore, Vallabhbhai Vidyapeeth. Nagpur, Andhra, Aligarh, Annamalai, Shri Venkateswara, Vikram, Poona, Marathwada, S.N.D.T Women's, Utkal, Banaras and Rajasthan.

The following seven universities will introduce the course as from the year shown against each:

Bihar, Jabalpur, Patna and Calcutta Women's as from 1960-61; Banaras and Punjab as from 1961-62; and Gauhati from 1962-63.

The Universities of Gujarat and Kashmir have agreed in principle to introduce the course. The Bombay University propose to introduce a three-year honours course after the Inter, while retaining the two-year pass course after the Inter. The university has been allowed to experiment along a different line of reorganization. The Government of U.P. propose to introduce the three-year course in the Universities of Agra, Allahabad, Gorakhpur and Lucknow without disturbing the existing pattern of secondary education, i.e. two years of high school followed by two years of Inter, and the proposal has been accepted.

The cost of implementing the scheme during the Second Plan is estimated at Rs. 6·55 crores. The Central Government and the University Grants Commission will meet half of the expenditure involved. The other half will be met by the State Governments and or private managements. The University Grants Commission will be concerned with non-Government Colleges.

The expenditure incurred in 1959-60 and the allotments for 1960-61 and 1961-62 are as follows:

	Rs.
1959-60 (Actuals)
Central Govt. for U.G.C.	57,32,000
U.G.C. for Non-Govt. Colleges ..	18,11,401
1960-61 (Revised)
U.G.C. for Non-Govt. Colleges ..	25,00,000
1961-62 (Budget)
Central Govt. for U.G.C.	1,59,90,250
U.G.C. for Non-Govt. Colleges ..	1,59,90,250

Pay Scales :—The U. G. C. has prepared a scheme for raising the pay scales of teachers by which the U. G. C. will bear 50% of the increased expenditure in the case of men's colleges and 75% in the case of women's colleges.

The following typical scales were fixed: Principals Rs. 600–40–800, Heads of Departments Rs. 400–25–700, Senior Lecturers Rs. 300–25-600. Lecturers Rs. 150–10–200.

Three hundred and eighty-six colleges of the Universities of Andhra, Bombay, Calcutta, Karnatak, Kerala, Madras, Mysore, Nagpur, Osmania, Punjab, Poona, Sagar, and S.N.D.T. Women's, Agra, Gauhati, Gorakhpur, Gujarat, Jabalpur, Marathwada, Rajasthan, S. V. B. Vidyapeeth, Vikram, Utkal and Sri Venkateswara have been brought within the purview of the revised scales (Jan. 1960).

Another problem is over-crowding at universities. It is hoped that the acceptance of the three year-course would help to regulate the numbers to some extent. It is a condition of financial assistance that colleges should agree to a phased reduction. The maximum strength suggested is 800 to 1,000 for a college unless it was built for a larger number and had adequate facilities for that number.

Medium of Instruction : —

The University Grants Commission has suggested that the change from English to an Indian language should not be hastened and that it should be preceded by adequate preparatory measures. The Commission has further appointed a working group of educationists representing all the Indian languages to study further the question of medium of instruction in the universities and to draw up a plan of action for the change-over from English to an Indian language with primary regard to the effectiveness of teaching and learning and consistent with the maintenance of high standards in English which should continue as a common second language even after the change is made.

U.G.C. REPORT FOR 1959-60

The annual Report for the period April 1959 to March, 1960 of the University Grants Commission outlines several measures taken to improve the standards of teaching and research in universities as well as the scales of pay of college and university teachers.

Liberal grants were also being made for construction of laboratories, libraries, hostels and other academic buildings.

During 1959-60, a sum of over Rs. 11 lakhs was advanced to 15 State universities to pay about 80 per cent of the increased expenditure on this account. In addition, the U.G.C. met fully the cost of such revision of pay in regard to the four Central universities.

About Rs. 54 lakhs were paid by the Commission in 1959-60 for improvement of the salaries of teachers in men's and women's colleges in the country.

The revision of the salary scales of teachers in engineering and technological institutions had also been finalised.

In the case of Women's Education the Commission was helping a number of universities in the development of certain branches of social sciences which were meant wholly or mainly for women.

The development schemes in humanities and social sciences approved during the year were estimated to cost about Rs. 90 lakhs while in sciences and technology the schemes were estimated at Rs. 76 lakhs. Assistance was given to the universities for the establishment and development of 46 new post-graduate departments in humanities and social sciences and 18 new post-graduate departments in science and technology.

In 1959-60, proposals from 15 universities for construction of hostels and staff quarters were approved at a total cost of about Rs. 67 lakhs, of which the Commission's share was Rs. 47 lakhs.

The scheme of hobby workshops is now under implementation in 11 universities. In April, 1959, the benefit of the scheme was extended to 100 affiliated and constituent colleges. Later, proposals from 78 colleges of 21 universities were accepted in principle.

The U.G.C. paid about Rs. 98,000 to 14 universities and Rs. 1,30,000 to 116 affiliated colleges during 1959-60 for their Students' Aid Funds.

RURAL HIGHER EDUCATION

Government of India in the Ministry of Education evolved in 1955, a national pattern of Education for the Rural people which is responsive to rural needs, and will develop leadership from amongst the rural people for the community development. The institutions of higher learning present a programme excellent in academic character, as well as centre for community development and Planning.

Eleven institutes of outstanding experience in rural education were selected under the scheme for development into Rural Institutes. These are Gandhigram Rural Institute; Ramakrishna Mission Vidyalaya Rural Intitute, Coimbatore; Lok Bharati Rural Institute, Sanosara; Rural Institute, Amravati; Mouni Vidyapeeth Rural Institute, Gargoti; Vidya Bhavan Rural Institute, Udaipur; Balwant Vidyapeeth Rural Institute, Bichpuri, Agra; Rural Institute, Jamia Millia, New Delhi; Institute of Rural Higher Education, Sriniketan, West Bengal; Rural Institute of Higher Studies, Birouli, Bihar; Kasturba Rural Institute, Rajpura, Punjab. The Institutions are running a 3 year Diploma course in Rural Service, a 3 year course in civil and Rural Engineering and a two year certificate course in Agricultural Science. A Sanitary Inspector's course of one year duration was started in Vidya Bhavan Rural Institute, Udaipur, in October, 1960, and is proposed to be started in Gandhigram Rural Institute from July, 1961.

The National Council for Rural Higher Education which was set up by Government of India in 1956 to advise the Ministry of Education on all matters relating to this educational programme, lays down curriculum and programme of studies, extension and research and conducts public examinations to award diplomas and certificates to the successful students of the Rural Institutes. The duration of the Diploma course in rural services is 3 years after Higher Secondary & four years after Matriculation. In the case of Rural and Civil Engineering, it is three years after matriculation and the agricultural courses 2 years after matriculation. There is provision of Preparatory course to which Matriculates are admitted who after passing the preparatory examination are promoted to Diploma course in Rural Services.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

The Three year Diploma in Rural Services offered by the National Council has been recognized as equivalent to the 1st degree of a recognized University by the Government of India, the State Governments of Bihar, M.P., Kerala, Madras, Andhra Pradesh, Punjab, Rajasthan, U.P., West Bengal and Maharashtra. The Tata Institute of Science, Bombay has recognised the Diploma for purpose of admission to its courses of study. The question of its recognition by the universities is under the consideration of the Inter-University Board.

The Government of India on the recommendation of the Board of Assessment for Technical and Professional qualifications of All India Council for Technical Education have recognised Diploma in Civil and Rural Engineering for purposes of employment to subordinate posts and services.

The Institutes are assisted financially to the extent of 75 per cent of the non-recurring and 50 per cent of the recurring expenditure by the Central Government except the ones at Sriniketan and Jamia Nagar which receive a full grant.

The training is so fashioned as to make the students into effective leaders of the community to which they belong.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

The All-India Council for Technical Education was set up by the Government of India in November 1945 to advise them on all matters relating to the co-ordination and development of technical education in the country after the high school stage. Its personnel has been drawn from Government of India Departments, State Governments, Parliament, industry and commerce, professional and educational bodies.

The Council has appointed four Regional Committees—one each for the eastern, western, southern and northern regions of the country to survey the facilities of their region, determine regional needs, foster liaison between industry and technical institutions, assist and advise on co-ordinated development.

In 1947 India produced only 930 graduates in engineering and 320 graduates in technology and about 1,440 diploma holders. In 1957 the total output of graduates in this field was over 4,223 and of diploma holders 5,084.

When the relevant schemes under the Second Plan are implemented technical institutions will be in a position to admit every year about 13,000 students for degree courses and 25,000 students for diploma courses.

Every State has at least one engineering college and one polytechnic.

The financial provision for technical education in the First Plan was Rs. 23 crores, in the Second Plan it was Rs. 61·17 crores inclusive of about Rs. 5 crores provided for in the Programmes of Technical Education of University Grants Commission.

Below we show the progress made in this field—the number of institutions in existence; the intake of students and the out-turn of students:

		1951	1956	1957	1960-61 (estimate)
Institutions	Degree	53	74	74	90
	Diploma	89	111	129	187
Intake	Degree	4,788	6,632	9,778	13,000
	Diploma	6,216	10,242	16,150	25,000
Out-turn	Degree	2,693	4,293	4,290	—
	Diploma	2,626	4,075	5,034	—

In March 1958, there were 83 colleges offering first degree courses in engineering and technology and 157 polytechnics offering diploma courses with an annual admission capacity of 11,086 and 19,932 students respectively.

The actual admissions in 1959 were 11,263 for degree and 20,330 for diploma courses.

About 5,000 persons are being trained abroad of whom 40 per cent are engineers. About one-third of these return every year.

As for the needs, these are estimated at 635,000 technicians for the Second Plan period and about a million for the Third.

Since it takes at least four to five years to train a competent engineer and still longer to establish a fully developed technological institution some shortage during the Second Five-Year Plan is unavoidable.

Mining engineers and petroleum technologists are and will for some years continue to be in short supply. There is also a general shortage at the top levels of design and research engineers, research scientists, teachers and medical specialists.

At the other end, there is also a short supply of machine operators, surveyors, draftsman-engineers and geological drillers.

With a view to meeting the shortage of technical teachers it was decided to create a pool of trained teachers for the various technical institutions. For this purpose junior and senior teaching fellowships will be instituted, and the selected persons will be apprentices to senior professors to give them teaching experience. On the completion of the training they will be posted to technical institutions.

The training period lasts for two to three years.

The Senior Fellowships are of the value of Rs. 350–25–400 and are awarded to the first class degree-holders in technological subjects. The Junior Fellowships are of the value of Rs. 200–20–400.

The Technical Teachers Training Programme was initiated in 1959 and Senior Fellowships were awarded. At present there are 106 Fellows undergoing training in 5 selected institutions in the country and a few more Fellows are expected to join. The programme for junior Fellowship will start later.

Foreign Help

Foreign assistance is in the form of scientific and workshop equipment, foreign experts as professors at Indian institutions, training facilities for Indians abroad.

T. C. M. (U.S.A.)	46·14	47	274*
Colombo Plan (U.K. & Australia)	8·75	11	23
UNESCO AND UNTAA	79·52	43	39
Total	134·41	101	336

* Includes 208 trainees sent under Technical Teachers' training Scheme.

Some Institutions

(for a list see the end of this article)

The establishment of the Indian Institutes of Technology at Kharagpur, Bombay and Madras and the development of the Indian Institute of Science at Bangalore as a centre of advance technology mark a new trend in the field of technological education in this country.

The Institute in Bombay has secured technical assistance from the U.S.S.R. under the UNESCO Expanded Technical Assistance Programme. Fifteen Soviet experts have already arrived. Equipment worth Rs. 70 lakhs has also been received. More equipment is expected in the near future. 14 teachers are at present receiving training in the U.S.S.R. in specified fields in higher technology.

The Indian Institute of Technology, Madras, the third of the Higher Technological Institutes was started in July, 1959. 120 students were admitted in the first year of the five year integrated course.

Under the agreement with the West German Government 15 teachers of the Institute are undergoing training in German Higher Technological Institutions. Equipment and books worth Rs. 23 lakhs have so far been received from Germany.

Six German experts are working at the Institute at present.

The Institute has prepared a Master Plan costing Rs. 707·69 lakhs which is expected to be implemented during the Third Five Year Plan Period.

The Institute was expected to shift to its new premises at Guindy by Jan. 1961.

The fourth Higher Technological Institute was started in Aug. 1960, in Kanpur. 99 Students were admitted in the first year of the five year integrated course. These students will be awarded degree in Civil, Mechanical, Electrical, Chemical, Metallurgical and Engineering.

The Institute is being established with the assistance of the U.S.A.

For a fuller note on the Indian Institute of Science at Bangalore see under Bangalore District, Mysore State.

Other Courses

The importance of training in business management and industrial administration are well recognized, and a comprehensive scheme on an all-India basis prepared.

Courses in Management Studies are now offered at the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur; the Delhi School of Economics, Delhi; the Department of Economics, Madras University, Madras; the School of Economics and Sociology, Bombay University, Bombay; the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore; and the Indian Institute of Social Welfare and Business Management, Calcutta.

An Administrative Staff College in India on the lines of the Administrative Staff College, Henley-on-Thames, England has been established at Hyderabad. The College is a joint enterprise of the Central Government, private industry and commerce. It is an autonomous organisation, and functions as a registered Society under the Societies Registration Act. The administration and management of the affairs of the College is entrusted to a Court of Governors.

The first course was started in Dec. 1957. The maximum intake is 60 students.

Four regional schools of printing at Madras, Bombay, Calcutta and Allahabad have started functioning.

Each school is a joint enterprise of the Central and State Governments and is designed to train 200 candidates every year.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

A School of Town and Country Planning has been set up by the Central Government as a joint enterprise with the Institute of Town Planners (India) to provide facilities for training in Town and Country Planning. At present the School provides training in two courses a diploma course of two years' duration and a housing course of one year's duration.

The Second Five Year Plan for Technical Education envisaged a great expansion at all levels.

The Plan provides for the establishment of three Higher Technological Institutions in western, northern and southern regions. These have already started functioning at Bombay, Kanpur and Madras. The Plan also provides for the establishment of 50 new Polytechnics eight new Engineering Colleges and about 45 junior Technical Schools under State Plans of Technical Education.

The Third Five Year Plan provides for the establishment of 27 technical institutions for girls.

During the Third Plan it is proposed to start Evening Colleges and Institute correspondence courses for the convenience of those who cannot attend day classes, or keep regular terms.

SECOND PLAN

The Second Five Year Plan for technical education envisaged a great expansion at all levels.

About 40,000 craftsmen were to be trained by the end of the Plan. For this purpose over 20,000 additional seats were to be established at various institutions. Construction of building was to be completed by 1959-60. Equipment worth Rs. 75 lakhs had been offered by the U.S.A.

The entire effort in this direction is estimated to cost about Rs. 80 crores.

Training involves training of teachers as well as technicians.

An institute for training industrial instructors was to be established by the Government of India in collaboration with the International Labour Organization. The institute which will be located in Calcutta will start functioning by 1961 and will give instruction in 14 trade courses. It will be equipped to train 800 persons. The trainees at the institute would be drawn from highly qualified and skilled industrial workers who, after training, might impart their additional knowledge to fellow workers. The foreign experts to be employed by the institute at its inception, would be replaced by Indians at a later stage.

The Plan provided for the establishment of the four Higher Technological Institutions in western, central, northern and southern regions. The Plan also provides for the establishment of 46 new polytechnics under State schemes and 8 engineering colleges and about 61 junior technical schools. Further, there was a provision for starting refresher and summer courses for teachers, schemes for training of technical personnel.

Of the eight engineering colleges one each was to be established in Andhra, Kerala, Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh, Orissa and Punjab and two in Assam.

Of the 50 polytechnics, 8 were to be established in Mysore, 5 in Andhra, 2 in Kerala, 1 in Pondicherry, 2 in Maharashtra, 3 in Gujarat, 5 in Madhya Pradesh, 2 in the Punjab, 3 in Rajasthan, 7 in Uttar Pradesh, 2 in Jammu and Kashmir, 4 in West Bengal, 2 in Bihar, 1 in Orissa, 1 in Tripura, 1 in Assam and 1 in Himachal Pradesh.

Of the Junior Technical Schools provided in the Plan, 38 have already been established 3 in Punjab, 5 in Uttar Pradesh, 11 in West Bengal, 5 in Madhya Pradesh, 2 in Andhra, 3 in Madras and 9 in Kerala. The remaining 7, 2 in Bihar, 2 in Madhya Pradesh, 1 in Pondicherry, 1 in Manipur and 1 in Andhra are yet to be set up. Twenty-six were proposed to be started by the various States by the end of 1960-61, 3 in Rajasthan, 3 in Madras, 9 in Kerala, 2 in Bihar, 2 in Orissa, 3 in West Bengal, 3 in Madhya Pradesh, and one in Manipur.

Besides the above, there was also a provision for the establishment of 9 Engineering Colleges and 26 polytechnics under the Central Schemes of Technical Education. Of the 9 Engineering Colleges, one has been established at Mangalore (Mysore), 1 at Warangal (Andhra Pradesh), 1 at Nagpur (Maharashtra), 1 at Bhopal (Madhya Pradesh), 1 at Durgapur (West Bengal), 1 at Jamshedpur (Bihar), 1 at Allahabad (U.P.), 1 at Srinagar (Jammu and Kashmir) and 1 at Delhi.

Of the 26 polytechnics under the Central Schemes, 2 were to be established in Bihar, 3 in West Bengal, 1 in Orissa, 3 in Maharashtra, 2 in Madhya Pradesh, 2 in Madras, 2 in Mysore, 2 in Andhra Pradesh, 1 in Kerala, 3 in Uttar Pradesh, 3 in the Punjab and 2 in Rajasthan, 15 polytechnics have already started functioning.

Of the nine engineering colleges mentioned the one at Delhi was in the process of being set up (Jan. 1960). The College of Engineering and Technology as it is called will take over degree courses of the Delhi University at present available in the Delhi Polytechnic. It was expected to start functioning from July, 1960. The College when in full swing will have an annual admission capacity of 250 students in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Chemical Engineering, and Textile Technology. The British Government and the Federation of British Industries have agreed to assist in the establishment of this College to the extent of providing equipment worth £ 2,50,000 and the services of ten professors and two supervisors for a period of 5 years.

A special note on the position of mining and metallurgy might be added. Because shortage of technicians here was a stumbling-block.

Among the many steps taken by the Government of India to meet the shortage of mining personnel was the increase in the annual intake of students at the Indian School of Mines and Applied Geology, Dhanbad, from 45 to 90 and that at the Benaras Hindu University from 20 to 40.

Six more institutions have started mining courses with an annual in-take of 25 each.

Four schools have also been started by the National Coal Development Corporation for training as Surveyors, Overmen, Surpervisors and Shortfirers etc.

Ten institutions have been set up by the respective State Governments with Central assistance for conducting National Certificate Course in mining and mine surveying.

Other steps taken by the Government of India included relaxation in the Coal Mines Regulations for a limited period to permit graduates in Mining Engineering to act as understudy to First Class Managers.

The feasibility of holding 2 examinations in a year, as against one at present, for Mine Managers was also being examined.

Training abroad of mining graduates was contemplated. State Governments have been asked to reorganize evening classes.

A Technological Institute was to be established with assistance from Czechoslovakia for training a large number of Indian technicians in designing light, medium and heavy machine tools. The place of location was yet to be decided.

Assistance from Czechoslovakia for this project would be about Rs. 60 lakhs worth of equipment, machinery and services.

The establishment of all these institutions would result in an intake of about 13,000 into degree courses and 25,000 in diploma courses by the year 1960-61.

An open door policy has also now been adopted for the establishment of technical institutions by private agencies. This has helped in the development of technical education in the country.

For the establishment of these institutions and for the development of the existing institutions the State and the Central Plans provided for a total outlay of Rs. 58 crores.

SCHOLARSHIPS

The Practical Training Stipend Scheme was formulated to give post-institutional practical training in industrial establishments to selected students qualifying from engineering and technological institutions. There are two categories of stipends, namely senior stipends of the value of Rs. 150 per month and junior stipends of the value of Rs. 100 per month which are awarded to graduates and diploma-holders in engineering and technology respectively. The stipends are instituted in selected Government establishments and industrial concerns who offer training under proper supervision and assume responsibility for it.

More than 2,000 training places were secured during 1959-60 all over India. Applications for practical training are received in the Regional Offices at Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and Kanpur through the heads of the institutions and selection of candidates for training is also done by these offices.

With a view to assisting meritorious students who are in indigent circumstances and are unable to prosecute technical studies, Government have formulated a scheme for the award of merit-cum-means scholarships for the benefit of deserving students prosecuting technical studies for degree and diploma in engineering and technology. The scheme has been implemented with effect from the academic session 1959-60. Under the scheme 583 scholarships each of the value of Rs. 75 were to be awarded to the first year students pursuing degree courses and 347 the first year students pursuing diploma courses. These scholarships will be allocated to engineering and techonological institutions in the country in proportion to the sanctioned intake or actual admissions during 1959-60. In addition 109 scholarships each of the value of Rs. 75 p.m. were proposed to be awarded to students studying in higher classes of the degree courses during 1959-60. These scholarships will be continued during 1960-61 subject to the awardee's fulfilling the conditions for the continuation and additional 930 scholarships (583 for degree courses and 347 for diploma courses will be instituted during 1960-61.

At the Higher Technological Institutes of the Central Government at Kharagpur, Bombay, and Madras, scholarships are awarded at the rate of Rs. 75 p.m. to about 25 per cent of the students in the undergraduate courses. A similar provision will also be made in the Northern Higher Technological Institute that will be established at Kanpur.

The Central Government are awarding scholarships of an adequate value of Rs. 150 p.m. to all students doing post-graduate courses in engineering and technology at all centres subject to a maximum number of 10 in each course. The Central Government have also instituted 800 research scholarships for science, engineering and technology at various universities and institutions in the country.

A National Council for Training in Vocational Trades constituted by the Government of India in June, 1957, advises Government regarding framing of policy for training of craftsmen and coordination of vocational training of national importance throughout the country. It prescribes standards in respect of syllabuses, equipment, duration of courses and methods of training. The Council also awards National Trades Certificates in engineering, building, textile, leather trades and so on.

The National Council is a central body, tripartite in character with representatives from industry, labour and government as members. Special emphasis is laid on the affiliation of private training centres.

Trades tests on an all-India basis are being organised. Papers are set and moderated by experts from industry. In 1958-59, 11,088 trainees passed from the various institutions in the country.

FOREIGN-TRAINED TECHNICIANS

In 1960, it was estimated that there were 4,408 Indian students undergoing some sort of scientific or technical training abroad.

An investigation of this whole question was made by the National Register section of the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research. Some of the results of this investigation are given below. A national register of these persons is now maintained.

The broad distribution of these overseas scholars and trainees by country and category is shown below:

SOCIAL EDUCATION

Five point programme: literacy, education in health and hygiene, training for trade, profession or calling, citizenship, and healthy recreation.

It is also directed to arouse interest in the development plans in Community Project areas and to provide leadership.

The programme of Social Education is put through literacy classes, Community Centres, Youth Clubs, including Gram Raksha Dal, Farmers' Clubs and Mahila Samities and libraries which are an essential agency of mass education.

The number of State, Central and District Libraries has steadily increased. At present (Dec. 1959) there are 13 State Central and 180 District Libraries, in the country.

Radio listening and Discussion Groups, demonstrations and excursions have been effectively used. Besides radio, visual aids and printed literature have served as means of imparting education to the masses.

To have suitably trained personnel for the implementation of Social Education programmes, the Government of India have established 25 Janata Colleges for the training of village leaders. The Ministry of Community Development conducts a number of Social Education Organisers Training Centres under their scheme. A National Fundamental Education Centre has been set up to train District Social Education Organizers. The Centre, also conducts research and evaluation of social education programmes. So far 100 District Social Education Organisers have been appointed of whom 81 have been trained at the Centre (Dec. 1960).

To encourage production of suitable literature for neo-literates and social education workers, the Ministry has organized a number of schemes, including the award of prizes to authors, and the bulk purchase of good books.

The Ministry has its own programme of publishing literature for social education workers and neo-literates. Of ten volumes of Hindi Vishwa Bharati planned for publication, six volumes have already been brought out.

A pilot Workers' Institute is proposed to be set up at Indore.

With a view to properly organising social education in urban areas, Co-ordinating Councils are proposed to be set up in a few cities. In addition, the Third Five Year Plan provides for the development of the Delhi Public Library as a project to demonstrate the value of a Public literary system.

VIJNAN MANDIRS

The Vijnan Mandir scheme was launched in 1953 by the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, Ministry of Scientific Research to make the rural people science conscious and to make them familiar with the scientific principles involved in the day-to-day problems arising in agriculture and village sanitation.

Upto the end of 1959, 38 Vijnan Mandirs were set up.

A Vijnan Mandir consists of a scientific wing, a library and a museum.

The scientific wing will have a laboratory for analysis of soil, water and food and will give demonstrations about common insects and pests, health and hygiene, common diseases and general scientific principles. There are period lectures by teachers of science. A science club is generally attached to the science wing for purposes of discussion and information. There will in addition be working models of a steam engine, an aeroplane, telephone and so on, which are probably made in the Mandir itself.

The library will have books on science in simple language.

The Museum will have specimens regarding the structure of the human body, the local flora, fauna, minerals, shells, corals, archæological relics and so on. There will also be improved models of utensils, ploughs, domestic implements.

The Vijnan Mandir will act as liaison between the villagers and the National Laboratories.

To foster interest competitions will be organized—such as essay writing and, modelling. Prizes will be given.

The Vijnan Mandirs are housed in buildings provided by the State Government. Each Vijnan Mandir is in the charge of a Vijnan Mandir officer. He is a member of the C.D. or N.E.S. Block team and his work is supervised by the Director of Public Instruction and by Regional Officers or Technical Assistants attached to a nearby National Laboratory. The work will be planned in accordance with instructions from the Ministry of Scientific Research and Cultural Affairs.

In Sept. 1959 the Government of India constituted a four-member Committee under the Chairmanship of Mr. Balwantray Mehta, M.P. to assess the work of Vijnan Mandirs and to make recommendations for their improvement. At the end of 1960, 38 Vijnan Mandirs were functioning. Establishment of five more Vijnan Mandirs has been sanctioned.

FREE AND COMPULSORY EDUCATION

At the end of the First Five Year Plan the position was as follows:—

The percentage of children in classes I to VIII to the population of children in the age-group 6-14 attending school was 41 per cent and was expected to rise to 50 at the end of the Second Plan. During the Third Plan, it will be increased still further to 75 and the goal of universal education may be reached by 1975.

Compulsory education for the age-group 6–11 (approximately) was introduced in selected areas of the various states, comprising 1,093 towns and 39,276 villages.

There were 46,218 schools in these areas, with an enrolment of 60,67,412 students.

The aim is now to achieve free and compulsory education by the end of the Third Plan, that is, by 1965 for the 6–11 age-group.

A new law for compulsory education was recently passed by Parliament for the Delhi Union Territory—The Delhi Primary Education Act, 1960. On the basis of this law, legislation in other States and Union Territories is being modernised.

Education in classes VI-VIII also is free in many parts; and where it is not free, steps are being taken to make it free in the near future.

Very high priority is being given to this programme in the Third Five Year Plan and a sum of about Rs. 200 crores (out of a total outlay of Rs. 500 crores allocated to education as a whole) is proposed to be spent on it.

The position about free education is as follows:

Andhra: Education is generally free upto class III.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

Mysore : In the areas of the former Mysore State, education upto the age of 14 is free. In Bombay-Karnatak, Hyderabad-Karnatak and Madras-Karnatak areas primary education is free in the schools controlled by the Government and the local bodies. The aided schools in these areas, however, charge fees.

Orissa : Education is free for all children upto the age of 11.

WOMEN'S EDUCATION

Women's education in pre-independence India was confined largely to non-governmental efforts in urban areas. According to the census of 1941 the percentage of literacy for women was as low as 6·0 as against 22·6 for men.

The proportion of boys to girls then in educational institutions was 100 to 30 and the disparity was the widest in the colleges of professional and special education where only 7 girls were under instruction for 100 boys enrolled.

The total number of girls under instruction at the end of March 1947, was 42,97,785. Of these, 34,75,165 girls were at the primary, 6,02,280 at the secondary and 23,207 at the collegiate stage and 56,090 were in special schools which opened out varied careers for women and 1,41,043 in unorganised institutions.

Out of the total number of 2,18,165 educational institutions at the time, 28,196 were specially meant for girls.

The period after 1947 has been marked by a planned approach to the problem of women's education.

In 1949-50 the number of universities and research institutes for girls was only one with an enrolment of 2,063; in 1956-57 their number increased to 2 and 6,155 respectively.

In 1949-50 there were 66 colleges of General Education with an enrolment of 36,313 girls; their number increased to 113 and 78,780 respectively in 1956-57.

In 1949-50 there were 17 colleges of professional and technical education with an enrolment of 3,606 girls; in 1956-57 their number increased to 34 and 9,954 respectively.

In 1949-50 there were 438 schools of vocational and technical education with an enrolment of 35,714 girls; in 1956-57 their number rose to 710 and 56,376 respectively.

During the same period the number of women teachers rose from 1,16,602 to 2,02,972. Out of this increased number of women teachers, 1,21,265 were in primary schools, 31,080 in middle schools, 39,133 in secondary schools, 4,608 in universities and colleges and the remaining in other types of schools.

There is a constantly widening disparity between the rates of progress of boys' and girls' education. Even the targets in the first two Plans tended to increase this disparity. The First Plan sought to raise the number of pupils between 6 and 11 from 42 per cent in 1950-51 to 51 per cent in 1955-56, the percentage rise of boys was 10 and of girls 8 per cent. At the end of the Second Plan the target was to raise the enrolment of boys by 17 per cent and of girls by 7 per cent only.

Similarly, in the age group 11 to 14 at the end of the First plan the enrolment of boys went up by 8 per cent and of girls by only 3 per cent. At the end of the Second Five Year Plan, the enrolment of boys would thus go up by 6 per cent and of girls by only 2 per cent.

The National Committee on Women's Education appointed in May 1958 under the chairmanship of Mrs. Durgabai Deshmukh submitted a report on Jan. 5, 1959.

Because of the extreme backwardness of women's education the Committee felt the need for adopting special measures. They made 185 recommendations.

Among them were :—The education of women should be regarded as a special and major problem. The Centre should guide the States more actively in setting the targets and formulating schemes; it should assist them financially on a non-matching basis and should effectively watch the progress of implementation. For all this there should be a Rs. 100 crore special programme for the Third Plan covering pre-primary, primary, middle, secondary and collegiate education of girls and education of adult women. Measures to be taken should include attendance scholarships, special amenities in co-educational schools, quarters for women teachers, supply of free educational equipment and clothes, scholarships to poor and deserving girls, provision for hostels, and the provision of special educational facilities for adult women, attractive diversified courses suited to girls and incentives for women to work as teachers in rural areas.

A National Council at the Centre and a State Council in every State should be set up to advise the Government on suitable targets, programmes, policies and priorities for measures taking into account the regional needs. This programme should be implemented under the supervision of a joint educational adviser at the Centre and a Woman Joint Director in the State. To widen the scope of voluntary effort in the field of women's education all discrimination between Government and non-Govt. agencies taking up approved schemes should be done away with.

There is a National Council for Women's Education.

3rd Plan allotment for girls' education: Rs. 175 crores (Provisional). A new proposal is to set up a national institute for higher training of women in organization, administration and management.

Second Plan

During the Second Plan, the intention was to expand the educational facilities at the elementary stage, reorganise the pattern of secondary education and improve the quality of education at the collegiate level.

The major physical targets aimed at under the Second Five-Year Plan were :—

For the introduction of Universal, Free and Compulsory Education for the age group 6-11 throughout the country by the end of the Third Plan, preparatory schemes such as provision of teachers' training facilities, strengthening of administrative staff, etc. have been included in the Second Plan.

NATIONAL SCHOLARSHIP SCHEME DURING THIRD PLAN

A Comprehensive National Scholarship Scheme will be introduced in the Third Five-Year Plan to give adequate financial assistance to students of merit for higher education.

The National Scholarship Scheme will be primarily meant for students with merit whose parents cannot afford higher education for them.

The main selection of students for the scholarships under this scheme would be made on the conclusion of the matriculation stage. The recipients of these scholarships would be treated as "national scholars." The scheme also envisages the giving of scholarships to students with promising merit in the pre-matriculation stage.

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH

It was proposed to set up an autonomous organisation called the National Council of Educational Research and Training to provide "co-ordinated direction" to research and training in education.

A firm decision had been taken by the Government to provide free, compulsory education all over the country during the Third Five-Year Plan.

PRIMARY EDUCATION

By the end of the Plan, the number of primary schools was expected to increase to about 428,000 with a primary school within easy walking distance from the home of a child.

TEACHERS' CHILDREN

In the Third Plan it is proposed to establish an all-India scheme for the award of scholarships to the children of primary and secondary teachers, who showed outstanding performance at the matriculation or equivalent examinations. State Governments have been directed to give special financial assistance to teachers' children at the pre-matric stage. In most of the States education has been made free up to the eighth standard and it will be the endeavour to secure further concessions for teachers' children during the Third Plan."

The Government had also recommended the scheme for giving the benefit of provident fund, pension and insurance to teachers. A similar scheme had been in force in Madras for several years.

To improve the quality of teachers, it was sought to raise the percentage of trained teachers at the primary and secondary level to 75 by 1965-66. The present percentage is 60 and 68 respectively (Jan. '61). About 450,000 additional teachers for primary schools and 80,000 for secondary schools would be recruited for this purpose.

TRAINING COLLEGES

The Government of India also proposed setting up four regional teachers' training colleges as a Central Scheme in the Third Plan.

The output of these training colleges would be 200 trained teachers per college a year.

POPULARISING HINDI

The Government of India also proposed to invite various voluntary organisations to form themselves into an all-India federation to help the popularisation of Hindi in a smooth and co-ordinated manner.

It had been decided to initiate a project of translation and preparation of standard text-books and reference books of science, technology and humanities with the Government of India bearing the entire cost of preparation and production of these books. This scheme had been put into operation in Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan and Bihar.

Recently it had been decided to extend this scheme to the translation of books to all the languages of India. A 100 per cent. grant would now be available to the State Governments and universities from the Government of India for the purpose.

SECONDARY EDUCATION BOARD

It was hoped to establish a Central Board of Secondary Education soon. The need for such a board had made itself felt for conducting examinations for certain categories of students whose special requirements could not be met by the State Boards. There were some schools in the country which were not affiliated to any State Board but to examining bodies outside the country. Then there were students whose parents moved on transfer from State to State and, therefore, they would like to take their examinations wherever their parents were posted. There were certain schools outside the country catering for the Indian population abroad which would like to take the examinations conducted by an Indian Board. To meet the special requirements, the Government had under consideration the proposal of the Ajmer Board to reconstitute itself into a Central Board of Education.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS AND PANCHAYATS

At the Centre the Ministry that is responsible for community development projects is the Ministry of Community Development and Co-operation. This Ministry came into being in its present form on Dec. 30, 1958. It is now responsible also for village panchayats.

The C. D. programme completed 8 years of its operation on 1st Oct. 1960. During this year 400 new blocks were opened bringing the total to 3,110, excluding 490 pre-extension blocks allotted during 1960.

The expenditure during the first four years of the Second Plan was Rs. 137·73 crores while people's contribution for the same period was Rs. 63·61 crores. 3rd Plan outlay: Rs. 297 crores.

1952—211½; 1953—336; 1954—279; 1955—242½; 1956—488½; 1957—646; 1958—224; 1959—282 and 1960—400½.

BUDGET

	Revised Estimates 1960–61 (Rs. lakhs)	Budget Estimates 1961–62 (Rs. lakhs)
Grants to States ..	1,968·74	1,813·12
Central Schemes (training etc.)	80·84	45·60
Loans to States ..	1,400·00	1,650·00
Third Party loans for Union Territories ..	8·62	6·37
Total	3,458·25	3,515·09

The period also marked, as indicated below, the beginning of a new phase in the planning and implementation of the programme. With the channelising of funds from different departments for development plans through the Panchayat Samitis, the already accepted principle of treating the Block as the unit of territorial development has become a reality.

Village panchayats will send their elected Sarpanches to the new statutory body known as the Block Panchayat Samiti. The Samiti will have other co-opted members representing women, depressed and scheduled classes. The body will have a President and a Vice-President. The administrative personnel in the Block besides the budget and other resources of Government, will be placed at the disposal of this new body. The Community Development Programme along with all individual departmental programmes of Government in the Block will be vested in this body. The Presidents of Block Panchayat Samitis together with the M.Ps. and the M.L.As. in the district will constitute the Zilla Parishad. The Zilla Parishad in collaboration with the Collector and the technical departments at the district will offer guidance and assistance to the Block Panchayat Samitis without controlling them.

At each of the levels there will be functional sub-committees looking after individual subjects of development. These functional committees will consist of members from representative institutions and associate organizations like village co-operatives and Yuvak, Bal, Mahila, and Dastkar Mandals.

TRAINING

Although a consequent change in the functions of the official agency inevitably follows, its responsibility will, however, continue to increase in the direction of providing technical knowledge and expert advice, as well as prompt and efficient execution.

In this context, the need for education and training for all those associated with the programme assumes a sense of very great urgency. The magnitude of the problem will be apparent from the fact that by the end of 1963, when the entire country will be covered by the C.D. Programme, about 16 lakhs of Panches, four lakhs of Sarpanches and Upsarpanches, 5,000 Pradhans, and more than 300 Pramukhs will be associated with the programme. Besides, nearly two lakh Panchayat Secretaries will have to be trained. The number of other officials in different categories working under the control of the elected statutory institutions at the Block and district levels, will also exceed a lakh.

Facilities for training of various categories of personnel were increased by opening new institutions or enlarging the capacity of existing ones. The content of training was also substantially improved by the revision of syllabi. For the sake of better mutual understanding, officials and non-officials were brought in closer contact by providing institutional training for the Pradhans and Pramukhs and by earmarking certain percentage of seats in the Orientation and Study Centres.

A scheme of training for members of Panchayat Samitis and non-official members of the Block Development Committees was launched. The syllabus for this training which is conducted through short-duration camps, was drawn up by a committee of M.Ps.

Central Institute of Study & Research in Community Development, Mussorrie conducted six orientation courses during the year 1960. Since its inception 15 courses were held and 508 persons participated. The research wing of the institute has been established. Fundamental research in Community Development is conducted through universities. Research schemes have been sanctioned to Andhra, Baroda, Patna, Poona and Rajasthan Universities.

Institute for instruction on Community Development, Rajpur continued to run courses for instructors of training centres and Dt. Panchayat Officers. Instructors and Dt. Panchayat Officers who received training from the institute were 59 and 118 respectively. There are ten Orientation and Study Centres having their centres at the following places: Nilokheri (Punjab), Bakshi-ka-Talab (U.P.), Ranchi (Bihar), Rajendranagar (A.P.), Udaipur (Rajasthan), Mysore (Mysore), Jabalpur (M.P.), Junagadh (Gujarat), Bhavanisagar (Madras), and Kalyani (West Bengal). The last two were to start functioning from April 1961. Prior to reorganisation in 1958, 2,311 officers had received training.

For the training of Social Education Organisers and Mukhya Sevikas six training centres having two units are functioning. So far 3,307 Social Education Organisers have been given job training including 297 men who received training in 1960. Mukhya Sevikas who were given job training so far were 1,605 including 85 Mukhya Sevikas of 1960 batch. 212 Mukhya Sevikas were under training on 31st Dec. 1960. Special training in tribal work were imparted to 419 Social Education Organisers and Mukhya Sevikas.

To improve training programme the following steps have been taken :—1. Scheme for the study of special field problems has been introduced at the S.E.O. Training Camps at Sriniketan, Belurmath, Baroda and Ranchi. 2. Scheme for production of literature for Community Development workers has been introduced at the S.E.O.T.Cs, Sriniketan, Gargoti, Gandhigram and Udaipur. 3. Field Extension Programme as a part of training has been taken at all the S.E.O.T.Cs. 4. For each S.E.O.T.C. & M.S.T.C. a region comprising few adjoining States has been earmarked for allotting trainees. 5. A long term schedule of training programme for each S.E.O.T.C. & M.S.T.C. has been drawn up.

During the year 1960-61, 343 persons received training of Extension Officers (Industries) bringing the total number of Extension Officers trained so far to 1,874. At present (March '61) 442 Extension Officers are under training.

During 1960, 406 received orientation training. Upto Dec. 31, 1960, 2,405 underwent training. During 1960, 6005 village level workers (gram sevaks) completed training bringing the total so far trained to 42,562.

Advisory board :—An advisory board on training consisting of some members of Parliament, Officials and a few others has been constituted, to organise, supervise and guide the expanding training and education programmes of officials and non-officials undertaken by the Ministry. Three committees of the advisory board on training have been constituted in order to deal with the following :—

1. Central Institute of Study & Research in Community Development. 2. Orientation and Study Centres and other Training Centres at the National and State level. 3. Study & Orientation Programme at the District level and below.

So far 3,365,090 Gram Sahayaks received training. During the year 1959-60 six training camps for the instructors of the non-official members of block development committees were organised by the Ministry of Community Development and Co-operation at Delhi, Hyderabad, Jabalpur, Ranchi, Gurukul Indraprastha and Sriniketan in which 208 persons nominated by the State Governments were given training for 2 weeks. These trained instructors have been engaged by the State Governments for training the non-official members of block Development Committee.

So far 174 Pradhans and non-officials have participated in the orientation Courses. (March' 61).

A number of foreign officials had training in the various aspects of the Community Development Programme under the United Nations Technical Assistance Programme, Colombo Plan, Technical Co-operation Mission of United States of America, United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organisation, United Nations Food and Agricultural Organisation etc.

During the year 1960 publications regarding Community Development Schemes in regional languages were supplied to 145 blocks, 5 training centres and 14,183 village libraries.

PROGRESS

Below we give a few notes on various items in relation to community projects.

ACTIVITIES, 1960

Extension in the field of agricultural production continued to be the main task of the block during the year. At the annual conference it was recommended an increased provision from the existing 3·9 lakhs to Rs. 45 lakhs for minor irrigation, land reclamation, animal husbandry and fisheries. State Governments have been requested to take up the preparation of village production plans through Co-operative and Panchayats. To remove the initial difficulties in preparing these plans, it is proposed to organise a workshop of field workers. Arrangements are being made to select outstanding Gram Sahayaks for further training at the Agricultural Institutions.

Efforts have been made to improve administrative co-ordination at all levels—National, State, District and Block—as it is vital for achieving the targets. The State Governments have been requested to undertake extension work for popularisation of cow-dung gas plants. Already several of them have been set up in different areas.

Animal husbandry programme continued to progress during the year 1960.

The fisheries activities in the block areas show remarkable progress. The common carp fish has been introduced for culturing in block areas of Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Maharashtra, Delhi, Orissa, Rajasthan, Punjab, West Bengal and Tripura.

All the states except Assam, Jammu and Kashmir, West Bengal, Maharashtra and Himachal Pradesh have implemented a pilot project scheme of surveying about 7,000 acres of water to stock them with 82 lakhs of fish seed. The training of necessary personnel in fish culture has also been taken up. Already 2,400 acres of waters have been surveyed and 7·20 lakhs of fish seed has been stocked.

About 20,000 tanks and 30,000 ponds have been transferred to the panchayat for fishery development in Andhra and Orissa States. The States have been requested to establish regional fish seed farms to meet the seed requirements in block areas.

Towards minor irrigation the expenditure was Rs. 10·35 crores during 1959-60.

For village and small-scale Industries, the State Government have proposed an outlay of Rs. 26 crores during the Third Plan. An amount of Rs. 7·5 crores will be available for distribution as loan under the State Aid to Industries Act.

Satisfactory progress of health services under the Community Development Programme continued to be maintained during the year. Eradication of malaria, control of filaria, leprosy and T.B. and B.C.G. vaccination continued to make progress in the blocks. Steps to eradicate trachoma are also taken up.

It has been suggested to all the State Governments to form School Committees at the level of Panchayats and Panchayat Samities to look into the programme of primary education and allied activities. The village community will have to play an important role in the promotion of the programme of the universal primary education. In the programme of midday meals for school children, the States of Madras and Orissa made good progress. The village community is sharing the responsibility for the supply of cereals of midday meal for school children.

About the programme for women and children, 68,681 women were trained in 2,799 training camps during the year 1959-60. At the end of Sept. 1960, 42,584 Mahila Mandals with a total membership of 7,13,480 were functioning. In block areas 10,042 balwadies are being conducted where 222,736 children are attending.

The report of the Committee on Special Multipurpose Tribal Blocks with Dr. Verrier Elwin, as Chairman, appointed by the Ministry of Home Affairs was submitted to Government. The report said that the experiment of multipurpose tribal blocks had succeeded sufficiently well. At the annual conferences of the Community Development and State Ministers for the Welfare of Backward Classes the main recommendations of the Committee were given due consideration and recommended uniform development of tribal areas by covering the remaining tribal areas with the tribal development blocks during the Third Plan. Detailed discussion with State Governments jointly by the Ministries of Home Affairs and Community Development and Co-operation on the allotment of blocks to States in the Third Plan is being held.

Rural Housing Cells have been established in all the states except Jammu & Kashmir. 3,560 villages out of 5,000 allotted for the Second Plan period had been selected upto June 1960 as against only 1,600 villages during the corresponding period in 1959. Under this scheme the total drawal of loan by the State Governments will be Rs. 460 lakhs.

Panchayats functioning in the country on March 31, 1960, totalled 176,109 covering 480,000 villages and a population of 22·5 crores excluding Andhra Pradesh.

The number of co-operative societies of all types functioning in the country stood at 2·5 lakhs, with a membership of 2·15 crores. Primary agricultural credit and multi-purpose societies numbered 1·67 lakhs, with a membership of 1·02 crores.

Rural Electrification

The Central Committee on Community Development at its meeting in New Delhi on Nov. 26, 1960 agreed that the programme of electrification should be accorded a very high priority in the plan for development of the rural areas.

The Committee noted that even at the end of the Second Five Year Plan only 24,000 villages would have been electrified and at the end of the Third Plan, an additional 20,000 villages were expected to be electrified, bringing the total to 44,000. This was a very low figure, according to the Committee, out of 5½ lakhs villages.

The Committee reviewed the progress of the Community Development Programme and the system of Panchayati Raj in various States. Till October, 1960, there were 3,087 blocks covering 379,800 villages and bringing nearly 203 million people within its orbit. There are also 489 pre-extension blocks. Panchayati Raj has already been implemented in Rajasthan, Andhra, Assam and Madras. Legislation has also been enacted in Mysore, Orissa and Punjab while it has been introduced in two States, viz., Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh. The progress made in the spheres of cooperation and agriculture was also reviewed.

Rural Industries

The Conference of State Ministers of Community Development, felt that the States should lay more emphasis on rural industries programme. It recommended that with a view to achieving faster progress, there should be a special allocation for rural industries in the Third Five Year Plan.

The Conference accepted a proposal to make the Development Commissioner ex-officio Commissioner of Panchayats and place the Director of Panchayats immediately under him giving the latter suitable secretariat status.

The Conference recommended that as far as possible the staff working in the Community Development blocks should be provided with security of service but it left the matter to be worked out by State Governments.

The fast growing concept of Panchayati Raj had brought in its wake a number of problems to which a solution must be found. Panchayati Raj implied a rural leadership.

Central Co-operative Farming Board

Government of India have taken final decisions on the recommendations of the Working Group on Cooperative Farming. A Cooperative Farming Board is to be set up at the Centre for promoting cooperative farming and 3,200 cooperative farms are to be organised on voluntary basis under a Pilot Projects Scheme—at the rate of ten in each district.

The question of setting up of Cooperative Farming Boards at the State level has been left to the State Governments. The State Governments have been asked that Cooperative farming societies should be eligible for assistance on a priority basis under various schemes which provide for assistance to individual cultivators.

At all stages, cooperative farming is visualised as a stage in cooperative development, and not as a programme isolated from the normal pattern of growth of the rural economy to be achieved through Community Development.

Adequate Credit to Cultivators

The Union Ministry of Community Development and Co-operation have also taken decisions on the recommendations of the Committee on Cooperative Credit. In pursuance of these decisions all classes of cultivators, including the landless tenants, are to be provided with adequate credit on the basis of their production requirements and repaying capacity. Decisions taken by the Government of India also relate to the pattern of organisation of village cooperative societies, state partnership in share capital of primary agricultural credit societies, outright grants to primary societies and Central Banks for providing special "bad debt reserves" and grants to primary societies for managerial expenses.

Cooperatives, are to be organised, as a general rule, on the basis of the village community as a primary unit.

Where the villages are too small, a number of villages, with a total population of up to 3,000 and situated at a distance of not more than three to four miles from the headquarters village, may be grouped together in the interests of viability.

Viability of a cooperative society is to be determined on the basis of its capacity to bring into the cooperative fold all rural families and to effectively implement the village agricultural production plans. Its ability to link credit with production and marketing, as also to supervise the use of credit, undertaking distribution and supply, and to attract local savings to the maximum possible extent, as share capital and as deposits, are also to be taken into consideration.

The State may participate in the share capital of a primary agricultural society, provided that 60 per cent of its members agree to such participation and the Central Bank to which the Society is affiliated supports the proposal.

The Study Team on Rural-cum-Urban Townships in the Headquarters of C.D. and N.E.S. blocks submitted its report in Dec. 1960. It recommended enactment of legislation by State Govts. for regulating the growth of townships. Other recommendations include rural electrification to help small-scale industries and setting up of a committee at the State level to take up the development of selected block head quarters as agro-industrial townships, in the Third Plan.

PANCHAYATS

The year 1960 saw progress in Panchayat Raj in the country. Steps were taken to establish a sound base for the network of self-governing institutions which Panchayati Raj visualises from the village level. These are linked to form a new administrative set-up. The Ministry for Panchayats has pointed out the need to develop the village panchayat and village co-operative as twin institutions with concurrent areas of operation.

The Central Council of Local Self-Government deliberated on various problems of Panchayati Raj such as the role of the collector and other officers with the elected bodies at different levels and the Panchayati Raj Institutions in the field of different development programmes. The council recommended that the Panchayati Raj Institutions should give adequate attention to the welfare of the weaker sections of the community by appointing exclusive sub-committees and earmarking a portion of their normal development budget for this purpose. Associate Organisations in the villages are to be encouraged with specific programmes of work and other aids. Preparation of sound and realistic budgets by Panchayats was considered essential.

Andhra Pradesh and Rajasthan have completed one year of operation of Panchayati Raj. Orissa has constituted 307 Panchayat Samities covering the entire State. The Zila Parishads were expected to be set up by April 1961. High level committees were appointed for Maharashtra and Gujarat States for forming Panchayati Raj in the best suited manner for both the States. Madras State has introduced Panchayat Samities in 75 blocks of C.D. Plan.

In U.P., the Panchayati Raj legislation was placed before the Upper House. M.P. has already introduced legislation to this effect. Bihar also contemplated to bring in legislation of the Panchayati Raj, though elections took place to the primary village Panchayats under the amended Gram Panchayat Act. Kerala has already brought forward a Panchayat Bill in order to cover the whole State uniformly so that the transfer of development programmes could be handed over to the Panchayats. Assam and Mysore have introduced the system in their respective States. Punjab has also conducted elections of the Panchayats all over the State. Punjab, Mysore and Rajasthan have shown overwhelming enthusiasm in the elections held for the Panchayats.

Union territories are also making headway for introducing the system.

Himachal Pradesh is fully covered by the Panchayats.

Panchayats have been constituted in Delhi and Sarpanches have been made members of the Block Development Committees.

Special representation in the Panchayats and Panchayat Samities was given to Scheduled Castes and Tribes. Integration of the Panchayat and C.D. Departments at the State level has been effected in all States except Bihar, West Bengal, Kerala and M.P.

RESEARCH*

RESEARCH in pure science is carried out mainly in the universities, scientific surveys of the Government, and in some research institutes such as the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research. The Council of Scientific & Industrial Research (C.S.I.R.) and the Department of Atomic Energy provide facilities for fundamental or basic research in their laboratories and institutes, and also sponsor such research in universities and research institutions all over the country.

Research in applied science and for industrial development is done mainly under the auspices of the C.S.I.R., the Co-operative Industrial Research Associations, institutes functioning under various Ministries and the laboratories attached to a few industrial concerns.

The Shri Ram Institute for Industrial Research, Delhi, undertakes, on a 'not-for-profit' basis, researches on projects sponsored by industrial concerns, groups of companies, individuals and Government agencies.

Research in engineering subjects is undertaken in some of the C.S.I.R. laboratories and institutes, the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, Central and State Hydraulic Engineering Research Stations, higher technological institutions, like the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, and in a few engineering colleges, such as the College of Engineering and Technology, Jadavpur.

The Council of Scientific & Industrial Research, also sponsors engineering research in various institutions through its research committees.

Agricultural research is looked after by the Indian Council of Agricultural Research, New Delhi, The Indian Agricultural Research Institute, New Delhi, and the various Central Committees for agricultural commodities like the Indian Central Cotton Committee, Indian Central Jute Committee, etc. and the research institutes functioning under the Ministry for Food and Agriculture. (See article on Agriculture.)

The Indian Veterinary Research Institute, Izatnagar (U.P.) is concerned with veterinary diseases. The National Dairy Research Institute at Karnal in the Punjab works on dairy research.

Research in forestry and forest products is undertaken by the Forest Research Institute and Colleges at Dehra Dun.

Medical research is carried out under the auspices of the Indian Council of Medical Research, institutes functioning under the Ministry of Health, and the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research.

Research for defence purposes is undertaken in the Defence Science Laboratory at New Delhi; the naval research laboratory in Cochin, the Technical Development Establishments at Kanpur, Dehra Dun, Bangalore, Kirkee and other places.

Research in the humanities—literature, language, the arts, etc.—is done at individual institutions scattered throughout the country.

Research in social problems such as social tensions, social welfare and labour welfare is conducted as part of their work at many universities.

It may be mentioned here that the Central Government has a Scientific Liaison Officer in the U.K.

About 275 research journals (English) are published in India. These cover a wide range of subjects, grouped as follows: General science, 31; Engineering, including civil, electrical, telecommunication and aeronautical, 31; Chemistry, including biochemistry, chemical technology, plastics, paint, oils and fats, soap, and food, 21; Agriculture, including forestry, 35; and Medical sciences, 64.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES

The National Institute of Sciences of India, New Delhi, established in 1955, is the scientific Academy recognised by the Government of India. Besides this, there are two other general science Academies with national scope, viz. the Indian Academy of Sciences, Bangalore and the National Academy of Sciences, Allahabad.

The oldest learned society in India is the Asiatic Society of Bengal, founded in 1874.

COUNCIL OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

The major part of applied research in India is now carried on under the auspices of the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (Ministry of Scientific Research and Cultural Affairs).

The Council of Scientific & Industrial Research was established in 1942 by the Government of India as an autonomous body, registered under the Registration of Societies Act XXI of 1860. The functions of the Council include: the promotion, guidance and co-ordination of scientific and industrial research in India; the establishment, maintenance and management of laboratories and institutes to further scientific research; and the collection and dissemination of scientific information and the publication of a journal of research.

Research under the Council is carried on in its own laboratories and extra-murally in universities and other institutions under a grants-in-aid scheme.

The Council is administered by a Governing Body with the Prime Minister as President, the Minister for Scientific Research and Cultural Affairs as Vice-President and eminent scientists, industrialists and administrators as members. The Board of Scientific & Industrial Research, composed of scientists, industrialists and representatives of Govt. departments interested in industrial research, advises the Governing Body on research and development proposals. It is assisted in its work by two expert sub-committees namely the scientific sub-committee and the engineering sub-committee. The Board advises the Governing Body on proposals for: instituting specific researches; scientific study of problems affecting particular trades and industries in scientific institutions and universities; establishment of research institutions; fellowships, studentships and scholarships; and specific studies and surveys of indigenous resources as an essential preliminary to systematic investigation in particularly important fields of research.

The number of Research Committees at present is 13 as follows:

Aeronautical; Biological; Chemical; Civil Engineering & Hydraulic; Electrical & Mechanical Engineering; Essential Oils; Geological & Mineralogical; Metals; Pharmaceuticals & Drugs; Physical; Public Health Engineering; Radio; and Joint Committee of the Indian Central Oilseeds Committee and C.S.I.R. for Vegetable Oils.

Executive Councils of national laboratories are responsible for the administration and formulation of research programmes and reviewing the progress of research.

In addition to fostering research in its own laboratories, research units and centres, the council provides grant-in-aid for research in universities, technical institutes and industrial laboratories. Grants-in-aid were made by the Council for 390 research schemes at 82 different centres in India during the year 1960–61.

The Council also makes block grants to institutions for enlarging training facilities. It extends financial support for developing schools of research in universities and research institutions.

The Council has formulated a scheme of Junior and Senior Fellowships for assisting talented young men with distinguished academic records in taking up scientific research as a career.

A scheme for rendering financial aid to retired scientists for pursuing research after superannuation has been recently implemented.

The Council pays special importance to the need for developing results of researches and proving their commercial feasibility. It maintains at the headquarters an Industrial Liaison and Extension unit with regional offices at Bombay, Calcutta and Madras; there is also an Industrial Liaison office at Jaipur. Liaison officers maintain contacts with chambers of commerce and industry, industrial and trade associations, Government Departments and other users of research. Problems of industry are analysed and identified and brought to the notice of appropriate laboratories for advice and, when necessary, for investigation.

The Council maintains a Patents section for rendering assistance to inventors in drafting specifications and filing patent applications. There are patent inspection centres at the headquarters of the Council and also in some of the national laboratories and institutes.

The Council has been taking active steps to encourage co-operative research associations of industries in the country. It renders assistance to industries, which are desirous of forming research associations, by way of technical advice, preparing plans, framing rules, regulations and bye-laws, and procuring materials and experts where necessary. The Council provides financial assistance towards both capital and recurring expenditure. There are now six research associations namely the Ahmedabad Textile Industry's Research Association (1947), the Silk & Art Silk Mills' Research Association (1950), the South India Textile Research Association (1951), the Bombay Textile Research Association (1954), the Indian Rubber Manufacturers' Research Association (1958), and the Indian Paint Research Association (1959).

The Council has set up a National Register Unit and maintains a roster, in card index form, on the availability, qualifications and experience of scientists and technologists in the country. This unit maintains information also on qualified Indians in foreign countries.

The Council administers a pool for temporary placement of Indians returning from abroad with high qualifications in scientific and technical subjects.

214 candidates have been selected to the 'Pool' through a special recruitment board. The pool also consists of a proportion of persons holding high Indian qualifications.

In order to handle all the publications of the research committees, national laboratories, and other units of the Council, a Publications Directorate has been set up at the headquarters. A major publication of the Directorate is the Dictionary of Indian Raw Materials and Industrial Products—an encyclopaedia issued under the popular title: Wealth of India. The Directorate has taken on hand a programme of bringing out monographs on botanical subjects.

The Indian National Scientific Documentation Centre (INSDOC) provides information, document procurement and translation services. It acts as a repository for scientific publications and for those submitted by research workers for Doctorate Degrees in Indian universities.

The Council takes an active part in international scientific projects, such as the International Geophysical Year.

The Council administers a scheme of scholarships instituted by the Burmah-Shell Oil Company and Assam Oil Company for post-graduate training in specified subjects in Commonwealth countries. Similar scholarships founded by the Standard Vacuum Oil Company are tenable in institutions in U.S.A.

The Council's budget for 1960–61 was approximately Rs. seven crores. A sum of Rs. 31 lakhs was given by the Council in 1959–60 to scientists for research in various institutions as grants-in-aid. More than 400 research scientists were receiving grants from the Council in 1960–61. Besides, ten retiring research scientists were also given grants from the Council.

The Second Five Year Plan provided Rs. 27·25 crores to the Council for research and development.

National Research Development Corporation

Industrial research has been considerably stimulated and the gap between inventions and development is being progressively reduced by the efforts of the National Research Development Corporation of India. N.R.D.C. is now an effective link between research and industry.

During the last 7 years, NRDC has instituted 18 developmental projects having a bearing on major industries such as paper, sugar, cement, food and chemicals; of these 13 pilot plant projects are financed by NRDC at an estimated cost of Rs. 21·13 lakhs; the remaining are being worked in collaboration with industry which also bears the cost.

The latest projects sanctioned include a prototype plant for the production of a high grade Activated Carbons at an estimated cost of Rs. 6·05 lakhs.

The De-ionisation of Sugar-Cane Juice Project in operation at National Sugar Institute, Kanpur, is intended to recover sugar at present being lost in molasses and its success may mean an additional 10 per cent sugar from the existing sugarcane.

During 1960 two commercial plants on the basis of projects set up by NRDC have started production.

The First Pine Oil Factory, Hoshiarpur, to produce pine oil from Indian turpentine, was inaugurated by the Union Minister for Industry and Chairman, NRDC.

The Baby Food plant of Amul at Anand with a capacity of 2,500 tons per annum was inaugurated by the Union Minister for Finance. Full production from this plant alone will mean a foreign exchange saving of the order of Rs. 1 crore per annum.

Among important projects under active consideration is one developed at Central Food Technological Research Institute, Mysore for separating edible proteins from groundnuts. Edible proteins are in great demand throughout the world for correcting malnutritions, consequent on protein deficiency, particularly in the low income groups.

An outstanding invention, which has attracted considerable attention, is "Suri Transmission", the development of which by a leading German firm has reached an advanced stage. Suri

Transmission was developed by a young engineer of the Indian Railways and its use in diesel locomotives is expected to effect a saving of 10 per cent in fuel cost alone.

Since its inception, NRDC has negotiated nearly 135 licences for the production of materials developed as a result of the national research effort. The materials in commercial production include Carbons, Mica Insulating Bricks, Silver Mica Capacitors, Lisasorb, Carboxy-Methyl Cellulose, Shrifirset Resins, Composite Protein Food, Carbon Slabs & Rods, Duplicating, Printing & Allied Black Inks, Brick & Block Making Machine, Plastipeel, Electrolytic Cuprous Oxide, Ceramic Capacitors, Boron Free Enamels, Foam Glass, Improved Graphite Crucibles, Salicylaldehyde, Maleic Anhydride from Benzene are also expected to go into production soon.

Almost all materials being commercially produced assist in conserving foreign exchange while others like Electrolytic Manganese and Wet Ground Mica which are expected to be produced commercially in the near future may prove to be substantial earners of foreign exchange.

NATIONAL LABORATORIES

There are 25 national laboratories functioning under the Council.

The National Physical Laboratory in New Delhi and the National Chemical Laboratory at Poona stand on a special footing.

The former is equipped for the maintenance of and research in fundamental and derived standards. It also undertakes research in industrial standards of performance and practice.

The work of the national laboratories covers a wide field. They are engaged on work which does not come ordinarily under the purview of universities or industry.

Special mention may be made of the national survey of coal resources, which has provided basic information on the fuel resources of the country.

Surveys have also been conducted on the raw materials for glass industry, limestone for chemical industry, foundry and for metallurgical industry, tanstuffs for leather industry and other raw materials which are of basic importance to other industrial developments.

Improved processes of manufacture which can be adopted by industry have been developed and several processes for the manufacture of new products, not hitherto produced in the country, have been worked out.

Procedures for improving the quality of products produced in the country have been formulated.

Among the more recent achievements of the Council's laboratories, mention may be made of the production of optical glass, mica insulating bricks, stainless steels in which nickel has been eliminated, nickel-free alloys for coinage and production of pig iron utilizing non-coking coals and indigenous iron ores in a low-shaft furnace.

Other products include ceramic condensers, tanning auxiliaries, multipurpose food, foam glass, ion-exchange resins, industrial carbons and synthetic vitamin C.

Many of the national laboratories have undertaken design and fabrication of pilot plants themselves. During 1957–1960, 46 pilot plants were set up in the various national laboratories.

Over 60 processes developed in the national laboratories were leased out to industry during the last four years, of which nine are under profitable production. Besides, about 60 smaller processes were released free of charge to interested parties.

NUCLEAR RESEARCH AND ATOMIC ENERGY

Nuclear research is of recent origin in India. Pioneering work in this field was done by the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, Bombay, established in 1945 as a high-level academic institution for conducting research and advanced study in physics with special emphasis on nuclear physics and mathematics.

This Institute has since been recognised as the National Centre for advanced study and fundamental research in nuclear physics and mathematics and consists of a school of Physics and a school of mathematics with a staff of 300.

The Institute is the largest centre for cosmic ray research in India and has made notable contributions to the theory of elementary particles. Its nuclear emulsion group for the study of elementary particles is probably the second largest in the world and has made outstanding contributions.

During the years preceding the establishment of the Atomic Energy Commission, the Institute had already collected and built up a small group of scientists trained in some of the special techniques of nuclear physics.

Two other important institutions conducting research in nuclear physics are the Saha Institute of Nuclear Physics, Calcutta, which was founded by the late Dr. Meghnad Saha, F.R.S., and was formally inaugurated in 1950 and the Physical Research Laboratory, Ahmedabad.

Considerable fundamental research in nuclear science and cosmic rays is also being conducted at some 20 universities and research institutions all over India with financial assistance from the Department of Atomic Energy. During 1960-61 a sum Rs. 6·23 lakhs was sanctioned as assistance.

The development and control of atomic energy in India is regulated by the Atomic Energy Act (Act No. XXIX of 1948) and the Department of Atomic Energy handles all business of the Government of India relating to atomic energy and functions of the Central Government under the Act.

In view of the significant and rapid strides that India had made in the research and development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes and of the greatly expanded programme envisaged for the future, in the course of which India should be able to produce all the basic materials required for the utilization of atomic energy and build a series of atomic power stations, it was decided in March 1958, to establish an Atomic Energy Commission with full authority to plan and implement the various measures on sound technical and economic principles and free from all non-essential restrictions or needlessly inelastic rules.

The new Commission which assumed authority on June 23, 1958, is responsible for (a) formulating the policy of the Department of Atomic Energy, (b) preparing the budget of the Department for each financial year and getting it approved by the Government, and (c) implementing Government's policy in all matters concerning atomic energy.

The Commission's programmes envisage that India should be able to produce all the basic materials required for the production of atomic energy, promote its use in agriculture, biology, industry and medicine, prepare a long-range plan for the generation of electric power and set up one or more power stations.

The scientific and technical work of the Department is carried out by the Atomic Minerals Division and the Atomic Energy Establishment at Trombay near Bombay.

Some of the more important functions of the Atomic Minerals Division are : (a) geological survey for and development of atomic minerals, (b) geographical survey, (c) geochemical survey, (d) mineral technology, (e) drilling, (f) mining, (g) stockpiling, (h) conservation of minerals and (i) technical assistance and training.

Trombay Establishment

The Atomic Energy Establishment at Trombay which was formally inaugurated on January 20, 1957, is the Indian centre for research and development work in the field of atomic energy. It is located about 15 miles from the centre of Bombay. The 2,400 acre Establishment is the heart of the Indian Atomic Energy Commission's activities in the field of research. It comprises some 15 scientific divisions, namely Electronics, Health Physics, Nuclear Physics, Theoretical Physics and Applied Mathematics, Analytical, Chemistry, Chemical Engineering, Isotope, Radio-Chemistry, Metallurgy, Reactor Engineering, Reactor Operations, Engineering Services, Biology and Medical & Health Divisions.

At present 1,300 scientists and engineers work in the Trombay Establishment.

To ensure a steady supply of trained scientific and technical personnel, the Establishment started a training programme in 1957 under which 250 young graduates and engineers are recruited annually from the universities and given supplementary training for a year to fit them for work in India's atomic energy programme.

After successful completion of training the trainees are absorbed in various divisions of the establishment.

The main fields of study and research in the Trombay Establishment can be broadly classified as Follows: (1) Theoretical and Nuclear Physics (2) Solid State Studies (3) Radiation-induced Reactions and Effects of Recoil Atoms (4) Analytical Chemistry and Spectroscopy (5) Actinide Elements and Fission Products (6) Radioisotopes (7) Metallurgy (8) Chemical Engineering (9) Reactor Engineering and (10) Biology and Medicine.

APSARA Reactor: APSARA, India's first atomic reactor, is a 1MW pool-type reactor using enriched uranium as fuel and demineralised water as moderator. (See under "Government Industrial Undertakings.")

CANADA-INDIA Reactor: India's third research reactor will be the Rs. 10 crore (£ 7·5 million) Canada-India Reactor, under the Colombo Plan. (See under "Government Industrial Undertakings.")

ZERLINA: Zerlina, a zero energy reactor for lattice investigations and new assemblies, reached criticality on January 14, 1961.

For more details see the article "Government Industrial Undertakings".

Research Facilities: The research facilities available in the Trombay Establishment are such that advanced research, both fundamental and applied, in several scientific fields can be undertaken. Besides the reactors mentioned already, the following principal facilities exist: (1) the 1 MeV cascade generator at the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, (2) A 5·5 MeV Van de Graaff accelerator which was expected to go into operation early in 1961, (3) Mass spectrometers, both foreign built and locally fabricated, (4) A 200 kV electron diffraction camera fabricated in the Establishment, (5) A slow chopper built in the Establishment, (6) A mechanical monochromator built in the Establishment, (7) A crystal spectrometer and a double crystal spectrometer built in the establishment, (8) Spectrometers, including double beam and vacuum grating ones, (9) X-ray equipment, (10) Cloud chambers, (11) Magnetometers, (12) Various types of electronic instruments, (13) Various instruments used in chemical analysis such as fluorimeters, polarometers, spectrophotometers, colorimeters, etc.

Production Facilities: With the object of exploiting fully the indigenous raw materials for the speedy and successful implementation of its programme, the Commission has already set up a number of plants, while others are in the process of being set up. They are:

Rare Earth Plant: This plant, jointly owned by the Commission and the Government of Kerala, was set up in 1952. It has a capacity for processing 1,500 tons of monazite sand annually. It produces rare earths (Chiefly cerium) compounds and a cake containing thorium and uranium. Trisodium phosphate, a detergent, obtained as a by-product, has a good market. The rare earths compounds (mixed rare earths chloride, carbonate and hydroxide) are sold in the world market. Small amounts of naphthenate, fluoride and oxide of cerium are also produced.

Radio-Chemistry Laboratory: This Laboratory, commissioned in 1957, is a start to train a team of chemists in the handling of highly radioactive substances. It is equipped with the most modern facilities for handling plutorium and other highly radioactive elements. Here, the chemistry of actinide elements and the physical and chemical properties of fission products are studied. The Laboratory was set up and is now being run under the supervision of an expert obtained from the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority under the Colombo Plan.

Thorium Plant: The plant was built entirely by Indian scientists and engineers for processing the thorium concentrates from the rare-earth plants, went into production in Sept. 1955. Its capacity was increased six-fold in 1958. The plant is one of the largest in the world for the production of thorium nitrate. Besides supplying virtually the entire requirements of the gas mantle industry in India, it also supplies markets in Europe and America, helping India to save foreign exchange to a tune of Rs. 160 lakhs by meeting local requirements. It also produces nuclear grade thorium oxide which will be used by Canada-India Reactor for the production of uranium-233. (See also under "Government Industrial Undertakings".)

Uranium Metal Plant: This plant, designed and built entirely by the Establishment's personnel, was commissioned in January 1959. It has an annual capacity of about 30 tonnes of nuclear grade uranium. Work is now being conducted on the recovery of uranium from the calcium fluoride slag produced in the plant.

The main object of setting up this plant was to produce nuclear grade uranium metal for use in the G.I.R. and Zerlina. Besides, it was to function as a pilot plant to collect operational data and to train personnel for the larger plants planned for the future. It is now being expanded to provide the uranium needed for the first atomic power station.

Fuel Element Fabrication Facility: This facility, the first of its kind in Asia outside the U.S.S.R., was designed and built entirely by the engineers and metallurgists of the Trombay Establishment. It went into operation in June 1959. It has already produced sufficient fuel elements for the first charge of the C.I.R. and also made fuel elements for Zerlina. The present capacity of this facility, which is in the nature of a pilot plant, is about 30–40 tonnes per year. It has been planned to expand this facility so as to meet fully the fuel element requirements of the first atomic power station. Production in India saves over Rs. 1 lakh of foreign exchange per tonne of the fabricated fuel element.

Heavy Water Plant: A plant to produce about 15 tonnes of heavy water annually in conjunction with the Nangal Fertilizer plant is being built at Nangal in the Punjab. After studying a number of combinations with electrolytic pre-enrichment, this has been chosen as this combination was found to be most suitable from both economic and technical stand points under the conditions prevailing at Nangal. This plant was expected to go into production early in 1961.

Heavy Water Reconcentration Plant: A plant for the reconcentration of heavy water down-graded as a result of absorption of water vapour from the atmosphere or accidental mixing with water is nearing completion at Trombay. It is designed entirely by Indian Engineers, a large number of indigenous materials being used in its concentration. Its capacity will be about 18 to 20 tonnes of heavy water per year, starting with diluted heavy water of 40 per cent concentration.

Plutonium Plant: The irradiated fuel contains a small amount of plutonium, a vauable nuclear material along with a large quantity of radioactive fission products. Investigations have been conducted on the separation of plutonium from the irradiated fuel. A plant is now under construction at Trombay for treating primarily the natural uranium fuel rods irradiated in the Canada-India Reactor for recovering plutonium from them. The plant is expected to be commissioned towards the end of 1961.

An auxiliary plant is being designed that will reduce the considerable quantity of the radioactive waste resulting from the plutonium plant to a small bulk so that it can be stored in an underground tank.

Stable Isotopes Plant: It is planned to set up small plants at Trombay for the production of stable isotopes such as C^{13}, N^{15}, and O^{18}, which are valuable research tools in biological sciences. Preliminary designs and process designs of these plants have been completed.

Uranium Ore Mill: A uranium mill with a capacity to treat 1,000 tons of uranium ore per day has been planned to be set up in Jadugoda area in Bihar. The process to be employed is based on the considerable amount of research work carried out on the recovery of uranium from Jadugoda ore.

Electronic Instruments: The Electronics Division of the Trombay Establishment has so far designed, developed and fabricated more than 20 different types of instruments such as portable G. M. counters, scalers, amplifiers, ratemeters, oscilloscopes and so on. Diverse types of health survey instruments needed for the radiological safety in the Trombay Establishment and institutions using radiation sources are also fabricated. In order to meet the over-increasing demands, a large scale expansion of the fabrication facilities has been planned. A comprehensive programme of gradually transistorizing most of the instruments has been drawn up and it will be put into operation in the near future.

Graphite Work Shop: A small Graphite workshop for machining nuclear grade graphite has been set up. All the graphite required for the C.I.R., Apsara and Zerlina has been machined here.

Central Work Shop: A well-equipped Central Work Shop has been planned. The general load on this work shop is expected to be as high as Rs. 50 lakhs a year, not taking into consideration major project work or experimental work of fairly big magnitude. Mineral Sand Industry: A company called Travancore Minerals (Private) Ltd., was registered in October 1956 to exploit the rich mineral deposits of Kerala State, with the participation of the Government of India and Kerala Government on an equal basis and the company started its operation in May 1957. The Government Minerals Concerns, Manavalakurichi, owned and managed by Madras Government, was merged with this company in January 1959 and the Madras Government was taken as a shareholder.

The main mineral exploited is ilmenite, which is mostly exported. Other minerals are rutile, monazite, zircon and sillimanite. A detailed and systematic survey and prospecting of the mineral deposits in the sea bed and the present mining areas is being arranged by the Atomic Minerals Division to assess the total available deposits.

The internal air services and services to neighbouring countries are managed by a corporation called Indian Airlines Corporation, and the external services by Air-India International Corporation. According to the Act, 1953 the number of members of a Corporation cannot be less than five and not more than nine. Each of the Corporations has a general manager.

The Central Government has authority to give the Corporations directions about opening a new transport service, closing an existing service, or other changes in schedule. At the end of a financial year the Corporations must present a report to the Central Government which will be laid before Parliament.

Private agencies can use aircraft for purposes of instruction, rescue or relief, air survey, fire fighting, crop dusting, locust control or for providing joy rides.

An Air Transport Council has been established for considering points of common interest between either of the Corporations and the Director-General of Civil Aviation or the Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs.

An Advisory Committee for each Corporation was reconstituted in June, 1960.

A Labour Relations Committee for each Corporation consisting of representatives of the Corporation and of employees has been functioning since 1956. The Committee has been formed in such a way that the representatives of employees are not fewer than the representatives of the Corporation. This Committee will give advice to the Corporation on matters of labour.

In addition to the two Corporations, there were 17 flying clubs and seven transport companies holding permits for non-scheduled service on 30th June, 1960.

As many as 922,400 passengers and about 70 million kilograms of cargo and mail were carried by scheduled and non-scheduled air transport services in the country in 1960.

The scheduled air transport services flew 40,324,900 km. in 1960. The number of passengers carried increased from 736,160 in 1959 to 824,500 in 1960. The amount of freight and mail carried increased from 40,329,143 kgs. to 42,213,000 kgs. The mail carried showed a decrease over the previous year.

During 1960 nearly 35,400 hours and 9,457,000 kilometres were flown on non-scheduled operations against the previous year's figures of 33,931 hours and 8,976,180 kilometres. The number of passengers and cargo carried were nearly 97,900 passengers and 34,194,500 kgs. against 88,840 passengers and 36,799,124 kgs. of cargo the previous year.

There are three departmental gliding centres and two gliding clubs in India.

The Civil Aviation Training Centre, Allahabad continues to conduct courses for commercial Pilots training and for various ground jobs connected with aircraft.

During the period 1st January to 31st December 1959, there were 32 major accidents in India involving 26 Indian registered aircraft, 2 foreign registered aircraft and 5 gliders. Eight of these accidents were fatal resulting in the death of 41 persons, viz. 18 crew and 23 passengers.

Seventeen of the Indian registered aircraft (including four gliders) involved in major accidents were engaged on instructional flights, three on scheduled passenger services, two on non-scheduled passenger services, four on non-scheduled freighter services and five (including one glider) on private, cross country and miscellaneous flights. One of the foreign registered aircraft involved in major accidents was engaged on scheduled passenger service and the other on non-scheduled passenger service.

The Corporation inaugurated its Boeing operations on April 19, 1960 on the India/U.K. route. The operation is now built upto six frequencies a week to London, out of which five are extended over the North-Atlantic to New York. Air-India now operates Boeings to Tokyo twice a week via Calcutta, Bangkok and Hongkong and to Nairobi once a week via Aden. In addition to these Boeing flights, there are the following Super Constellation flights : One to Sydney via Madras, Singapore, Jakarta and Darwin, one more to Jakarta via Madras and Singapore, one regional service to Kuwait via Karachi and Bahrain and one to Moscow from Delhi via Tashkent.

The Commonwealth airlines pool of Air-India International, B.O.A.C. and Qantas came into being on April 1, 1960.

† See column three on this page under budget.

This arrangement will make it a partner in a giant international air system which will be better able to hold its own in the new age of jet air travel.

The Commonwealth pool is part of a pattern for the integration of international airlines.

The Air-India-B.O.A.C.-Qantas pool will retain the identity of each airline but provides for a division of revenue on the basis of a traffic-frequency formula. The formula will be subject to periodic revision. The three airlines will co-operate with each other and will jointly and severally compete with the other carriers.

The pool will operate in respect of routes which are served by all three airlines. In the case of Air-India, the pool arrangement will apply to all flights, including the proposed transatlantic run, except those to Nairobi and Moscow.

Air-India already has a revenue pool with the Soviet Airline, Aeroflot, on the Delhi-Moscow sector. Both airlines operate the same number of services and each shares its revenue equally with the other.

The National Harbour Board: The Board, which was set up in 1950 to advise the Central Government on matters of general policy relating to port management and development including their effects on industry, commerce, shipping, railways etc. so as to ensure integrated consideration of all important port matters, met twice during 1960, in August and November. The latter meeting was convened with the object of considering the report of the Intermediate Ports Development Committee which was set up in 1959. It recommended certain selected intermediate ports for intensive development.

The National Harbour Board has recommended to the Planning Commission that Ratnagiri should be developed as an all weather Port.

LIGHTHOUSES

Lighthouses are divided into general and local according to the utility of a particular lighthouse to navigation. The superintendence and management of general lighthouses is vested in the Union Government while the local lighthouses are managed by local lighthouse authorities such as State Governments, Port Trusts, etc.

A statutory body—the Central Advisory Committee for Lighthouses has been appointed under the Indian Lighthouses Act, which advises the Union Government on matters connected with the erection, additions, alterations, improvements, etc. of lighthouses. The Chairman of the Committee is the Secretary to the Government of India, Ministry of Transport and Communications, or the officer deputed by him to act as Chairman on his behalf. The members are : The Director-General of Shipping, Bombay (ex-officio) ; Nautical Adviser to the Government of India (ex-officio) ; A representative of the Ministry of Finance, Government of India ; Chief Hydrographer, Indian Navy (ex-officio) ; Deputy Secretary to the Government of India in charge of the Department of Lighthouses and Lightships, Ministry of Transport and Communications (ex-officio) ; one representative each of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Associated Chambers of Commerce, Indian National Steamship Owners' Association two Government nominees representing Indian Sailing Vessels' interests ; Director-General of Lighthouses and Lightships, New Delhi (ex-officio), Member Secretary.

There are 183 lighthouses, 9 lightvessels, 109 lightbuoys, 282 unlighted buoys, 192 beacons, 299 land marks and 716 other marks, making a total of 1,790 aids to navigation strewn over the coastline of approximately 4,340 miles including Andaman Island. 86 new lighthouses and other aids to navigation have been established so far. The Second Five-Year Plan envisaged the improvement of aids to navigation at an estimated cost of Rs. 400 lakhs. A summary of the programme under the Second Five-Year Plan is given below :—Construction of lighthouses, towers, buildings and jetties, 100 nos. ; Purchase and installation of optical equipment apparatus and machinery, 100 nos. ; Establishment of M.F. and V.H.F. During the year 1957-58, new lights were exhibited at 2 lightstations viz. Pirotan Island (Gujarat State) and False Point (Orissa State). A new lighthouse tower has been built on the Pirotan Island in the Gulf of Kutch and a new optical equipment installed, which has a beam intensity of 495,000 candelas. This provides a range of 14 miles in adverse weather. This light started functioning from 5th February 1958.

The new optical equipment at False Point is electrically operated, the power for the light being supplied by generators installed at the station. The beam intensity of this light is 1·4 million candelas and ensures a range of 17 miles in misty weather. This light started functioning from 31st May 1958.

8 buoys were laid in Vizag Harbour to mark the channel and the entrance to the channel. A new M. F. Radio beacon has been installed at False Point (Orissa State) and this started functioning with effect from 26th January 1959. The radio beacon has a range of 200 miles.

A new M. F. Radio Beacon has been installed at Okha (Gujarat State) and this will help ships proceeding to the Gulf of Kutch and around the Saurashtra coast to fix their position, while at sea. A new auxiliary red light has been installed at Bhatkal (Mysore State).

A Fog Signal equipment has been installed at Bhatkal (Mysore State). This Fog Signal has a range of 5 miles and is the first of its kind in India. It will have a character of 3 blasts every 60 seconds. This would be very useful to ships during the monsoons and foggy weather when the visibility of the Lighthouse beam is greatly reduced. A new lightbuoy has been installed to mark the Sultanpur Shoals.

New Optical equipment has been installed at Vakalapudi Lighthouse (Andhra Pradesh). The new lighthouse with a beam intensity of 95,000 candelas started functioning from 1st February 1960. The new lighthouse at Tolkeshwar (Maharashtra) having a beam intensity of 159,000 candelas started functioning from the 15th February 1960, providing a range of 21 miles in clear weather. The new lighthouse at Deogad (Maharashtra) having a beam intensity of 100,000 candelas started functioning from 18th April 1960. The new optical equipment installed at Alleppey Lighthouse (Kerala State) would produce an effective beam intensity of 642,000 candelas and started functioning from 4th August 1960.

Nine lights installed at the Konkan Ports of Boria Bay Palshet, Shrivardhan, Janjira, Tiviri, Purnagad, Achra and Ranpar, for the benefit of the coastal shiping, started functioning during December 1959/January 1960.

The Installation of the new optical equipment at Uttan Point Lighthouse (Maharashtra State) has been completed. The new light having a beam intensity of 590,000 candelas was expected to start functioning from 15th December 1960. The new light at Korlai Fort having a beam intensity of 11,000 candelas was expected to start functioning from 1st January 1961.

New Lighthouse Towers have been constructed at Gogha, Koilthottam, Tarapore and new optical equipment installed thereon. The work of installation of a Harbour Radar at Kandla has been completed. The installations of radio beacons at Diu-Head (Gujarat State), Khanderi Island (Maharashtra State) and Dolphin's Nose (Andhra Pradesh) ; Radar at Khanderi Island (Maharashtra State) and Saugor Island (West Bengal) are in progress. The installation of optical and fog signal equipment at Jegri, Jaffrabad and Mandvi (Gujarat State) is in progress.

The work in connection with the establishment of Deccan Chains on the East and West Coasts of India is in progress. Each Chain would comprise a Master Station and 3 Slave Stations. The Chains would help ships to fix their positions at sea with great accuracy throughout the range of 300 miles from the shore under all weather conditions. The Master Station on the East Coast shall be located at Balasore and the Slave Stations at Pathpur (Orissa) and Vishnupur and Diamond Harbour (West Bengal). The Master Station on the West Coast shall be located at Savar Kundla, and the Slave Stations at Veraval, Dhrangadhra and Billimora (Gujarat State). Vertical self-radiating towers 550′ high would be established at the Master Stations and 350′ towers at the Slave Stations. The erection of 550′ aerial tower at Savarkundla and 350′ aerial towers at Verawal and Dhrangadhra has been completed. These towers would be the tallest structures of their kind in the country.

The new Optical equipment meant for the lighthouse at Dwarka has been received and the installation on a new 120′ tower is expected to be taken up shortly. The new light when exhibited, would be one of the most powerful lighthouses in the world having a beam intensity of over 5,000,000 candelas.

The Government of India has approved of a proposal to construct a lighthouse at Lushington Shoals off Port Okha in Gujarat State at an estimated cost of Rs. 80 lakhs. The proposed lighthouse with a beam intensity of 10 million candelas will have a range of 17 miles in misty weather and a fog signal with a range of 10 miles and radio beacon.

Some of the important works now in progress are the construction of lighthouses at Shortt Island, Chandrabhaga (Orissa), Rajpuri Point, Ratnagiri and Vengurla Point (Maharashtra) ; Jakhau, Savaibet, Piram Island, Veraval (Gujarat State) and East Point in Andhra Pradesh.

The Third Five Year Plan provides for an expenditure of Rs. 6 crores for the improvement construction of new lighthouses and provision of other aids to navigation along the coasts of India and Andamans.

It is proposed to electrify the lighthouses at Manapad, Mahabalipuram and Muttam Point (Madras State). The electrification will result in increasing the beam intensity by over three times.

The revenues of the Department of Lighthouses and Lightships are derived from the levy of light-dues on steamships and sailing vessels.

* A provision of Rs. 7 crores has been made in the IIIrd Plan.

RAILWAYS

THE total route mileage of all the railways in India on March 31, 1960 was 35,213. The total electrified route mileage was 328·87.

The total route mileage is made up of the following:

Govt. railways—34,768.
Non-Govt. railways—445.

The total capital at charge of Govt. railways on March 31, 1960 was Rs. 1,370·32 crores.

There are three kinds of gauge, broad (5 ft. 6 in.), metre (3 ft. 3⅜ in.) and narrow (2 ft. 6 in.). There is also a light gauge usually laid on the mountains (2 ft.). An example of this last is the Darjeeling-Himalayan.

The total route mileage by gauge was as follows:

Broad gauge: 16,449·84
Metre gauge: 15,582·53
Narrow gauge: 3,180·55

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION

There are in all 6,460 railway stations. In any one day of 24 hours about 7,500 trains cover distances aggregating 562,000 miles.

The number of passenger trains would be 4,768 on Dec. 31, 1960 and of goods 3,000.

The goods trains carry 362,000 tons or about 10,000,000 maunds daily. During 1959-60, the daily average number of wagons loaded was 16,130 and 9,520 for broad gauge and metre gauge respectively.

The number of men, women and children who boarded the trains average about 4,000,000 daily. The railways carry an average of 3·64 lakh tons of goods in each 24-hour period, while the loading of goods exceeds a steady average of over 1,000 wagons per hour, all the year round.

ZONAL ADMINISTRATION

The entire Government railway system is now grouped into eight administrations: the Southern Railway, the Western Railway, the Central Railway, the Northern Railway, the Eastern Railway, the South-Eastern Railway, the North-Eastern Railway and the North-East Frontier Railway.

The headquarters of the Southern Railway are at Madras, of the Western Railway at Bombay, of the Central Railway also at Bombay, of the Northern Railway at Delhi, of the Eastern Railway at Calcutta, of the South-Eastern Railway also at Calcutta, of the North-Eastern at Gorakhpur and the North-East Frontier Railway at Pandu.

Some of these railways comprise smaller systems.

Ahmadpur-Katwa (32); Arrah-Sasaram Light (65); Bankura-Damodar River (60); Bhuktiarpur-Bihar Light (33); Burdwan Katwa (32); Dehri-Rohtas Light (42); Fulwa-Islampur (27); Howrah-Amta Light (44); Howrah-Sheakhala Light (17); Shahdara (Delhi) Saharanpur Light (93).

They are all narrow gauge (2′-6″) except two Howrah-Amta and Howrah-Sheakhala which are 2′-0″.

The highest administrative authority for the railways is the Railway Board.

The Indian Railway Conference Association, New Delhi, is a sort of clearing house for all railways.

The railways are now organized on a Divisional basis.

There are a number of Committees which have been associated with the Railway Administration: Standing Finance Committee, Central Advisory Council, Railway Rates Tribunal, Indian Railway Fuel Committee.

There are also a number of standardization Committees such as for bridges, structure, track, signalling and inter-locking, building, locomotive, carriage and wagon, electrical, specifications.

There are also Railway Users' Consultative Committees at the zonal, regional and national level. There is a Time Tables Committee, Suburban Railway Users' Consultative Committee, Passenger Amenities Committee, Catering Supervisory Committee, Book-Stall Committee. A Public Co-operative Committee consisting of members from National Railway Users' Consultative Council and members of Parliament was formed to combat crime. Zonal Parliamentary Committees have been constituted which meet the respective General Managers of the Zonal Railways in company with the Railway Minister and the Railway Board.

There are Railway Service Commissions in Bombay, Calcutta, Allahabad and Madras.

There is a training college for railway officers and staff at Baroda and 50 Training Schools.

There is a Railway Testing and Research Centre at Lucknow and a sub-centre at Chittaranjan mainly to help in the promotion of self-sufficiency in railway stores.

On May 20, 1959, the engine and four coaches next to it of No. 5 Up North Bank Express on the North East Frontier Railway derailed and capsized. The accident occurred between Sonali and Jhana stations at 12-24 a.m. This resulted in the death of one person and grievous and simple injuries to 4 and 33 persons respectively. The approximate cost of damage to railway property was Rs. 63,100. The Government Inspector held that the accident was caused by the tampering of the track by some person or persons unknown.

On August 13, 1959, at about 11·37 p.m. while No. 2 Down Kalka Mail was on the run between Khurwabad Road and Shiri Sagar Road stations of the Eastern Railway, the engine and the first coaches derailed, resulting in grievous injuries to two persons and simple injuries to seven others. The total cost of damage to railway property was estimated at Rs. 1,11,000. The Government Inspector attributed this accident also to the tampering of the track by some unknown persons.

On August 20, 1959 at about 11-53 p.m., No. 3 Up Howrah-Madras mail derailed causing minor injuries to nine persons. The train was running between Chinna Ganjam and Uppugundur stations of the Southern Railway. The total cost of damage to railway property was about Rs. 8,800. The accident was, according to the Government Inspector, caused by the removal of fish plates and fish bolts from two rail joints and the keys from one rail by some unknown persons.

On October 20, 1959, at about 8 p.m. No. 2 Down Agra-Allahabad Passenger, while being admitted on the loop line at Bidanpur station of Northern Railway, collided head-on with the Up Ratlam Goods Special which was standing on the same loop line, resulting in the death of three persons, grievous injuries to six others and minor injuries to 27 persons. The cost of damage to railway property amounted to Rs. 76,900. The collision was caused by the violation of rules by the railway staff.

On November 18, 1959, the engine and four coaches next to it of No. 14 Up Passenger train derailed between Malkera and Mohuda stations of the South Eastern Railway resulting in minor injuries to 10 persons. The damage was estimated at Rs. 66,000. The derailment was due to pieces of ballast stones having been placed on the rails by some unknown person or persons.

BUDGET SPEECH

Below we give relevant points from the speech which the Railway Minister made while presenting the 1961-62 budget on Feb. 15, 1961:

The allotment made to the Railways for the Second Plan was Rs. 1,121·5 crores, inclusive of a provision up to Rs. 15 crores to be made available to Posts and Telegraphs and Power supply authorities in connection with the Railway Electrification Projects. The Railways spent about Rs. 855 crores in the first four years of the Plan, representing 76 per cent of the total allocation, and expect to spend practically the entire balance in the current year. The total foreign exchange expenditure in the Second Plan, it is expected, will be limited to about Rs. 332 crores, against an original provision of Rs. 425 crores—later revised to Rs. 385 crores. The saving is due largely to significant developments in the manufacture of railway equipment in India.

The Railways, in their endeavour to achieve the physical targets of the Second Plan, have had to accommodate the increasing costs of labour and material within the Plan provision. The Railways will make a gross contribution of about Rs. 480 crores, covering expenditure on open line works revenue and on expenditure chargeable to the Depreciation Reserve Fund and Development Fund.

The target of 800 miles for the construction of new lines in the Second Plan will be fully reached. This represents mainly the requirements of the Steel and Coal Industries and the operational requirements of the Railways themselves.

Doubling of track over 800 miles is expected to be completed, and substantial progress has been made on another 500 miles. Several large new yards, involving some 200 miles of track, to serve the steel plants and coalfields, have been brought into commission. Works for increasing the capacity of various sections have been completed.

Against an electrification programme for over 1,400 miles which had been drawn up, about 500 miles in the Eastern region, on routes serving the coal and steel belts, will be substantially completed in the Second Plan.

Bridges over the Ganga and the Gandak, have been completed—the former well ahead of schedule—thus facilitating communications across these rivers. The work on the birdge across the Brahmaputra, which will improve the communications with, and in, the Assam region, is proceeding vigorously. The bridge is likely to be completed in 1962 as programmed.

About 8,000 miles were programmed for track renewal in the Second Plan period. There may be only a relatively small shortfall in this programme.

The Rolling Stock fleet has been augmented by some 2,100 locomotives, about 8,500 coaches and about one lakh of wagons.

The Second Plan provided, in continuation of the First Plan, for the replacement of assets which were in arrears for over a decade. It also provided for an increase in passenger traffic by 15 per cent by the end of the Plan period, and for specific increases in freight traffic for the three basic industries, viz. coal, steel and cement and a small increase in other miscellaneous goods traffic.

Passenger traffic is likely to exceed the Second Plan target of 15 per cent increase. The increase is expected to be of the order of 25 per cent.

The net ton miles, which is the recognised and correct index of transport performance, will increase from 36,000 millions, at the beginning of the Second Plan, to 54,000 millions at the end of the Plan. This is an increase of about 50 per cent even though, in terms of total originating traffic, the Railways will lift 8 million tons less than the target of 162 millions; part of the decrease in tonnage lifted has been due to uncontrollable factors already referred to. This increase of 50 per cent in ton miles has been handled with additions only of 29 per cent and 26 per cent in the wagon holdings and in tractive effort of locomotives respectively. This reflects the increasing operational efficiency of the Railways.

The Committee on Transport Policy and Co-ordination set up in this connection, under the Chairmanship of Shri K. C. Neogy, has just completed its first phase of examination and submitted its interim report.

Revised Estimates for 1960-61

The Revised Estimate for Passenger Earnings has now been placed at Rs. 130·97 crores, against Rs. 125·50 crores in the Budget. Increases of about Rs. 2 crores are also anticipated under 'other Coaching Earnings', based on current trends, and of Rs. 1·33 crores under 'Sundries'—the latter due largely to expansion of departmental catering. As regards 'Goods', additional earnings of Rs. 41 crores over the earnings for 1959–60 had been budgetted. But the present assessment is that, for various reasons including the partial all-India strike of Central Government employees in July 1960, goods earnings may amount only to about Rs. 289·5 crores, or an increase of Rs. 29 crores over 1959–60 figures. In the result, the Revised Estimate of Gross Traffic Receipts is Rs. 458 crores, against the Budget Estimate of Rs. 464·50 crores, or a decrease of Rs. 6·50 crores. The shortfall under Goods Earnings has been made up partly by the increase in passenger and other earnings.

The net figure of Ordinary Working Expenses for the current year is expected to register a saving of about half a crore of rupees, from the Budget figure of Rs. 326·90 crores. This is due to sustained control over expenditure, as a result of which the expenses have been regulated from time to time with reference to the volume of traffic actually handled. There have been increases in the price of coal on two occasions during the year. The cost of implementing the recommendations of the Pay Commission has also increased as a result of Government's decision to make cash payments even for the period 1st July 1959 to 31st October 1959, instead of making ex-gratia credits to the employees' Provident Fund accounts as originally contemplated; consequential payments in the shape of Government contribution to Provident Fund will add to expenditure.

The Revised Estimate of net expenditure on Works, Machinery and Rolling Stock during 1960–61 has been placed at Rs. 237·48 crores—an increase of Rs. 14·37 crores over the Budget Grant. The additional provision, which is covered by Supplementary Demands, is to meet the requirements according to the latest anticipations in regard to deliveries of materials and re-phasing of Plan works.

Goods earnings for 1961–62 have been budgetted on an anticipated additional traffic of about 15 million tons over 1960–61. This has been done keeping in view a total increase of about 90 million tons in the Third Plan period as a whole, but allowing at the same time for the heavier preponderance of low-rated traffic expected to be carried in the Third Plan which will have the effect of increasing the proportion of working expenses to gross earnings. With a small increase provided under passenger traffic and taking the effect of the merger of passenger tax, the gross traffic receipts are expected to be about Rs. 499 crores. After the merger of passenger tax in passenger fares, a payment of Rs. 12·5 crores per annum in lieu will have to be made to the General Revenues. Allowing for this, the gross traffic receipts would be Rs. 486·5 crores in effect, against Rs. 458 crores anticipated in the Revised Estimates of the current year, or an effective increase of Rs. 28·5 crores. There will be no revision of passenger fares, nor will there be any revision of freight rates generally. But the special surcharge at present levied on Small consignments of goods will be raised from 10 per cent to 20 per cent, primarily to further discourage the movements of such consignments by rail, which involve disproportionately greater cost on account of poor loadability and the additional attention and care required in transit. The additional revenue anticipated from this is about Rs. 50 lakhs per year. For similar reason, it has been decided that the minimum distance charged for coal will be the charge for 70 kilometers, instead of 42 kilometers as at present. Coal moving for shorter distances will be charged at a minimum of Rs. 5 per tonne, instead of Rs. 4·25 to Rs. 4·98 as at present. The additional revenue expected from this minor adjustment will be quite small.

The Budget Estimate for Works, Machinery and Rolling Stock, including Open Line Works Revenue, has been placed at Rs. 260 crores, or roughly a fifth of the Third Plan provision for the Railways. This provides for about Rs. 3 crores as usual for Railway Users' amenities and about Rs. 10 crores for staff amenities and staff quarters. The details of the provision of Rs. 260 crores are given in the relevant portions of the Explanatory Memorandum on the Budget.

Indigenous Manufacture and Self-Sufficiency

The Railways have been following a steady policy of indigenous production of Rolling Stock and other Railway equipment. The progress made is reflected by the reduction in the foreign exchange expenditure in the Railways' Second Plan, from Rs. 425 crores to Rs. 332 crores. The foreign exchange content of the Railways' Third Plan is expected to be only about Rs. 186 crores.

The Development Cell of the Railway Board continues to function in close liaison with the Development Wing of the Commerce & Industry Ministry. During the current year, indigenous capacity for the manufacture of several new items, including Centre Buffer Couplers and Brake Regulators, was established. The manufacture of steel fire boxes for loco boilers, mechanical handling equipment, mechanical stokers, superheater elements and vacuum operating gear for turn-tables, is being undertaken in the country. With the self-sufficiency achieved in the indigenous production of mechanical signalling equipment, the manufacture of electric signalling equipment has been started. The design and manufacture of a Motor Trolly, at a cost of about half the imported cost, have been taken up.

The Chittaranjan Locomotive Works produced 173 Broad-Gauge steam locomotives in 1959-60 and are expected to produce 164 locomotives in the current year and the same number in the next year. The small reduction in outturn is due to the initial adjustments necessitated by the undertaking of the manufacture of Electric Locomotives as well. The additional capacity, which is being developed in the Works, is designed for building approximately 60 electric locomotives per year. The mechanical portion of these will be fully manufactured in Chittaranjan; the electrical equipment will be ultimately manufactured and supplied by "Heavy Electricals", Bhopal. The anticipated outturn of such electric locomotives in 1961-62 is 20. Work is progressing also on the Steel Foundry at Chittaranjan, with 7,000 ton capacity, but with scope for expansion to 10,000 tons per annum.

TELCO delivered 105 locomotives in 1959-60. 100 are expected to be received in the current year, and 25 in the two months of next year up to 31st May 1961, i.e. up to the end of the present 16-year agreement with Messrs. TELCO. In view of the continuing requirement of Metre Gauge steam locomotives, even allowing for some tapering off as a result of dieselisation of some sections, it has been decided to continue to avail of the capacity built up in TELCO. An order has accordingly been placed on them for 325 Metre Gauge locomotives, to be supplied in the period from 1st June 1961 to 31st March 1966, which will more or less cover the Third Five Year Plan. The price of a locomotive delivered by TELCO in the period 1958-60 (for a lot of 200) was fixed by an independent Arbitrator at Rs. 3,80,917 per unit. The price for deliveries in the period 1st April 1960 to 31st May 1961, under the present contract, will be Rs. 3,78,526. The price for the post-contractual supply of 325 locomotives in 5 years will be Rs. 3,80,750, which is less than the price awarded by the Arbitrator.

The Integral Coach Factory, which turned out 448 coaches in 1959-60, is expected to produce 620 coaches in 1960-61 and 650 coaches in 1961-62, as a result of progressively increasing second shift operation. The permanent furnishing unit attached to the factory is expected to be completed by the middle of 1962, with a planned capacity for furnishing about 400 coaches per year on single shift working. There is also a programme of diversifying the production in the Integral Coach Factory during the Third Plan, by assigning to it the production of Metre Gauge integral third class coaches, motor and parcel vans, Broad-Gauge Electric Multiple Unit coaches, and Rail-Cars of all gauges. The production of coaches in the Integral Coach Factory and in the Hindustan Aircraft will naturally result in tapering off of coach building in the Railway Workshops. The capacity released will be utilised progressively for additional items of production which are being planned. Capacity for the production of six electric multiple unit coaches per month has been established in Jessop's Factory at Calcutta.

For the manufacture of diesel locos, it has been decided, on further consideration, to set up a new manufacturing unit in the public sector. The detailed project report is under preparation.

Wagon building capacity in the country is progressively increasing, with new firms coming into the field.

The prospect of Indian Railways entering the export market for Rolling Stock—has taken more concrete shape. We have been able to quote, through the agency of the Special Export Promotion Cell of the State Trading Corporation, competitive prices for I.C.F. built coaches, in response to global tender enquiries issued by the Pakistan Railways and by the Argentine Government Railways. The prices quoted by us are the lowest—taking the quotations for broad-gauge and metre gauge coaches together—in response to the Pakistan Railways' global tender and second lowest in response to Argentine Railways' tender.

A D.C. Electric Locomotive of 3,600 H.P. has been designed entirely as an indigenous effort. Ten such locomotives are under manufacture in Chittaranjan, the delivery of which will commence in a few months; only the electrical equipment for these has had to be imported. Seven proto-type Diesel Locomotives incorporating the "Suri Transmission" are under manufacture in West Germany.

In addition to the design of two and three tier sleeper coaches applicable both to wooden bodies and integral type, the design of a general purpose wagon has been finalised, after extensive tests for strength, safety and stability.

The concession of reduction in railway freight rates is being extended where necessary, as in the past year, as part of the efforts to step up exports. A number of proposals, including those made on the basis of requests from Trade, were considered by this Committee, and concessions were given to 13 additional items. This has raised the total number of such commodities to 38.

Amenities for Railway Users: During 1959-60, 192 new trains were introduced—165 on the broad gauge, 25 on the metre gauge and 2 on the narrow gauge; the run of 124 trains was extended—93 on the broad-gauge and 31 on the metre gauge. The consequential increases in the daily passenger train mileage were 9,814 on the broad-gauge, 2,932 on the metre gauge and 64 on the narrow gauge. During the current year, up to 1st December, 1960, 76 new trains were introduced—58 on the broad-gauge and 18 on the metre-gauge; the run of 56 trains was extended—42 on the broad-gauge and 14 on the metre gauge. The resultant increases, in the daily passenger train mileages, were 4,620 on the broad-gauge and 1,701 on the metre gauge. The seat-miles operated in 1959-60—excluding suburban electric multiple unit services—exceeded the 1955-56 figures by 11·3 per cent on broad gauge and 9·6 per cent on the metre gauge; it is estimated that there has been a further small increase of about 1 per cent in the year 1960-61.

A weekly Janata Express train was introduced from 1st April 1960 between Hardwar and Varanasi. From 1st October 1960, a bi-weekly Janata Express train was introduced between Bombay (V.T.) and Howrah via Allahabad and Patna. The runs of weekly Janata Expresses between Howrah/Varanasi and Hardwar were extended to Dehra Dun. The frequency of Janata trains running between Delhi and Ahmedabad was increased from tri-weekly to daily.

The facility of providing 3-tier sleeper coaches with equal number of berths and seats, in the Third Class, has been extended to the metre gauge on trains having runs of over 450 kilometers.

The amount set apart for amenities for staff in 1961-62 is Rs. 23·91 crores (New hospitals, dispensaries etc. Rs. 1·03 crores; New schools, additions to existing schools Rs. 18·69 lakhs; new institutes, rest houses, reading rooms etc., Rs. 18·19 lakhs; improvement of health and welfare works, maternity centres Rs. 19·59 lakhs; cooling arrangements for workshops etc. Rs. 9·73 lakhs; provision and improvement of sanitation, water supply etc. Rs. 65·89 lakhs; provision for officers' quarters Rs. 33·93 lakhs; improvements and alterations to existing quarters Rs. 51·79 lakhs; Quarters for Class III and Class IV staff Rs. 8·65 crores; other works Rs. 66·67 lakhs; medical expenses Rs. 4·17 crores; health and welfare services Rs. 3·84 crores; education Rs. 2·82 crores; canteen and other staff amenities Rs. 55·08 lakhs.

Third Five Year Plan

The tentative allocation for the Railways, Third Five Year Plan is Rs. 1,255 crores, including Rs. 35 crores for inventories. This is based on an increase in originating traffic from 154 million tons to 235 million tons, but does not include certain projects under consideration which were not originally indicated to the Railways. Of the anticipated increase in goods traffic during the Third Plan, more than 75 per cent is accounted for by the targets fixed for industrial production of coal, steel, cement, and iron ore. An increase in passenger traffic is provided for to the extent of 15 per cent only, as was provided in the Second Plan.

The Railways have been set the task of carrying an increase in traffic from 54,000 million ton miles to 93,000 million ton miles or about 39,000 million ton miles more annually, which is more than double the increase that was achieved in the Second Plan. The implementation of the Railways' Third Plan is expected to result in the acquiring of about 1,700 locomotives, 7,800 coaching vehicles and 1,10,000 wagons—including replacement requirements. Double tracking of about 1,600 miles is envisaged, also remodelling of yards, opening of new crossing stations, provision of additional loops, etc. There is also provision for centralised Traffic Control on the Siliguri-Amingaon section of the Northeast Frontier Railway. This system will be extended to other sections as conditions warrant.

Of the 1,100 miles expected to be electrified during the Third Plan, the sections carried over from the Second Plan will be assigned priority. Thereafter, electrification will be expanded to meet the increasing density of traffic on important routes. In the matter of construction of new lines, the Planning Commission have so far allotted Rs. 120 crores. This will provide for approximately 1,160 miles, representing lines essentially required either in connection with the Railways' operational needs or in connection with the development of industries and mineral resources. The latter include 200 miles for development of new coal fields and about 50 miles for a new line to serve the proposed port at Haldia.

REVIEW OF 1959-60

The main items are given in the table at the beginning of this article. Below we give some more points. The comparison whenever made is with figures for 1958-59:—

The Government Railways carried 8·96 million tons more of originating freight traffic and 93 million more passengers than in 1958-59.

The average passenger train miles per day had increased by 3,320 on the broad gauge and by 1,366 on the metre gauge in 1959-60.

The number of passengers originating as well as passenger miles in Government Railways increased from 1,422 to 1,515 million and from 42,203 to 46,066 million respectively.

The Government Railways did during the year 6·82 million more train miles (excluding departmental) or an increase of 3·17 per cent as compared with 1958-59.

Passenger train miles increased by 1·63 per cent. As compared to 1958-59, the percentage of trains not losing time to the total improved from 78·29 to 84·73 on the broad gauge and from 80·62 to 81·95 on the metre gauge.

Goods train mileage totalled 96·86 million, representing an increase of 5·23 per cent over 1958-59. The average freight load hauled by each train increased on the broad gauge by 8 tons from 613 to 621 and on the metre gauge by 9 tons from 274 to 283.

The number of wagons loaded on the broad gauge during 1959-60 was 5,90,637, an increase of 373,125 wagons or 6·75 per cent over 1958-59. On the metre gauge the figure was 3,484,423 or 5·45 per cent more than 1958-59. The mileage performed daily on an average by a wagon had increased from 45·6 to 47·6 miles on the broad gauge and from 28·8 to 30·3 miles on the metre gauge in 1959–60. The net ton miles per day also recorded increases from 573 to 593 on the broad gauge and from 211 to 230 on the metre gauge.

The average number of engines in use daily increased by 0·94 per cent on the broad gauge but decreased by 0·39 per cent on the metre gauge during 1959–60.

The percentage of engines under or awaiting repairs decreased from 15·3 to 14·9 on the broad gauge and from 15·3 to 14·4 on the metre gauge during 1959–60.

Net ton miles per locomotive daily in use showed increases on both the gauges, but those on line recorded increase on the metre gauge and decrease on the broad gauge as compared with 1958–59.

Engine user in terms of engine miles per day per engine on line, that is, inclusive of the time under repairs, etc., has registered a slight increase from 84 to 85 on the broad gauge, but there was no change on the metre gauge.

Second Five Year Plan: The Government Railways carried 8·96 million tons more of originating freight traffic and 93 million more passengers than in 1958–59.

Self-Sufficiency: The year saw yet another step toward self-sufficiency in rolling stock. At the Chittaranjan Locomotive works, the production was 164 W.G. locomotives and 9 W.T. locomotives making a total of 1,006 locomotives since the commencement of production in November 1950.

The production of coaches at the Integral Coach Factory, Perambur, was 448 making a total of 1,150 coaches since the beginning of production in October 1955.

The number of rolling stock received during the year was: Locomotives 320; coaching stock (in units) 1,769; wagons (4 wheelers) 9,917. The targets fixed for the Plan and the total number of stock received upto 1959–60 respectively were: Locomotives (2,161; 1,813); coaching stock (in units) (8,708; 6,091); wagons (4 wheelers) (111,739; 85,529).

Track renewals: A total of 910 miles of rails and 975 miles of sleepers were removed on the broad gauge and 956 miles of rails and 944 miles of sleepers were renewed on the metre gauge, thus making a total of 2,767 miles of rails and 2,864 miles of sleepers renewals on the broad gauge and 2,179 miles of rails and 2,760 miles of sleepers renewals on metre gauge since the beginning of the Second Plan.

New bridges: (a) Brahmaputra Bridge: The construction work of this bridge costing Rs. 9·88 crores across the Brahmaputra river between Amingaon and Pandu in Assam was progressing well. Seven main piers and the shore pier at the Amingaon end were completed. The fabrication of well curbs and strokes for the remaining four main piers was almost complete.

(b) Gandak Bridge: The overall progress on the new Gandak Bridge for double metre gauge tracks, estimated to cost about Rs. 1·93 crores, was 77 per cent.

Electrification: The Howrah-Burdwan and the Sheoraphuli–Tarakeshwar sections had been completed. Work was in full swing on the other sections. It was expected that all the major works in connection with the electrification of these sections would be completed by the end of the Plan. 314 stations were electrified during the year. 779 stations were electrified in the first four years of the Plan. About 380 more were expected to be electrified during 1960–61.

New lines: 164·90 miles of new lines were opened to traffic during 1959–60. Since the commencement of the Plan 620·01 miles of new lines have been opened to traffic upto 31st March 1960. Work was in progress on another 749·54 miles of new lines.

Foreign Aid: The World Bank gave a loan of $50 million (Rs. 23·81 crores) which became effective from 17th September 1959. The loan covered payments for locomotives, coaches, and wagons with their parts. Upto March 31, 1960 a sum of Rs. 6·68 crores was withdrawn and the balance was to be withdrawn by June 30, 1960.

Two loans amounting to $40 million (Rs. 19·04 crores) and $35 million (Rs. 16·66 crores) were sanctioned by the U.S.A. Development Loan Fund for the modernisation and expansion of the Indian Railway System.

During the year spares for diesel rail cars worth £(A)23,821 (Rs. 2·54 lakhs) from Australia and wooden sleepers valued Canadian $3·9 million (Rs. 18·57 lakhs) from Canada were received under the Colombo Plan. Bearing plate bars and trough bars worth $6·4 million (Rs. 304·76 lakhs) were also received under T.C.M. Aid of U.S.A.

Passenger Amenities: It was decided to provide sleeping accommodation to those travelling more than 500 miles free of additional cost. A new design of sleeper coach with equal seating and sleeping capacity, namely 75 in the broad gauge and 64 in the metre gauge was evolved. This facility was introduced on Delhi-Bombay Central Janata Express (daily) and Madras-Howrah mails (daily) on the broad gauge and on Delhi-Ahmedabad express (bi-weekly) and Poona-Bangalore mails (bi-weekly) on the metre gauge. The facilities of holiday camping coach was extended to Udaipur station on the Western Railway from April 1959 thus increasing the number of stations where such coaches were available to ten.

The scheme of setting apart of accommodation for third class passengers by distance zones continued to be tried by the various railways on six pairs of trains.

Departmental catering now functions at 104 stations and 20 dining cars.

Passenger train mileage has increased from 105 million in 1951–52 to 125 million in 1959–60. During the Second Five Year Plan additional passenger transport capacity of 23 per cent has been provided on the metre gauge against 10 per cent on the broad gauge. Census of occupation of trains in third class (non-suburban trains) is being taken on all railways to ascertain the extent of overcrowding on different trains and over different sections. The position in 1959 as compared to 1955 showed that overcrowding on the metre gauge had dropped from 30 per cent to 16 per cent and on the broad gauge from 16 per cent to 13 per cent.

During 1959–60, 852 broad gauge, 387 metre gauge and 48 narrow gauge lower class coaches of indigenous manufacture were placed in service.

Staff Benefits: The relations between the Railway Administration and labour were generally cordial. The permanent negotiating machinery continued to function. During the year 350 joint committees of management and staff at unit and higher levels were set up on all railways.

Conversion of existing standard drawings into metric units was just started. On the mechanical side, over 900 part drawings for locomotive components were prepared in metric dimensions and issued, so also the drawings for making of wagons and calibration of locomotive tenders in metric units.

The standardization of technical railway terminology in Hindi made further progress. The pamphlet on traffic terms was published and circulated to the railways. A preliminary examination of railway terms pertaining to civil and mechanical engineering was completed. A tentative Hindi translation of the Manual of Railway Pension Rules, 1950, the Accounts Code Volume I and II, Establishment Code Volume I etc., was completed. ROADS

IT is estimated that India in 1914 had 169,000 miles of roads. Against this, the mileage in April 1959 was 393,165 made up of 139,106 miles of metalled roads and 254,059 miles of unmetalled roads.

ROAD FUND

The first all-India move for road development came in 1928 when the Road Development Committee presided over by the late M. R. Jayakar recommended the creation of a Road Development Fund out of a two-anna share per gallon of the proceeds of the import and excise duties on motor spirit, whose unexpended balances should not lapse at the end of the financial year. The share was later raised to two and a half annas per gallon.

Upto the end of March 1958 total receipts in the Central Road Fund since its inception were about Rs. 65·87 crores and those in the Central Road Fund Reserve since its inception were about Rs. 13 crores.

In the beginning of 1959 the annual revenue accruing to the Fund amounted to roughly Rs. 5¼ crores including credits to the Special Reserve of about Rs. 1 crore per annum. For the first 15 years after its inauguration, the Central Road Fund was the main source of revenue for the construction of new roads or the improvement and modernisation of existing ones. However in 1959-60 this Fund represented hardly 4 per cent of the total tax revenue from motor transport, 10 per cent of the total expenditure on original road works provided for in the Second Five Year Plan and 6 per cent of the gross expenditure on roads inclusive of the maintenance cost of the road system.

On the administrative side roads except for the small mileage of National Highways described later are a State subject and may be divided into two main classes, State Roads under the Public Works Department and Local Roads in charge of local bodies.

NAGPUR PLAN

In December 1943 the Chief Engineers of the various States met in conference at Nagpur and evolved a road plan based on the minimum needs of the country. Adopting as their objective the very modest proposition that no village in a well-developed agricultural area should remain more than 5 miles from a metalled road, the Chief Engineers recommended the increase of Indian Union's road mileage from 220,000 to 331,000 of which 123,000 miles would be metalled.

The net increase in road mileage under this Plan, now known as the Nagpur Plan works out at 50 per cent

Five-year programmes for commencement from April 1947 and representing varying proportions of the Nagpur scheme were prepared by the States for their respective areas as part of their post-war reconstruction programmes.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

These programmes, exclusive of National Highways were estimated to cost nearly Rs. 120 crores over a five-year period, and were intended to embrace the construction or improvement of 80,000 miles of roads.

Progress in the implementation of this post-war reconstruction Plan was however most disappointing.

During the eight years ending March 1951, India's road mileage increased by just 28,500 miles or roughly 13 per cent. Thus at the beginning of the First Five Year Plan, India had 249,000 miles of roads, of which 98,000 miles were metalled and the remaining 151,000 miles unmetalled.

FIVE YEAR PLANS

At the beginning of the Five Year Plan, the mileages remaining to be constructed, in order to reach the targets of the Nagpur Road Plan, were 25,454 miles of metalled roads and 57,037 miles unmetalled roads, making a total of 82,491 miles in all.

A provision of Rs. 156 crores was made for road development during the First Five Year Plan period ending March 1956. Physical achievements during the 5-year period consist of 24,071 miles of new metalled roads, and 44,088 miles of new unmetalled roads, making 68,159 miles of new roads in all. In addition 17,311 miles of existing roads were also improved to better standards. Of the new roads, 23,900 miles were constructed by Public Works Departments or Local Boards, while 44,259 miles were constructed by Community Project and N.E.S. Administrations.

The provision for road development in the Second Five Year Plan was Rs. 244 crores, against Rs. 156 crores in the First Plan. Details are as under :—

(Rs. in Crores)

	2nd 5-Year Plan April 1956 to March 1961	1st 5-Year Plan April 1951 to March 1956
National Highways ..	45	27·00
State Roads financed by the Union Government	7	4·24
Central Aid for roads of inter-State or economic importance ..	16	10·00
State Roads	151	89·75
Central Road Fund ..	25	25·00
Total ..	244	155·99

During the Second Plan it was expected that 22,000 miles of metalled roads and 67,000 miles of unmetalled roads would be added to the road system, thereby exceeding the Nagpur Plan in terms of total mileages, taking India as a whole; but the actual position will be that the length of district and village roads will be slightly larger than the minimum size laid down in the Nagpur Plan while the arterial roads comprising National Highways and State Highways will be short of the Nagpur targets. Moreover at the end of the Second Plan there will be hundreds of unbridged river crossings whose number, on National Highways alone, will be 80. Again 25 per cent of the road system representing village roads constructed in the community development and N.E.S. blocks will be sub-standard roads and very often mere tracks with no arrangement for their annual maintenance or repairs.

Extra-Municipal Road Mileage

Nagpur Plan Targets of 1943

(In miles)

	Nagpur Plan targets	Anticipated actuals by 1960-61
National Highways ..	20,000	14,880

Other District Roads	70,000	78,300
Village Roads ..	138,000	186,520
Total	331,000	409,900

The road mileage in the country compares very poorly with that of other countries in relation to the area of the land and its population. Over 60 per cent of India's mileage is unmetalled and unsuited for all-weather traffic.

NATIONAL HIGHWAYS†

The Central Government, as part of their contribution towards post-war development accepted liability for the construction and maintenance of the National Highways with effect from 1st April 1947.

On 1st April, 1947 the total length of the roads provisionally accepted as national highways was 13,400 miles. Consequent on partition and the integration of the former princely States with the Indian Union the total length of these roads increased to about 13,800 miles. On the 1st of April 1947 the selected national highway routes had approximately 1,600 miles of missing road links and thousands of missing culverts and bridges out of which about 150 were bridges on large rivers. In addition, about 9,000 miles of these roads had low-grade surface.

During the 5 years ending March 1956, 636 miles of missing links and a large number of culverts and bridges including 30 major bridges were constructed, about 4,000 miles of existing sections improved and provided with one lane asphalted carriageway, and about 400 miles of the improved sections made fit for two-lane traffic.

National Highways include the following roads:—1. The Grand Trunk Road from Calcutta to Amritsar via Benaras, Kanpur, Agra and Delhi; 2. The Agra-Bombay Road; 3. The Bombay-Bangalore-Madras Road; 4. The Madras-Calcutta Road; 5. The Calcutta-Nagpur-Bombay Road; 6. The Benaras-Nagpur-Hyderabad-Bangalore-Cape Comorin Road; 7. The Delhi-Ahmedabad-Bombay Road; 8. The Road from Ambala to Kandla with a branch Road to Porbander; 9. The Hindustan-Tibet Road from Ambala to Tibet border via Simla; 10. The Delhi-Lucknow-Gorakhpur-Muzzafarpur Road with a branch road to Nepal border; 11. The Assam Access Road; 12. The Assam Trunk Road on the South Bank of the Brahmaputra; 13. The road branching off from the Assam Trunk Road towards the Burma border through the State of Manipur.

Targets fixed for the development of National Highways during the Second Five Year Plan from April 1956 to March 1961, and the progress achieved during the four years ending March 1960 are as follows :—

	Targets for 5 years ending 31st March 1961.	Work done during 4 years ending 31st March 1960.
Construction of missing links, Miles ..	700	590
Construction of major bridges, Numbers ..	40	34
Improvements to existing lengths, Miles	3,500	2,925
Widening of roads to two-lane carriageways, Miles ..	1,200	775

In March 1960, the following was the position of the National Highway system: Length with one-lane asphalt or cement-concrete carriageway 11,300 miles; Length with 2-lane asphalt or cement-concrete carriageway 2,180 miles; Water bound macadam or other low grade surface 1,000 miles; Length of missing links 400 miles. Total 14,880 miles; Number of major bridges to be constructed 80.

It is expected that by the end of the Third Five Year Plan in 1966 the National Highway System will be fully black topped, but there will be 33 major unbridged river crossings.

Some of the important works completed on national highways so far are the Barakar and Poon bridges and the rail-road bridge over the Ganga near Mokameh in Bihar, the Kathjuri and Kuakhai bridges in Orissa, the Mahi bridge in Bombay, the Pennar and Champavati bridges in Andhra Pradesh, Pugalur and Palar bridges in Madras, Beyne and Ghagger bridges in the Punjab, Gheesh and Leesh bridges in West Bengal, Bygool, Bhakra and Betwa bridges in U.P. and the Chambal bridge near Dholpur in Madhya Pradesh.

Among the important works now in progress is the bridge over the Gautami-Godavari in Andhra estimated to cost over Rs. 1 crore. It is one of the biggest prestressed concrete bridges under construction in India at present, with 48 spans of 160 ft., foundations going 100 ft. below the bed level. Other important works in hand include the construction of a motorable road from Narkanda to Chini on the Hindustan-Tibet Highway, an all-weather road from Bombay to Ahmedabad, Express Highways from Bombay to Thana and Borivli, a bridge at Gurhmukteshwar in U.P., by-passes for the benefit of through traffic at Willingdon (Calcutta), Ahmedabad, Ludhiana, Mathura, Kurnool and Madurai; and the Jawhar tunnel on the road to Srinagar. The Jawhar tunnel, estimated to cost nearly Rs. 6 crores is intended to provide all weather communication facilities between the Kashmir valley and the rest of the country. The western tube of the tunnel was thrown open to traffic in December 1958 while work on the eastern tube is to be completed in 1961.

The west coast national highway is expected to be completed by the end of the 3rd Plan. Against the total estimated cost of Rs. 11·64 crores an expenditure of Rs. 253·39 lakhs was incurred up to end of 1959-60.

The National Highways are distributed over the length and breadth of the country on a fairly uniform basis. The actual National Highway mileages in the various States in 1959 were as follows :—

States: Andhra Pradesh 1,412; Assam 796; Bihar 1,122; Bombay* 2,192; Madhya Pradesh 1,404; Madras 1,050; Orissa 851; Punjab 795; Uttar Pradesh 1,423; West Bengal 788; Jammu and Kashmir 328; Mysore 536; Rajasthan 450; Kerala 260.

* Bilingual. † India will receive a 50-year interest-free loan of $60 million (Rs. 29 crores) for highway development under an agreement signed with the I.D.A. on June 21, 1961.

Union Territories: Delhi 44; Himachal Pradesh 222; Manipur 98. Total mileage: 13,810.

NEW ROAD PLAN

Now that the Nagpur Roads Plan of 1943 has been completed in some respects, a new assessment of India's needs for the next 20 years has been undertaken by the Chief Engineers at the instance of the Government of India and a new Road Plan has been prepared for execution during the 20-year period from 1961 to 1981.

The broad outline of the plan is to raise the mileage of roads from 4·10 lakhs in 1961 to 6·57 lakhs by 1981 with provision for two lane carriage-ways on National Highways. The Plan aims at increasing the intensity of roads from 0·32 to 0·52 per square mile of territory. When the plan is completed the average distance from a village in an agricultural area to a metalled road will be reduced from five to three miles and the distance to an unmetalled road will be reduced from two to 1½ miles.

There is also a provision to have 1,000 miles of Expressways with limited access and also grade separation at most of the crossings.

The cost of this scheme is estimated at Rs. 5,200 crores and it is recommended should be split up between four 5-year periods as under :—

1961-62 to 1965-66	Rs. 590 crores
1966-67 to 1970-71	Rs. 1,075 ,,
1971-72 to 1975-76	Rs. 1,545 ,,
1976-77 to 1980-81	Rs. 2,000 ,,

Statement showing how the allotments in the scheme are made—for highways, District Roads and Village Roads.

	Mileage		Cost in Rs. crores (improvement and new construction)
	As expected on 1-4-1961	Targets proposed in the Plan
National Highways	14,880	32,000	980
State Highways	35,000	70,000	1,580
Major District Roads	95,200	150,000	1,360
Other District Roads	78,300	180,000	650
Villages Roads (Classified)	186,520	225,000	630
Total	409,900	657,000	5,200

A sum of Rs. 325 crores would be spent for the development of roads in the country during the 3rd Plan period out of Rs. 590 crores suggested by the Chief Engineers. Consequently India's progress towards an adequate road system for the country will now be very slow.

MOTOR VEHICLES

The number of motor vehicles in use in India in March 1959 was 547,189. In terms of the population of the country, this represents 125 vehicles per lakh of inhabitants.

The 547,189 vehicles operating in India in March 1959 were distributed among the various States as shown in the table on next page. The growth of motor vehicles in India in the past four years is about 44 per cent, the total number having increased from 3·76 lakhs in March 1955 to 5·47 lakhs in March 1959.

An estimate of the number of bullock carts and bicycles in the country puts the figures at 10 million and 4 million respectively (Nov. 1959).

NATIONALISED TRANSPORT

Programmes for nationalisation of road transport have occupied a prominent place in the plans of State Governments from 1946 onwards. In April 1951 nationalised bus services had a total fleet of about 8,000 vehicles. By the end of the First Five Year Plan, i.e., in March 1956, the total number of such vehicles increased to approximately 11,000 representing about 27 per cent of the passenger services in the country and 2 per cent of freight transport.

Nationalised bus services are estimated to cover in 1960 almost the whole of Maharashtra, Mysore and Himachal Pradesh.

No nationalisation has taken place in Tripura but in the remaining parts of the country the extent to which services have been nationalised varies from one State to another, some having started only experimental nationalisation while in others anything up to half of the bus services are under State ownership.

Uttar Pradesh, which, next to Maharashtra, has the largest nationalised fleet, operates buses on half the mileage of metalled roads of the State, spread over, more or less uniformly, from one end of the State to the other. Nationalised buses in U.P. represent a little over one-third of the total number of buses in operation. Next in importance is the area covered by the old Hyderabad State where roughly half the bus routes were operated by the nationalised services. In Travancore-Cochin, now part of Kerala, arterial routes covering a mileage of 700, out of 4,500 miles of motorable roads in Travancore and Cochin were operated by State buses. In Madras, nationalisation was confined to the limits of Madras City during the First Plan period; but in the last two years a few long distance routes have also been taken over by the State. Likewise West Bengal has nationalised transport in and around the city of Calcutta in addition to the Cooch Behar area. In Bihar, State services operate in areas around Patna, Jamshedpur, Gaya, Ranchi, Monghyr and Bhagalpur. In Orissa they are operated around Puri, Bhubaneshwar, Balasore, Berhampur and Koraput. Similarly in Punjab, Jullundur, Ambala and Amritsar are centres of nationalised services. In addition to the City of Delhi nationalisation has also taken place in parts of Assam, Madhya Pradesh and Rajasthan.

Freight transport is operated by certain State Transport organisations such as those in Assam, Maharashtra, Uttar Pradesh, Jammu & Kashmir and Himachal Pradesh. While these freight lorries as a rule operate on charter basis or on scheduled parcel services without monopoly, the State Transport in Assam has a monopoly of the truck traffic on 68 miles of roads and the entire goods traffic in Himachal Pradesh is a State monopoly.

Expansion of nationalisation during the Third Plan commencing April 1961 will be confined as in the Second Plan to passenger services. The allocations in the Second Plan were expected to increase the number of nationalised vehicles from 11,000 to 16,000. The Third Plan similarly envisages the addition of 5,000 vehicles so as to increase the nationalised fleet to 21,000 by March 1966.

TRANSPORT BODIES

The department in the Central Government which deals with the overall direction of the roads plan and co-ordination of State planning is the Roads Wing under the Ministry of Transport and Communications. The chief official is the Consulting Engineer (Road Development) who is also Joint Secretary to the Ministry of Transport and Communications.

The Roads Wing gives technical advice and arranges for the allocation of Central Road Fund reserves among the States.

An inter-State Transport Commission has been set up to develop, co-ordinate and regulate operation of motor vehicles in areas or routes common to two or more States. The present Chairman of the Commission is Mr. T. G. N. Ayyar, I.C.S.

For proper and planned development of transport as a whole and to ensure co-ordination between the various modes of transport on the one hand and the Central and State transport policies on the other, Government of India in 1958 set up three transport bodies. They are the Transport Development Council, the Road and Inland Water Transport Advisory Committee, and the Central Transport Co-ordination Committee. These replaced the Transport Advisory Council constituted in 1935, the Central Board of Transport and the Standing Committee of the Central Board of Transport.

The Transport Development Council is a high-level body to advise the Government of India on all matters of policy relating to roads, road transport as well as inland water transport. The Council will also advise on problems relating to co-ordination between different forms of transport that may be referred to it by the Government of India.

The membership of this Council is restricted to Transport Ministers of the States and Lt. Governor and Chief Commissioners of the Union Territories. From the Centre, the Ministers of Transport and Communications, Commerce and Industry and Railways, Minister of State in the Ministry of Transport and Communications, Deputy Minister of Transport and Communications and member in charge of transport in the Planning Commission are its members.

The Union Minister of Transport and Communications is the chairman of the Council and the Transport Secretary to the Government of India its Secretary. The Council will meet at least once a year.

The Road and Inland Water Transport Advisory Committee has been set up to discuss problems relating to roads, road transport and inland water transport and to make recommendations to the Transport Development Council for final decisions. The Committee consists of official and non-official members and the Minister of State in the Ministry of Transport and Communications is its chairman.

The Central Transport Co-ordination Committee has been constituted in the place of the Standing Committee of the Central Board of Transport and deals with the day-to-day transport problems confronting the different ministries of the Government of India. The Transport Secretary to the Government of India is the chairman of this Committee.

The Government of India has also prepared a pilot scheme for setting up transport co-operative societies. To begin with, two such societies have been set up one each in Delhi and Kerala. Other States in which such societies are to be formed are West Bengal, Orissa and Madras.

The objective of the scheme is twofold; to bring more vehicles on the road; and to find employment for the educated unemployed.

The co-operative societies will be under the control of the State Government. Financial assistance by way of loans will be granted to the societies by the Government of India. The cost of training of the members of the co-operative societies would also be borne by the Central Government.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

The membership of the co-operative societies will be restricted to workers, like drivers, mechanics, booking clerks, depot managers, etc.

On the basis of five persons to man one vehicle, each co-operative society will have 50 members. Each member will be required to contribute Rs. 1,000 towards the capital of the society.

Road Transport Reorganisation Committee

The Government of India in 1958 appointed a Road Transport Reorganisation Committee under the chairmanship of Mr. M. R. Masani, M.P. to recommend changes in the machinery of transport administration in the States so that road transport might be developed to meet the demands created by the country's plans of economic development.

The Masani Committee has recommended a series of measures to overcome the inhibitory factors which have hitherto retarded road transport in India, the upgrading of weight limits for vehicles on roads, the encouragement of truck-trailer combination, the grant of all-State validity to public carrier permits at the option of the applicants, liberal issue of permits for intra-state and inter-state operation, the appointment of full-fledged Transport Ministries and full-time Transport Commissioners in all States, the creation of Development Wings in the Transport Commissioners' offices, etc., etc.

The Railways have expressed concern at the prospect of long distance road transport being enabled to compete with them and a Committee to formulate an Inland Transport Policy has since been appointed by the Government of India under the chairmanship of Mr. K. C. Neogy.

OVERSEAS COMMUNICATIONS SERVICE

Allotment under the IInd Five-Year Plan: Rs. 2 crores. IIIrd Plan, including Ind. Met. Deptt. and Wireless Planning & Coordination: Rs. 5 crores (Provisional).

O.C.S. is a State activity working directly under the Ministry of Transport and Communications on commercial lines, with the Head Office at Bombay. Functions: Provision, operation and development of all facilities for telecommunications between India and outside world.

The chief administrative head is the Director General, Overseas Communications Service.

The Service has two main branches, viz. Traffic and Engineering. The Traffic branch is under the control of the Dy. Director General (Traffic) and the engineering branch is under the control of the Chief Engineer.

The Overseas Communications Service has four gateway centres for handling international communications. The Bombay Centre has its transmitting station at Dighi near Poona, receiving station at Dhond and the Central Traffic Office at Bombay. The transmitting and receiving stations as well as the Central Traffic Office are interlinked by VFT systems on land-line carrier channels.

Calcutta centre has its transmitting and receiving stations at Halishahar and Hatikanda about 30 and 36 miles respectively from the main Traffic Office at Dalhousie Square, Calcutta. This centre was inaugurated on 30th December 1955.

Delhi Centre has its main transmitting station at Kalkaji and receiving station at Chattarpur connected to the Traffic Office at N. I. C. Building, Parliament Street, New Delhi. This centre was inaugurated as a permanent centre on 6th February 1958.

Madras was a cable station but it now has a radio centre with its transmitting station at Korattur and receiving station at Padianellur connected to the Central Traffic Office in the General Post Office buildings, Madras. The radio stations of the Madras Centre were established on 5th March 1960, before which it was a cable terminal for Madras-Singapore Submarine telegraph cable.

These calls are popular with users who desire to hold telephonic conference between parties situated far apart.

Collect call facility on telephone calls between India and the U.K. was introduced on Jan. 20, 1961. Here the call is billed to the called party instead of the calling party.

Transmissions are also made on behalf of certain Press Agencies to different areas.

LEASED CHANNELS

A new type of radiotelegraph service viz. leased tele-printer channels for private customers on rental basis introduced during the year 1957 is extended further. Ten such channels are in use presently by Airline Companies. This facility provides direct means of telegraph communication between the parties. As on June 1, 1961, there were 15 leased channels.

A radio teletype circuit linking New Delhi with Tokyo for exchange of meteorological data was inaugurated in New Delhi on Jan. 10, 1961.

INTERNATIONAL TELEX

This service was first introduced in India at Bombay/Ahmedabad on 16th June 1960 by a direct link with the United Kingdom. Thereafter, this International Telex Service from Bombay and Ahmedabad has been made available to 28 other countries viz. Austria, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany (Federal Republic of), Greece, Hungary, Irish Republic, Italy, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, U.K., U.S.A., U.S.S.R, Bulgaria, German Democratic Republic, Malaya, Poland, Hongkong, Singapore and Australia.

SECOND PLAN

The Second Five-Year Plan had, with an allocation of two crores of rupees, the following long range objectives in view :—

(1) to provide expanding facilities of direct communications with more foreign centres commensurate with the growing needs of the country ;

(2) to provide improved grade and standard of service—greater mechanisation and improved modern techniques ;

(3) to provide more powerful service for Multi-Address Broadcasts for Government and Press ; and

(4) to provide leased channels to private agencies and teleprinter-call service to big business houses and for the press.

BROADCASTING

ALL-INDIA Radio has 28 stations, 35 studios and four auxiliary studio centres, 28 receiving centres, 60 transmitters in all and an education television centre at New Delhi (June 1961).

The network now covers nearly two-thirds of the country.

Short-wave transmitters are due to be added to medium-wave transmitters at a number of stations.

Thus, Bhopal, Lucknow and Hyderabad have already a 10 K/w short-wave transmitter each, Ranchi and Dharwar will have a 2 K/w transmitter each, and Srinagar and Jammu 7·5 and 1 K/w transmitters each.

All India Radio's new plan of expansion is to double the number of transmitters in the country within two years. The Bharat Electronics Ltd., Bangalore, have entered into an agreement with a Japanese firm for the manufacture of high powered (20-50 Kw) medium wave transmitters. During 1960-61, two new transmitters, 100 Kw Mw at Delhi and 20 Kw Mw at Calcutta were put into regular service. Permanent studios with office accommodation came into service at Bhopal and Poona. Additional studio facilities were provided at Trivandrum. A new programme channel, Delhi 'C' was put into commission for the Vividh Bharati programme. A 50 kW Mw transmitter was inaugurated at Tiruchirapalli providing extended coverage. A plan for the installation of 55 Mw relay transmitters and 2 sW transmitters for extension of broadcast coverage throughout the country and the provision of an additional light programme channel at most of the existing stations, were finalised.

With the accent on medium-wave transmitters, it is possible to manufacture cheap one-band receiving sets each costing Rs. 125. Valves for receiving sets, manufactured in Bharat Electronics were expected to be sent out for testing early in 1961 and the country's requirements in this field are expected to be met from local manufacture before the end of 1961. Manufacture of tape recorders has been taken up. A.I.R. has more than 300 recording machines big and small.

TELEVISION

Television service has begun as an experimental measure twice a week for an hour between 19·00 to 20·00 hrs. on Tuesdays and Fridays. At present (March 1960) only a few sets (20) supplied by UNESCO for "listener research" of educational telecasts are used in Delhi.

The average viewing audience is estimated at 150 to 200 persons per centre. As already mentioned these programmes are predominantly educational in character and meant for schools and community centres.

The licence fee for a domestic television set is Rs. 30 per annum. This covers sound-cum-vision sets. The commercial licence fee is Rs. 120 per annum, and for a school set Rs. 10 per annum. These licences are at present (Jan. 1960) issued only in the Delhi Postal Circle.

An expenditure of about Rs. 2·14 lakhs on the capital side and about Rs. 77,700 under the recurring grant was incurred till Nov. 1959 when the experiment had been in progress for about three months. In addition a capital expenditure of about Rs. 11,000 and a recurring expenditure of about Rs. 2,52,300 would, it was estimated, be incurred on this service by the end of March 1960.

An experiment in radio diffusion also called wired wireless which proved successful in the Seva Nagar Colony in New Delhi with 100 loudspeakers is now being extended to the Lody Colony with 4,000 loudspeakers.

OFFICES

All-India Radio has now a multi-storied building Akashvani Bhavan next to Broadcasting House where many offices of All-India Radio are housed.

The head of AIR is the Director-General, All-India Radio, whose office is located in Broadcasting House, Parliament Street, New Delhi.

Other officers at headquarters are : Director of News Services, Director of External Services, Chief Engineer, Deputy Directors-General. Deputy Chief Engineer, Director of Programmes, Director of Programme Planning, Director of Listener Research, Deputy Director of Administration and Assistant Directors of Administration.

AIR stations transmit for about five to ten hours a day.

This is generally split up into three transmissions, morning, afternoon and evening.

Programmes are planned by Station Directors with the assistance of the Programme Executives and Programme Assistants. Details are worked out well in advance of their scheduled dates and are published in the journals of All-India Radio.

Research and Maintenance Departments.—These two departments are located in New Delhi with regional offices in Bombay.

The Research Department deals with all technical problems, concerning reception and transmission. Special studies are undertaken on ionospheric data and forecasting transmission conditions, field strengths of short and medium wave stations, atmospheric noise levels prevalent in various parts of India, studio and recording characteristics.

The Department also maintains a field station at Todapur near Delhi where the frequencies of All-India Radio Stations are constantly checked.

The Maintenance Department handles problems which arise in the upkeep and day-to-day operation of the engineering equipment used by All-India Radio in addition to maintaining of Central Stores Depot.

There is a Staff Training School in Delhi, where on an average 180 persons from the staff of All-India Radio, programmes and administrative sides, are trained every year. From 1958, the training facility has been extended to the engineering and technical staff with the opening of a similar training school for them.

Publications.—AIR has programme journals for home services as also for External Services.

Akashvani (English), Awaz (Urdu), Sarang (Hindi), Betar Jagat (Bengali), Vani (Telugu), Vanoli (Tamil), and Nabhovani (Gujarati) are for home services.

Only the Akashvani is issued weekly, while the rest are fortnightly publications, with a large list of regular subscribers.

For the External Services, India Calling, with two versions, the Eastern and the Western, is supplemented by Arabic, Burmese, Chinese and Persian editions.

Monitoring.—Monitoring Service housed on a high point in Simla keeps track of about a hundred broadcasts a day in 9 different languages, from 23 different stations, extending to a total of nearly 20 hours. Important items of news from abroad are flashed to Delhi, to the News Division for inclusion in the news bulletins and a check is maintained on what other countries say about India and Indian problems.

Listener Research.—The primary purpose of Listener Research is to determine the listening habits and programme preferences of radio listeners by ascertaining from time to time their reactions to items broadcast.

Advisory Committees, established at the Broadcasting Stations in consultation with the State Governments, keep the respective Station Directors. All-India Radio, in touch with local public opinion in programme construction and advise them on such matters.

There is also an Advisory Committee with members from Parliament to advise the Minister for Broadcasting.

PROGRAMMES

Women's Programmes.—These are in the regional language and are broadcast from almost all the stations.

Children's Programmes.—Wherever possible the children are divided into two or three age groups. The programme is conducted or compered by an elderly character known to the children. Another elderly person usually a woman is used to assist the compere.

These are generally broadcast twice a week.

Fables, stories from classics and musical items, form the content of the programmes, and listeners are encouraged to participate.

In the rural broadcasts there is a children's day once a week.

School Broadcasts.—The school broadcasts are meant to supplement the regular curriculum of the school.

There are Educational Committees to advise the Station Director on the composition of the programme for the academic term, and these are announced in pamphlets for each term.

A Committee at the centre advises on policy.

Occasionally students from a particular class are taken to the radio station to give a performance.

The idea is that students should listen to the broadcasts while at school in the company of their teachers. There were 21 stations radiating school broadcasts (1960).

Rural Broadcasts.—While the provision of programmes is the Central responsibility, the supply of listening sets to the rural population is the responsibility of State Governments.

Supplementary or spare time occupations are suggested, and information is given on items like improved seed, new implements, sowing, crop and cattle pests and their remedies, and market rates of current agricultural produce.

Weather bulletins during the monsoon are a regular feature of the composite programme.

by subsidising State Governments for the purchase of receiving sets. The aim is to provide each village with a population of 1,000 or above, with at least one set.

The subsidy is 50 per cent of the cost of sets and its immediate acceptance is reflected in the rapid rise in the number of community receiving sets.

As part of the scheme, Government has standardised the community receiver set with the help of the radio industry and the Indian Standards Institution. It has been possible to produce such sets for Rs. 120 each and with larger bulk orders the price may go down still further.

The position as in Aug. 1960 is given in the table below:

Under the Central Government subsidy Scheme, 69,670 community sets were supplied to the State Governments till Feb. 28, 1961.

Note: Assam includes Manipur, Tripura and NEFA. The Central Circle includes Madhya Pradesh, Vindhya Pradesh areas. Punjab includes PEPSU, Bilaspur, Kashmir and Himachal Pradesh areas. Rajasthan includes Madhya Bharat, Ajmer and Bhopal areas.

Broadcasts in Naga Dialects.—The special conditions prevailing on the north-eastern frontier area make it essential to undertake broadcasting in 22 tribal dialects.

Gauhati station in that region has had to be provided with short wave transmitters.

Hindi Lessons.—For popularising Hindi in non-Hindi-speaking regions, All-India Radio devotes 15 minutes a day, five days per week, to impart instruction through the regional languages.

Anniversary Programmes.—Anniversaries of national leaders and of great musicians are now celebrated on a national scale.

National Programmes.—The Saturday National Programmes lasting ninety minutes have been quite popular. It is generally so planned that Northern and Southern (Karnatic) music alternate every Saturday. Arrangements are being made to have this item originate at other places. At present most of the Saturday concerts originate from Delhi and all stations relay them.

Talks.—Important topics of a national character are dealt with by an accepted authority in a nation-wide broadcast on Wednesdays at 8·30 p.m.

Plays, Operas.—On alternate Thursdays, a national programme of plays or operas is arranged in such a way that all stations have the same item, in their respective languages, prepared from one single script. The literature of one region is thus made available to all the other parts of the country at the same time.

Development Projects, Factories.—In order to make the country plan-minded, a feature on some of the bigger national projects is arranged once a month, and it is put out on the air simultaneously from all the stations, the script with actual effects having been supplied from Delhi.

Gandhi Prayers & Memories.—Mahatma Gandhi had his own way of saying prayers and those prayers are broadcast from all stations on Friday mornings. Also the reminiscences of men and women who had known him, immediately after the prayers.

Film Music.—AIR is now in a position to play film music which is quite popular.

Inter-Linking of Stations.—The interlinking of the regional stations is being tried as this makes it easy to maintain a uniformity of programmes, and also provide common listening when a first-rate performance is scheduled. Thus on Wednesdays, musical concerts are arranged from one of the stations in the Western Region and other stations relay it.

Prasar Geet & Sugam Sangit.—In order to provide all stations with standardised light and popular music, All-India Radio organised its own units in different regions for the production of songs. A processing plant capable of producing many discs for its own use in the first instance and for selling them to outside agencies on the lines of the BBC's Transcription Service, has been set up.

Orchestral Music.—All-India Radio also established an Orchestral Unit (Vadya-Vrinda) with two wings—one for the North Indian and the other for Karnatic music—for composing orchestral music, using mainly Indian instruments, though the violin, the double-bass and the clarionet were included among Indian instruments. So far over 110 compositions have been finalised and recorded for use when required.

Transcription Service.—The plant produced 165 matrices and 5,900 discs as against 45 matrices and 2,100 discs in 1956. The discs of Sugam Sangit and Prasar Geet are being supplied to all stations. Indian missions abroad required about 740 discs of important items.

Experiments in the production of long-playing records are being carried out.

Voice Recordings.—AIR already has a unique collection of Mahatma Gandhi's prayer-speeches—(51 hrs.). Similar recordings of the Prime Minister's speeches are also preserved. The voices of Tagore, Sarojini Naidu, Srinivasa Sastri, C. F. Andrews, and Nanha Lal D. Kavi have been acquired for preservation.

Vividh Bharati.—This all-entertainment programme, broadcast on short-wave 100 K/w transmitters, from Madras and Bombay simultaneously, was introduced in October 1957. It quickly gained in popularity and is therefore being relayed by some of the stations on medium wave as well.

Special items for South Indian listeners are broadcast daily for two hours in the afternoon from Madras. The letters received about request programme for Vividh Bharati, reached a figure of 500 a day even before the programme completed one year of its service.

From July 1959 Vividh Bharati has been broadcast from Bombay C(243·9 m). The increase in fan-mail proved its popularity at once.

The programme is now available on medium wave from Bombay, Delhi, Dharwar, Gauhati, Madras and Simla. An additional transmission of one hour (11 hrs. to 12 hrs. daily) has been introduced to meet the demand for extension of the service.

A unique feature of this programme in which all the stations of All-India Radio now contribute by sending choice items from their artistes on tapes, was the building up of an elaborate library of tapes, light and classical music, both vocal and instrumental, folk-songs, devotional music, skits, dialogues, recitations of modern poetry, songs of regional groups in many languages.

The library which was originally situated in Bombay has now been moved to Delhi.

Urdu Majlis:—Half an hour's programme daily has been introduced for Urdu speaking audiences. The item originates in Delhi and is relayed by stations interested in it. Allahabad/-Lucknow, Jammu/Srinagar, Jullundur, Hyderabad and Patna are other stations which have a regular Urdu programme in their schedules.

Farm Forums:—Groups of farmers at each of the community Development Projects have been formed to listen to rural programmes and discuss later amongst themselves what they have listened about. The gist of these discussions is considered by the programme authorities and suitable answers given to points raised by the listening farmers. To begin with 864 Farm Forums have been formed. The number rose to 1,45 during 1960-61. Originally the idea was tried with the help of UNESCO in the Marathi speaking region, where programmes were broadcast from Poona. All the States have Farm Forums now in their development blocks and/or community projects.

Competitions.—In its ceaseless effort to find new talent, All-India Radio holds many competitions every year. They are for music, light and classical, vocal and instrumental, northern and southern (Karnatak) styles. The first round of these is held Station-wise and the All-India round takes place in Delhi.

Radio Sangeet Sammelan has indeed become a regular annual feature of All-India Radio. It consists of a series of concerts before invited audiences arranged in Delhi, Bombay and Madras, and the programme is relayed by all stations.

A side-light of the Sammelan is the music competition meant to discover latent talent among younger artistes. Musicians vocal and instrumental between the ages 16 and 21 are invited to participate. The preliminary screening takes place at the respective stations within whose jurisdiction they come, and the final tests are held for Northern music at Delhi and for Karnatic music at Madras

Patel Lectures.—This is an annual feature. The first series of lectures was given by Mr. C. Rajagopalachari in 1955 on the good administrator.

In appreciation of the services to All-India Radio rendered by the late Mr. P. M. Lad, Secretary to the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Lad Memorial Lectures, on a literary question were instituted on the first anniversary of his death—March 1958.

Programme Libraries.—At the headquarters of All-India Radio, New Delhi three important libraries have been built : (i) Recordings on tape and disc; (ii) Scripts of important programmes from all stations; and (iii) Tape recordings of entertainment programme items contributed by all stations of AIR.

Special Staff.—In addition to the regular grant for broadcasting made by Parliament, a lump sum is provided every year, to be spent at the discretion of the Minister. It is generally utilised in marking certain direct appointments of expert staff without having to go through the Union Public Service Commission.

New staff in charge of the production of special programme has been engaged at almost all the stations on a contract basis. Drawn from the literary or musical world, these officers have helped improve the quality of broadcasting.

NEWS SERVICES

The News Services Division now broadcasts 76 bulletins in 28 Indian and foreign languages. 30 of these bulletins are broadcast in the External Services while 46 bulletins are broadcast in the Home Services, the total transmission time being 14 hours and 34 minutes.

The languages used in the Home Services are:

Assamese, Bengali, English, Gujarati, Hindi, Kanarese, Kashmiri, Malayalam, Marathi, Oriya, Punjabi, Sanskrit, Tamil, Telugu, Urdu, Konkani and about 20 other dialects.

All the news bulletins are prepared in the News Service Division and broadcast from the transmitters at Delhi set apart for news.

Each regional station relays the bulletins suitable for its listening areas.

News Reels.—Radio news reels of 10 mts. each on the line of the BBC's radio news reels, have been introduced from Delhi in English twice a week and in Hindi once a week.

Regional News.—Centralised news from Delhi does not meet the requirements of the listeners adequately. In an effort to broadcast only news of All-India importance from Delhi, items of local interest are dropped. The State legislatures and other local institutions require to be covered for news. Some of the larger stations, capitals of States, now devote ten minutes a day for covering regional news in languages other than English. The timings however are late in the afternoon.

A few minutes are set apart at each station for local announcements. This period accommodates news of purely local interest.

External Services.—That the External Services serve a useful purpose can be seen from the fact that nearly 10,000 copies of India Calling (English) are distributed among listeners.

The Pushtu programme bulletin called d'Hind-Awaz is at present cyclostyled.

Sixteen languages are used in these broadcast —12 foreign and four Indian. The Indian languages are: Gujarati, Hindi, Konkani and Tamil. The total time taken is about 22 hours. It is believed that the audience is steadily on the increase. A survey showed that in the U.K., for example, 30,000 households listen to the evening English service.

In relation to time these broadcasts are composed of 25 per cent news, 33 Indian music, 3 Western music, 12 talks-discussions, 3 drama, 3 programme publicity, 21 Koran and other religious items.

LICENCES

Broadcast receiver licences are issued at all head and sub-post offices at a fee of fifteen rupees per year, and cover the use of receiving sets throughout India.

Broadcast Receiver Licences are issued to Municipalities or other public bodies for the reproduction of broadcast programmes in public places by the Postmaster-General of the State.

A licence issued for this purpose covers the use of one wireless receiver only.

A separate Broadcast Receiver Licence is, however, necessary in the case of clubs, institutions, messes, etc., for reproducing broadcast programmes at dances, concerts, bazaars, etc., to which the public are admitted.

It is necessary to explain here that the Post Office issues every quarter monthly figures of licences giving first the new licences issued, then the licences renewed, and last the total licences in force at the end of the month.

The table of figures therefore makes an odd impression when the monthly figures are placed in juxtaposition as below :

	New	Renewals	In force Total
1956 Dec.	17,653	3,570	1,075,909
1957 Jan.	28,786	657,419	871,750

1959 Jan.	36,051	589,971	784,582

The annual figures of domestic broadcast receiver licences as at the end of each year are given below :

As on Oct. 31, 1960 there were 20,11,244 radio licences of all types. There were 22 lakh receivers in homes and other places in June 1961.

The following table shows the number and the value of radio sets imported into India over a number of years :—

Introduction of transistor sets, has altered considerably the pattern of production of radio receiving sets and the policy of Government in allowing imports of transistor tubes, would naturally determine the total output from year to year.

A contract was signed by the Bharat Electronics Ltd. with Philips in May 1959 under which, valves valued at Rs. 40 lakhs would be produced within 20 months of signing the contract.

In co-operation with Siemens, Bharat Electronics Ltd., is also to manufacture short wave transmitters of 1 kW and 5 kW.

OWNERSHIP

The Press Registrar's study of ownership of newspapers in 1959 is based on 5,560 newspapers compared to 4,332 papers covered by the study in 1958.

The predominant form of ownership during 1959 continued to be the individual owner accounting for 45·1 per cent of the total in 1959 as compared to 44·6 per cent in 1958. Ownership by societies or associations, including religious and co-operative societies, which constituted the next important group of owners controlled 28·7 per cent of newspapers in 1959, as against 21·5 per cent in 1958. Joint Stock Companies, both public and private, represented an ownership of 7·7 per cent newspapers in 1959 against 7·4 in 1958. Firms and partnerships accounted for 8·2 per cent in 1959 against 7·87 in 1958. Government publications, Central and State, accounted for 2·9 per cent and 2·5 per cent respectively, against 2·8 per cent and 2·7 per cent in 1958.

The Report discusses the common ownership of more than one newspaper under three categories, namely, chains, groups and multiple units.

In 1959 there were 15 Chains, 162 groups and 30 multiple units 12 of which simultaneously formed parts of chains. The number of papers controlled by these chains, groups and multiple units was 103, 424 and 80 respectively. Details of circulation of chains, groups and multiple units are given in the following table. The figures relate only to those newspapers in respect of which information was available with the Registrar. The figures in brackets give the percentage of the total circulation of papers in India:

Year	Chains	Groups	Multiple Units
1958	21·11 lakhs (14·6 per cent)	29·88 lakhs (20·7 per cent)	13·09 lakhs (9·7 per cent)
1959	23·23 lakhs (13·4 per cent)	33·35 lakhs (19·3 per cent)	13·49 lakhs (7·8 per cent)

There was thus an increase in the circulation commanded by chains, groups and multiple units. This was partly due to the general increase in the circulation of papers in the country and partly because of the increase in the number of papers controlled by chains, groups and multiple units. The percentage of the circulation of chains, groups and multiple units to the total circulation of all papers shows a decline because of the rise in the total circulation of newspapers.

NEWSPAPERS

On December 31, 1959, there were 7,651 newspapers published throughout the country as against 6,918 newspapers at the end of December 1958. During 1959, 1,302 new newspapers were started and 327 existing papers ceased publications, resulting in a net increase of 975. Also during the year, particulars became available to the Press Registrar of 470 newspapers which were already in existence but whose existence was noticed, revealed or confirmed during the year from various sources. There was thus a total increase of 733 in the number of newspapers and periodicals during 1959 over that at the end of 1958.

The number of newspapers in English continued to be the highest published in any language in the country and accounted for 20·3 per cent of the total number of newspapers. Of these 77 per cent were published from four States, namely Bombay†, West Bengal, Madras and Delhi. Hindi coming next with 18·8 per cent of the total, Urdu, Gujarati, Bengali and Marathi claimed 8·2, 6·8, 6·7 and 5·2 per cent respectively

Hindi newspapers were published from all the States including Orissa, where there was no Hindi newspaper before 1959. No Hindi newspaper was published in Manipur and Tripura. Uttar Pradesh claimed the highest (555) with Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Delhi and Bihar coming next with 189, 158, 146 and 105 respectively. Punjab accounted for the largest number of Urdu newspapers (165), Uttar Pradesh and Delhi coming next with 148 and 139 respectively.

Each of the other languages shared less than five per cent of the total, while the bilingual and multi-lingual was 10 per cent and 6·1 per cent respectively.

There were 491 dailies published in different languages. Among periodicals, the highest number (3,076) was that of monthlies followed by 1,881 weeklies. There were 708 fortnightlies including tri-monthlies, 951 quarterlies including bi-monthlies and half-yearlies, and 488 annuals.

Language-wise the highest number of new newspapers (278) was claimed by Hindi, followed by English (238), Urdu (156), Gujarati (85), Bengali (77) and Tamil (69). There were two new publications in Assamese and one in Sanskrit. Among the new papers there were 141 bilingual publications.

The highest incidence of cessation among newspapers on a language basis was: Hindi — 80, Urdu — 53, English — 61, Bengali — 12, Gujarati — 21, Kannada — 3, Malayalam — 1, Marathi — 9, Punjabi — 11, Tamil — 12, Telugu — 8, Bilingual — 38, Multi-lingual — 14, other languages — 4.

SCHEDULED CASTES, TRIBES AND BACKWARD CLASSES

For population of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes see under Population in "Late Particulars".

The 1959-60 estimate of the population of Scheduled Castes was 5·53 crores, Tribes 2·25 crores, Denotified Tribes 40 lakhs.

These classes include 779 Scheduled Castes, 245 Scheduled Tribes and 198 nomadic tribes besides a number of unspecified groups.

The Scheduled Tribes live in remote forest regions, chiefly in Bombay*, Madhya Pradesh, Bihar, Orissa, West Bengal and Assam.

The tribes referred to as Notified in this article were once subject to restrictions under the various Criminal Tribes Acts. Their population is about 40 lakhs (U.P. 16·69, Bombay (bilingual) 6·24, Madras 5·95, Mysore 2·10).

The President has defined by means of an order who the Scheduled Castes and Tribes are.

This is the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes Lists Modification Order, 1956 which itself arises from the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Amendment) Act 1956 relating to the reorganized States.

As regards Backward Classes a Commission was appointed to enquire into their condition.

The functions of the Commission were to determine the criteria on the basis of which any particular section can be described as socially or educationally backward, to prepare a list of such Backward Classes for the whole of India, to examine the condition and difficulties of such classes and make specific recommendations (including financial) for their removal.

The Commission listed 2,399 different classes comprising more than 11 crores of people as socially and educationally backward. The Home Minister in commenting on this stated that this reduced the investigation to an absurdity when the bulk of the country's millions could be counted as coming within the category of backward classes. The criteria fixed by the commission were neither clear-cut nor reliable.

A pilot survey conducted by the Census Commissioner in Madras, Bombay* and West Bengal, showed that occupation could be a suitable basis for classification, an occupation, for instance, in which 50 per cent or more belong to the Scheduled Castes or Tribes, or an occupation in which the literacy percentage is less than half the literacy percentage in the State. An upper limit of Rs. 1,000 per family in the country-side could also be an extra criterion. Caste was yet another criterion.

Three States meanwhile seemed to be in favour of an economic criterion. Bombay* Government declared that all those whose annual income did not exceed Rs. 900 should be treated as Backward Classes. The Madras Government was working on a plan in which the criteria would be economic and social conditions. The Punjab Government drew the line at Rs. 1,000 per year, irrespective of caste or community. A community that is socially looked down would also be a Backward Community except such individuals in the community as have an income of more than Rs. 1,800. The Government of Mysore to start with adopted a classification in which in effect everyone except a Brahmin or a Scheduled Caste or Tribes man was 'Backward Class'. In a test case arising from this the Mysore High Court declared the Government order under question illegal. The Government consequently withdrew the order, appointed a Committee—Nagan Gowda Committee—which after investigation listed only 13 communities as backward as against the original 160.

With regard to the recommendation for the reservation of seats in Central and State services for backward classes, a substantial minority in the Commission (referred to above) itself was opposed to such reservation. Yet another recommendation was that 70 per cent of the seats in technical and technological institutions of higher learning should be reserved for backward classes.

Untouchability is abolished and its practice prohibited by law. The State works for the removal of any disability, liability, restriction or condition with regard to access to shops, public restaurants, hotels and places of public entertainment, the use of wells, tanks, roads and places of public resort maintained wholly or partly out of State funds.

The Untouchability (Offences) Act came into force on June 1, 1955.

The State also works for the throwing open of Hindu religious institutions of a public character to all sections.

NEFA is an administrative area under the Central Government, populated almost wholly by Scheduled Tribes.

A Naga Administrative Unit under Central Administration also came into being in December 1957.

The Tribes Advisory Councils exist in Andhra, Bihar, Bombay,* M.P., Madras, Orissa, Punjab, Rajasthan and W. Bengal.

Of these seven have Scheduled Areas (exceptions are W. Bengal and Madras).

A commission has been appointed with Mr. U. N. Dhebar as chairman to review all the special provisions mentioned above.

SAFEGUARDS

The Constitution of India has laid down certain safeguards for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Backward Classes, the weaker sections of the people. (The details are given in the 1960-61 Directory).

REPRESENTATION IN LEGISLATURES

Seats are reserved in the Lok Sabha under Articles 330 and 332 for Scheduled Castes and for Scheduled Tribes including the Tribal areas and autonomous districts of Assam.

The number of seats reserved in any State bears the same proportion to the total number of seats allotted to that State in the Lok Sabha as the population of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in the State or the part of the State bears to the total population of the State.

Similarly in the Legislative Assembly of every State seats are reserved.

Provision is also made for the representation of Anglo-Indians by nomination under Art. 333.

Art. 334 however as it originally stood limited the period of reservation for Scheduled Castes and Tribes and representation for Anglo-Indians to ten years from the commencement of the constitution, that is, till Jan. 26, 1960.

At the end of 1959 this Art. however was amended through the Constitution Eighth Amendment Act to extend this period by another ten years. The only difference was in the nature of the representation of Anglo-Indians, Clause 2 of the Amendment Act lays down that the number of Anglo-Indians nominated should not exceed two in the case of West Bengal and one in the case of the other States.

Under these provisions 76 seats in the Lok Sabha and 470 in the States Legislatures have been reserved for the Scheduled Castes, and 31 seats in the Lok Sabha and 221 in the State Legislatures for the Tribes.

In addition to the election of reserved seats in the Lok Sabha, 6 members from the Scheduled Castes and 3 from the Scheduled Tribes were returned to the Lok Sabha in the 1957 general elections. For the State Assemblies the respective figures were 8 and 7.

In the Rajya Sabha there were 9 members belonging to the Scheduled Castes and Tribes and in the Legislative Councils there were 9 from the Scheduled Castes and 4 from the Tribes.

At the end of March 1960, there were in the Rajya Sabha 10 members who belonged to the Scheduled Castes and three to the Scheduled Tribes. In the Legislative Councils there were 16 from the Scheduled Castes and four from the Tribes. The number of Scheduled caste members in the Assemblies elected from unreserved seats was 8 and of Tribes 11.

In the Territorial Councils the number of elected as well as nominated members in the Manipur and Tripura Councils remained unchanged at the end of 1959-60. In the Himachal Pradesh Territorial Council the number of scheduled caste and scheduled tribe members was 14 including one elected against unreserved seats.

REPRESENTATION IN GOVERNMENT

About Ministerial posts the position during 1959-60 was as follows:

In the Central Government there was one Minister and two Deputy Ministers from the Scheduled Castes and one Parliamentary Secretary from the Scheduled Tribes.

Central (Scheduled Castes):

Minister, Jagjivan Ram; Deputy Ministers, Dr. Mono Mohan Das and B. S. Murthy.

Central (Scheduled Tribes):

Parliamentary Secretary, J. N. Hazarika.

In the State Governments there were 14 Ministers, 8 Deputy Ministers and 2 Parliamentary Secretaries belonging to the Scheduled Castes, and 4 Ministers, 4 Deputy Ministers and 5 Parliamentary Secretaries belonging to the Tribes.

In Andhra Pradesh the Chief Minister is a scheduled caste.

Thus the total representation in the Central Government was Scheduled Castes 3, Scheduled Tribes 1. In the State Governments Scheduled Castes 24 and Scheduled Tribes 13.

SERVICES

The claims of members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes should be taken into consideration according to Article 335 in the making of appointments to services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State consistently with the maintenance of the efficiency of the administration.

The quota reserved for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in the Government of India services is as follows:—

Direct Recruitment on all-India Basis:

12½ per cent of vacancies filled by open competition and 16⅔ per cent of the vacancies filled otherwise have been reserved for Scheduled Castes, and five per cent of the vacancies in all cases for the Scheduled Tribes filled through open competition or otherwise.

In cases of promotion, the following orders have been issued:

For Non-Selection Posts:

(a) if promotion is made subject to the passing of a qualifying departmental examination, the standard of qualification for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes need not be so high as prescribed for other candidates;

(b) if promotion is made otherwise than by a qualifying examination, Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe candidates should be adjudged sympathetically without applying too rigid a standard, and the candidates belonging to these castes and tribes should not be superseded without their cases being reviewed at high levels.

For Selection Posts:

(a) if promotions are to be made on the basis of a competitive examination, the communal orders will apply and any Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe candidates, who are above the minimum standard necessary for efficiency, may be selected for appointment against their reserved quota;

(b) if the promotion is made otherwise than through a competitive examination, no relaxed standards of merit are to be applied for Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe candidates.

Liaison Officers have been appointed in each of the Ministries and Departments of the Government of India to see that Government rules and instructions about recruitment of Scheduled Castes and Tribes are complied with. The appointing authorities have been supplied with a Manual containing all relevant regulations and instructions to serve as a hand-book of ready reference.

A ruling given by the Madras High Court is of relevance.

It ruled arising from a case in March 1960 that reservation for Scheduled Castes and Tribes for filling selection posts in the Class III Railway Service was "unconstitutional".

Allowing a writ petition filed by a court inspector included in Class III of the Railway Service, the Court observed: "Neither of the statutory expressions "appointment" or "post" will include within its ambit promotion from one post to another in the same service. While such promotions are within the scope of the ban against discrimination by Article 16(2) of the Constitution, they are outside the protection from that ban secured by Article 16(4)."

The position in regard to permanent posts held by the Scheduled Castes and Tribes in the Central Government in 1957 is as follows: (Latest available):

	Total	Scheduled Castes	Scheduled Tribes

Note.—Includes Rs. 200·00 lakhs to be paid to the Government of Assam under Clause (a) of second proviso to Article 275(1) of the Constitution.

A sum of Rs. 91 crores had been provided in the Second Five Year Plan for the welfare of Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, etc. In the case of Centrally sponsored schemes, the entire expenditure of about Rs. 32 crores will be borne by the Union Government while the rest of the expenditure of Rs. 59 crores was to be shared between the Union and the States on a 50-50 basis.

Rehabilitation of the backward classes has a high priority in the Plan. Various Schemes have been formulated to expedite the implementation of existing programmes and for the provision of further amenities.

Forty-three special multi-purpose development blocks are being set up all over the country for the rehabilitation of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. These are based on the general pattern of the National Extension Service Blocks. Expenditure on each project is estimated at Rs. 27 lakhs. During 1959-60 an estimated expenditure of Rs. 1·95 crores was incurred. During the 1st four years of the 2nd Plan the expenditure was Rs. 5·12 crores.

It was proposed to train about 11,000 persons in various States, establish 825 cottage industries centres, 45 training-cum-production centres and 87 industrial and technical training centres during the Second Plan period.

Five technical institutes for tribal students each costing Rs. 50 lakhs were to be set up during this period. These institutes offer training in mechanical and civil engineering and handicrafts.

64,233 families were displaced due to Construction of dams, industrial plants, etc. 33,865 families were rehabilitated. Area of land from which displaced: 2,27,244·45 lakh acres.

About 27,000 tribal families will be resettled and 208 demonstration centres set up under the shifting cultivation control scheme to put an end to the harmful practice of felling trees. The scheme was started in Assam, Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Orissa and Uttar Pradesh during the First Five Year Plan period. It was being considerably extended during the Second Plan period at a cost of Rs. 3 crores

It was proposed to spend Rs. 10·8 crores on the construction of nearly 1½ lakh houses for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes during the Second Plan period.

The houses constructed will be of simple design. Each house costs between Rs. 500 and Rs. 1,000 depending on local conditions. Government's subsidy is mostly in the form of building material and the balance of the cost is contributed by the beneficiaries in the form of voluntary labour.

As against the construction of 9,000 houses, 8 model villages and 31 colonies in the First Plan, it was proposed to construct about 3,25,000 houses and 20 colonies during the Second Plan period. In addition, aid was to be given to about 160 housing societies.

The Second Plan expenditure upto March 1959 was Rs. 32·20 crores and the estimated expenditure during 1959-60 was Rs. 20·32 crores. The Central Government had sanctioned Rs. 25·57 crores to be spent during 1960-61. The First Plan provision was Rs. 39 crores and the expenditure Rs. 26 crores.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS

Capital : Port Blair.

Area : 3,215 sq. miles. Pop. 63,438 (approx.) (1961). Density : 20. Literacy : 33·6%.

The Andamans are a group of 204 islands of various sizes, large and small, lying between the 6th and 14th Parallels in the Bay of Bengal. The northernmost 'Landfall Island' is 560 miles from the mouth of Hooghly River. The headquarters Port Blair is about 780 and 740 miles from Calcutta and Madras respectively. The main part of the group is composed of five large islands, viz., North Andaman, Middle Andaman, South Andaman, Baratang and Rutland Islands generally known as the Great Andaman. To the south of the Great Andaman is the island of Little Andaman. The extreme length of the Great Andaman Islands is 290 miles and the extreme breadth 32 miles the total land area being approximately 2,580 sq. miles. These Islands consist mostly of a mass of hills covered with dense tropical forests and separated by three straits and several creeks. These Islands have several very good harbours—Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, Mayabander and Port Elphinstone.

The Nicobar Islands numbering 19 from Car Nicobar in the north to Great Nicobar in the south intervene between Little Andaman and Sumatra. The southern island of Great Nicobar is about 100 miles from Pulo Brasse off Achin Head in Sumatra and the northern island of Car Nicobar 75 miles from Little Andaman. The extreme length of the sea-space occupied by the Nicobars is 163 miles and the extreme width is 36 miles. These islands are partly hilly and partly flat. The most important harbour in the area is Nancowry reputed to be the finest harbour in the east.

The climate of the islands can be generally described as tropical; warm but tempered by pleasant sea breezes. The islands are exposed to both monsoons with north-easterly gale from November to January and south-westerly gale from May to October. The weather is smooth only from January to April and to some extent in October. The average rainfall is 123 inches. The temperature varies between 23·9°c to 30·5°c throughout the year. The scenery of the islands is everywhere strikingly beautiful.

About 63,438 (1961 census).

(a) Aboriginals: The aboriginals of the Andaman are supposed to be the earliest people to inhabit South East Asia. Essentially there are two main species Erimtaga, that is the forest dwellers who comprise the Jarawas and Sentenelese, and Arvoto the coast dwellers to which the Onges and the Andamanese belong. The Andamanese were originally the most numerous of all the tribes but their decadence has been the worst. They now number 23 in all. The Onges are estimated at 150 according to the 1951 Census. The information regarding the Jarawas and Sentenelese is wholly scanty as the tribes are hostile and avoid all contact with civilisation. According to the 1951 Census, the estimated total number of Jarawas was 50 only, but this figure is obviously undependable.

(b) Andaman Indians: From 1858 to October 1945, the Andaman Islands were a Penal Settlement, and except for the steadily increasing number of the aboriginals, almost the entire population consisted of convicts and of people who were in these Islands in connection with these convicts—administrative personnel, merchants catering to them etc. The strength of the population therefore in this period depended entirely on the number of convicts that were sent to these Islands from the mainland. After the issue of the Proclamation abolishing the Penal Settlement, remitting all sentences and offering repatriation at Government expense, the population sunk to a little under 14,000 in 1947. This population has been recorded as "Andaman Indians" during the 1951 census.

(c) Neo Settlers: With the abolition of convict labour the need for local labour was felt and several families of displaced agriculturists from East Bengal were brought to South Andaman during 1949 for settlement under the Pilot Scheme of Rehabilitation. The process has continued since and will continue throughout the present and Third Five Year Plans period.

(d) Nicobarese: The Nicobarese belong to a completely different race group from the aboriginals of the Andamans. Their number according to the 1951 census is approximately 12,000 spread all over the Nicobar group of Islands. Within the last century the race has registered a considerable increase in population. It has doubled itself in fifty years.

FORESTS

Forests cover an area of 2,630 sq. miles and 685 sq. miles in Nicobars, i.e. nearly 72 per cent of the total area.

The species of timber found in the forest region are mainly padauk, Andaman redwood, Gurjan—a plywood species and Papita—a matchwood species. Annually the Forest department exports approximately 30,000 tons of timber to the mainland worth about Rs. 1 crore.

Since 1954 teak plantations are being raised in the South and Middle Andamans with great success.

The forests are rich in commercial timber and are suppliers of timber to the plywood and matchwood industries.

Agriculture : Rice is the principal crop of Andaman Islands. The estimated area under paddy cultivation is about 17,000 acres.

COLONISATION

Displaced persons including agriculturists from East Pakistan were readily available for settlement and the idea of colonisation of the Islands caught on. Sporadic efforts were made from time to time between 1949 and 1951 to rehabilitate the East Bengal refugees. In 1952-53 a long term plan for colonisation was put into operation. As a Grow More Food measure and with a view to achieving self-sufficiency in the matter of food it became imperative to import manpower into these Islands. It envisaged settlement of 4,000 agriculturist families over 20,000 acres of flat land at the rate of 5 acres of cleared paddy land per family. By the close of the year 1955-56 about 1,406 families had been settled on land and the rest of the programme was incorporated under the Second Five Year Plan for achieving the target. From the commencement of the process in 1949 to date 3,000 families have been settled, who have come from West Bengal, Kerala, Bihar and Madras.

Commercial prospects of coffee cultivation in these Islands are considered to be bright by the experts.

INDUSTRY

Industries include a coconut oil mill, plywood factory and a match splint factory in South Andaman Island and a coir factory in Car Nicobar Island. All the above are in the private sector. Besides, there is the Government Sawmill which has a reputation of being the biggest in the East. There are six other sawmills, all in the private sector. 14 schemes relating to Small Scale Industries and Handicrafts, Khadi and Village Industries are also being implemented by the Administration.

A new plywood factory by a limited company was under construction in South Andamans and was expected to go into production by June 1960.

Power : Port Blair has a 450 kW power station established in 1950. An A.C. power station also has been installed in Car Nicobar.

Transport : Port Blair has a city and rural Transport Service comprising six passenger buses and one school bus. Two more buses were being added to the fleet (Nov. 1959).

EDUCATION

The territory has three Higher Secondary Schools, two Middle Schools, 72 Primary Schools, a Teachers' Training School and the Trade School, catering for over 5,000 students.

BANKS : A branch of the State Bank of India was opened at Port Blair in 1957 and also conducts Government Treasury business. It has two sub-treasuries, one at Mayabunder and the other at Nicobar.

Medical : The Government Hospital at Port Blair has 280 beds. Besides the Port Blair Hospitals, there are hospitals at Car Nicobar, Nancowry, Rangat, Long Island and Mayabunder. The total strength of beds is 418 including the bed strength of the present T.B. Hospital at Gambooflat.

There are 27 dispensaries all over the Islands.

A Malaria and Filaria Survey Control Unit under the National Health Scheme operates in the central group of Nicobar Islands.

A V.D. Unit has been set up in Car Nicobar. The incidence of diseases in these islands is remarkably low compared to that of the mainland.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

There is scope for installation of altogether five Blocks in the Territory. Today the Community Development scheme has been extended to the South Andaman Island and the Car Nicobar Island, two out of the five inhabited areas of the Territory. The South Andaman Block covers an area occupied predominantly by the Andaman Indian population. The Car Nicobar Block covers an area predominantly occupied by the tribal Nicobarese population. The remaining three blocks namely, the Middle Andaman Block, North Andaman Block and the Central Nicobar Block will come into being before the target date prescribed by the National Development Council. The Middle and North Andaman Blocks will cover the neo-settlers and the Central Nicobar Block will cover the remaining tribal Nicobarese population.

Shipping : The Administration runs its own passenger-cum-cargo service between the island and the mainland with two motor vessels M.V. Andamans and M.V. Nicobar. The former is an 8,000 ton class ship and was built by the Hindustan Shipyard. Between these two vessels, 36 round trips are made to the mainland giving an average of one round voyage every tenth day.

The Administration also possesses a steamship S.S. Cholunga for inter-island coastal communication.

The Hospital Ship M.C. Indaus equipped as a travelling dispensary-cum-hospital was gifted to the Administration by the Australian Government under the Colombo Plan for rendering medical aid for the people of distant islands in Nicobar group, to whom the hospital is not readily approachable.

Steps are being taken to lessen the distance between the mainland and the islands.

There is a bi-weekly air service between Calcutta and Port Blair (Thursday & Saturday).

The weekly courier running between Calcutta and Car Nicobar is to be diverted to Port Blair as well. This would help in flying mails between the mainland and Port Blair.

GEOGRAPHY

The shape of Andhra Pradesh is rather curious. A short neck with protruding belly would be an apt description. It has a chain of mountains, the Eastern Ghats, running over its entire length on the eastern and northern borders.

In the far north too the country is hilly.

There are huge forest areas in Srikakulam, Vishakapatnam, Godavari, Kurnool, Warangal and Adilabad Districts.

The landscape is varied and rich.

The climate is warm and humid or hot and humid according to the season.

* Includes one nominated.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

The average annual rainfall is highest in the north varying between 45 inches and 50 inches. It gradually decreases to the south and south-west down to about 20 inches.

Two-thirds of the rain is from the south-west monsoon.

Srikakulam, Vishakapatnam, parts of Godavari and Nellore suffer from periodic floods and droughts, while the others are more liable to suffer from droughts.

There are hills and table-lands scattered throughout the State. Some of the hills are high and are covered with useful forest, some carry scrub jungle, while many are quite bare.

The soil in the area covered by the former Andhra State consists of the alluvi of the deltas and littoral tracts, red, black and brown soils.

The average yield of rice per acre in Andhra region is 1,293 lbs. while in Telangana area it is 679 lbs. (The all-India average is 729 lbs.).

There are two major rivers in the area of the former Andhra State, the Godavari and the Krishna, three medium rivers with a large number of tributaries, and twenty-nine minor and small rivers. It is estimated that together they carry annually 150 million acre ft. of water into the Bay of Bengal.

The Godavari flows for the major part through the State before it falls into the Bay of Bengal. Its main tributaries are the Manjira, the Pranhita, the Indravati, and the Sabari, some of which flow partly in the Telangana area.

The main tributaries of the Krishna are Tungabhadra, Yerla, Warna and Dudhganga.

The medium rivers are the Pennar, the Nagavalli, the Vamsadhara.

The river system of Telangana consists of two great basins, that of the Godavary and the Krishna. The former with a length of more than 600 miles in the area has a number of tributaries, the chief of which are the Painganga, the Wardha and the Pranhita from the north, and the Manjira and the Maner from the south. Among its tributaries the most important are the Bhima, the Musi on which the capital stands, and the Tungabhadra, which forms the southern boundary of the Raichur-Mudgal Doab. The Telangana region, abounds in tanks and artificial lakes constructed mainly for the purpose of irrigation.

Telangana is the land of rice and jowar. The rivers dry up in hot weather necessitating the storage of water in tanks and artificial lakes for purposes of irrigation.

LAND REFORMS

According to the census of land holdings conducted in 1954 in the Telangana region and in 1955 in Andhra region, the total number of holdings in Andhra Pradesh is 42,43,655 comprising an area of 3,41,91,769 acres. The average size of a single holding is 8·1 acres. 39·87 lakh holdings are under the personal cultivation of the owners wholly or partly and the remaining 2·56 lakh holdings are completely leased out. The area leased out is 39·29 lakh acres or 11·5 per cent of the total owned area in the holdings. The remaining 88·5 per cent or 302·63 lakh acres are under the personal cultivation of the owners, and they include lands put to non-agricultural uses.

The Tenancy Acts in force are the Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, the Hyderabad Prevention of Fragmentation and Consolidation of Holdings Act, the Estates Land Act, the Rent Reduction Act, the Inams Abolition Act and the Andhra Tenancy Act.

An ordinance was promulgated in 1957 calling upon those owning more than 20 acres of land in the former Andhra region to furnish details of their holdings to the Government.

In 1958 a bill, fixing ceiling on land holdings for the entire State of Andhra Pradesh, was drafted and introduced in the State Assembly. The proposals in it have received the approval of the Planning Commission. This fixes the maximum holding as one fetching an annual income of Rs. 5,400. The Planning Commission recently suggested to reduce the ceiling to Rs. 3,600 for the sake of uniformity in the entire country. The Bill* was passed by the legislature in July 1960.

The definition of 'estate' under the Estates Land Act was enlarged in 1956 so as to include within its scope inam hamlets and inam Khandrigas in inam villages, thereby ensuring the application of the Rent Reduction Act and to some extent the Abolition Act to these Inams. Legislation for the abolition of all 'inams' other than 'estates' and for their conversion into ryotwari tenure, was undertaken. With a view to completing the scheme for the abolition of intermediaries proposals are under Government's consideration for legislation for the abolition of the post-1936 inam estates also. The Andhra Tenancy Act was enacted in 1955 providing mainly for the regulation of grants payable by tenants to landlords and for the prescription of a minimum period for agricultural leases. The Hyderabad Tenancy Act was amended so as to confer the right of protected tenancy on a larger class of tenants than had hitherto enjoyed such benefits.

All those who had cultivated land continuously for six years within a prescribed period were classified as protected tenants. They numbered, according to a census taken in 1953-54, about 620,000 in the entire former State and about 260,743 in the nine districts of Telangana. So long as the tenant paid his rent—which in case of dispute was determined by the Government according to a formula linked with the land revenue—he enjoyed absolute rights of cultivation.

The Government promulgated an ordinance to ban all evictions retrospectively from March 21, 1952. Some 600 suits were stayed and more than 5,000 tenants restored to their lands.

The protected tenants were given special privileges, including the right to purchase land held by them on easy terms. There was a limit to the extent of land they could thus purchase.

The tenant's total extent of land, including his own, should not exceed one family holding, which is defined as the extent of land capable of yielding a gross annual income of Rs. 1,600.

The ceiling on present holdings of a landlord was fixed at 4·5 family holdings, while that on future holdings was scaled down to three acres.

Any protected tenant can notify his desire to purchase the land under his occupation provided the landowner does not own more than two family holdings in all. In case the landowner fails to concede his request, an application is made to a tribunal, which will decide how much of the land should be sold to him and at what price.

The Act fixed the maximum limits of the reasonable price which the tenant should pay. They were computed in multiples of land revenue —for dry, chalka lands 60 times the land revenue and for wet lands irrigated under flow water or wells 24 times the land revenue.

The price is payable in 16 instalments spread over not more than eight years.

Of the 260,743 protected tenants in Telangana, only 13,125 exercised their right of purchase and bought 142,417 acres.

Towards the end of 1955, it was decided to apply section 38-E of the Tenancy Act in certain selected areas, by which the protected tenants automatically became the owners of the lands, whether or not they made any application in writing to that effect, and it was up to the landlord to prove that this or that particular plot of land was required by him.

This was applied throughout Khammam district and in the Mulug taluka of Warangal district.

By the end of 1957, 11,426 protected tenants in Khammam and 1,900 in Mulug had become "owners" of their lands.

It was estimated that throughout Telangana, there were about 5,400 substantial landholders, that is, those who owned more than the statutory limit of 4·5 family holdings (that would yield an annual gross income of Rs. 7,200). In terms of acres, though they vary from district to district, it is estimated that on an average, a family holding ranges from six to nine acres of wet land and 21 to 60 acres of dry land.

The substantial landholders in Telangana together own about 3,958 acres of dry land (assuming six acres of dry land as equivalent to one acre of wet land). The surplus land available for distribution among the landless will be in the neighbourhood of 536,000 acres.

Consolidation of land holdings and prevention of fragmentation were being worked out on an experimental basis in 50 selected villages.

Paper mills are at Sirpur in Adilabad District, Andhra Paper Mills, Rajahmundry, a State-owned commercial concern with a 10-ton capacity per day and the Sri Venkateswara Paper and Straw Board Mills, Tirupathi with a 10-ton capacity per day. Cement factories are at Vijayawada and other places. Two cement factories in Adilabad and Guntur districts have gone into production during 1958 and another in Kurnool District in 1959. Cigarette factories are concentrated in Hyderabad City. Textile Mills are in Hyderabad, Warangal and a few other towns. A starch producing unit at Hyderabad started production during 1959. The Gudur Ceramic Factory went into production from April 1, 1959.

In the Telangana area there are eleven textile factories which employ 8,030 persons, 111 tobacco units employing 8,300 persons, two cotton and ginning factories employing 600 persons. There is the ship-building yard at Visakhapatnam.

There are proposals to set up two fertilizer factories at Kothagudem and Visakhapatnam. A cycle parts manufacturing factory has been set up at Vijayawada.

The Andhra Pradesh Government has set up an Industrial Development Corporation for the promotion of large-scale, medium and small-scale industries in the State.

Production figures for 1959 of the various industries are given below : Sugar 125,000 tons ; paper 24,800 tons ; cement 580,000 tons ; cigarettes 628 crores ; cotton piecegoods 314 lakh yds. ; cotton yarn 332 lakh lbs. ; coal 22·6 lakh tons.

MINERALS

The chief minerals produced in the State are coal, iron ore, limestone, manganese and asbestos. The coal industry is situated at Kothagudem, Tandur, Yellandu and Sasti in Telangana region. Other minerals are widely distributed. According to the Geological Survey of India, two large deposits of iron ore containing an estimated reserve of nearly 380 million tons of ore have been located in Guntur and Nellore districts.

Production figures for 1959-60 are as follows:— Manganese 16,000 tons ; Mica 3,000 tons ; Iron Ore 195,000 tons ; Limestone 705,000 tons ; Asbestos 369 tons ; Barytes 6,315* tons.

COTTAGE INDUSTRIES

The number of workers employed in small-scale and cottage industries, according to the 1951 census, was 1,107,368 and these were distributed over 355,010 establishments. The most important industry is that of handloom. There are about 4 lakh handlooms in the State ; besides, there are 14,000 looms for woollen fabrics. The State has thus the largest number of looms in India and this industry provides employment for about 323,000 persons and livelihood for 1,615,000 persons. Assuming that the overall production per month per weaver is 100 yards, the annual output of handloom cloth per annum works out to about 39 crore yards of cloth.

Other important cottage industries are Kambli-weaving which employs about 39,000 persons, coir making employing about 12,000 persons and basket making which employs about 40,000 persons.

Certain handicrafts of Andhra Pradesh are world famous. Notable among these are the silver filigree articles of Karimnagar, the exquisite toys of Nirmal, Kondapalli, Nakkapalli and Tirupathi, the carpets of Warangal and Eluru and the lace goods of Narsapur. Twenty-five schemes were implemented during 1958-59 at a cost of Rs. 5,48,502 under the Handicrafts sector. Nine Handicrafts Co-operative Societies were formed.

During 1958-59, 26 sericultural schemes were implemented expending Rs. 4·15 lakhs.

TRANSPORT

The total railway route mileage open for traffic in Andhra Pradesh as on March 31, 1958 was 2,827 miles out of which 1,660 miles were Broad Gauge, 1,144 miles Metre Gauge and 23 miles Narrow Gauge. The total road mileage including National Highways, State Highways, major district and other district roads is 14,466 miles.

A high level bridge costing Rs. 57 lakhs was being constructed across the Godavari near Bhadrachalam which will be a boon to pilgrims visiting the temple of Sri Rama (1960).

The Andhra Pradesh Road Transport is a nationalised service now largely serving Telangana area. In March 1959 the road mileage covered by it was 3,857 ; its total fleet strength 610 buses. Its total earnings from the Telangana area stood at nearly Rs. 1,74,75,736 in 1954-55 and Rs. 1,77,67,489 in 1955-56 while the expenditure was Rs. 1,65,09,000 and Rs. 1,71,28,000 respectively. The number of passengers carried was 4,802,101 as on March 1958.

After the Government decided to extend the nationalised road transport to the Andhra region also, a Road Transport Corporation was formed which took over certain routes in Krishna District as a first step. This was challenged by the private operators affected and the Supreme Court gave a decision against the Government. The Government after conducting the necessary procedural formalities, reintroduced the scheme of nationalisation in the District of Krishna. The nationalised road transport services will be extended progressively to other Andhra Districts also.

There is a well-developed airport at Begumpet in Hyderabad city ; there are landing grounds near Vijayawada and Visakhapatnam.

Many canals in the Andhra area are used for boat transport.

There are two broadcasting stations in the State—at Hyderabad and Vijayawada. There were 5,465 community listening sets in the State on Aug. 31, 1960.

The City of Secunderabad is the headquarters of the Secunderabad Division of the Central Railway and is the junction of the Broad Gauge and Metre Gauge systems. From here lines radiate east, south, west and north. The total mileage open for traffic which now constitutes the Secunderabad Division of the Central Railway is 1,461 miles.

Hyderabad City is connected by air with Bombay, Nagpur, Madras, Visakhapatnam and Bangalore. Hyderabad City is served by Begumpet aerodrome. Hyderabad is also linked by air to Delhi and Calcutta.

† This is a joint venture of the Andhra Pradesh and the Orissa States. The cost and power generated are to be shared in the ratio of 70 : 30. This project was started in 1946.

‡ This scheme is under the control of the Tungabhadra Board constituted by the President of the Indian Union consequent on the formation of the Andhra State, from 1-10-1953 and the transfer to the Mysore State from that date of 7 taluks of Bellary District in which the project is located. The expenditure and the benefits of power are to be shared by Andhra and Mysore Governments in the ratio of 80 : 20. This project was started in 1953. The installed capacity is that of two generators.

The number of villages and towns electrified at the end of October 1959 was expected to be 1,870. The number of villages to be electrified was expected to be raised to 2,400 by the end of the 2nd Plan. The gross revenue on electricity schemes during 1958-59 was of the order of Rs. 4·5 crores.

An Electricity Board has been constituted and started functioning during 1959.

The per capita consumption of electricity in the State was 12 units (November 1959).

For Warangal and Yellandu power is being purchased in bulk from the local mills and distributed by Government.

SECOND PLAN

Investigations on the following power projects were being undertaken during the Second Plan period. (1) Nagarjunasagar Hydro-Electric Scheme; (2) Lower Sileru Hydro-Electric Scheme; (3) Nagarjunasagar Canal Power House; (4) Srisailam Hydro-Electric Scheme; (5) Sangareddy Hydro-Electric Scheme; (6) Laxmipuram Hydro-Electric Scheme; (7) Pulichintala Hydro-Electric Scheme; (8) Siddeswaram Hydro-Electric Scheme.

The targets of power production proposed during the Second Plan period were as follows: Installed capacity 1,44,100 kW.; Transmission lines to be constructed, H.T. and L.T. 2,330 miles; Total load to be connected 3,77,100 kW.; Aggregate peak demand 1,27,000 kW.; Consumers that will be served 30,000; Agricultural Services 5,400; Villages and towns to be electrified 340; Per Capita consumption 20 units.

Under the Second Plan, the installed capacity has risen by 122,825 kW.; 1,344 more towns and villages were electrified.

An agreement was signed shortly before Nov. 1959 between Andhra Pradesh and Orissa Governments for working out the Upper Sileru Hydro-Electric project during the 2nd Five-Year Plan. Under this the Government of Andhra Pradesh can go ahead with the project with an estimated capacity of 1·2 lakh kW.

Establishment of Development Areas

Industrial Development Areas are planned with a view to creating the industrial climate with large, medium and small industries.

Plots of land which are linked up with communications will be selected and divided into suitable plots for the establishment of factories. Facilities like water supply, electricity, sewage and roads will also be provided in the Development Areas.

A sum of Rs. 75 lakhs is provided in the Third Five Year Plan programme for the Industrial Development Areas. Two of these areas will be set up in the Andhra region and one in Telangana.

IRRIGATION

Statement showing the net area irrigated by different sources, gross area irrigated and area irrigated more than once in Andhra Pradesh during 1957-58: Govt. canals 3,019,000 acres; Private canals 38,000 acres Tanks 2,746,000 acres; Wells 738,000 acres; Other sources 213,000 acres.

Total net area irrigated 7,068,200 acres.

Area irrigated more than once 1,302,972 acres.

A sum of Rs. 14·57 crores was spent on major and medium size irrigation projects in the Andhra region during the First Plan period. Five major irrigation projects, viz., the Tungabhadra, Upper Pennar, Romperu Drainage, Rallapadu (Second stage) and Bhairavani-tippa Projects, were taken up for execution to benefit an area of 303,190 acres in the districts of Krishna, Guntur, Nellore and Anantapur. Krishna regular-cum-bridge was inaugurated on Dec. 24, 1957. On these alone Rs. 11·14 crores were spent during the First Plan period.

In the Rallapad Project (Nellore District) work is completed at a cost of Rs. 85·49 lakhs. An area of 5,000 acres was proposed to be benefited by the end of March 1960.

Under the Romperu Project an ayacut of 8,196 acres was brought under irrigation. A sum of Rs. 225·42 lakhs was spent on Krishna Barrage Scheme till the end of March 1959.

The Bhairavanithippa Project is for irrigating 9,700 acres in drought affected areas of Anantapur District. It costs Rs. 141·932 lakhs. More than 82 per cent of the work had been completed and water let out for irrigation (Nov. 1959).

The Upper Pennar Project costing Rs. 153·65 lakhs is completed and water has been stored and let out for irrigation. Seventeen medium projects to provide irrigation facilities to 385,274 acres of land were taken up for execution and four of them were completed during the First Plan period. On these a sum of Rs. 343·22 lakhs was spent. Four of the medium projects are located in Srikakulam district, three each in Nellore and Chittoor districts, two each in Cuddappah and Anantapur districts and one each in Visakhapatnam, West Godavari and Kurnool districts.

A sum of Rs. 436·27 lakhs was spent during the First Plan period on two major irrigation projects in Telangana, viz., the Rajolibanda Diversion Scheme for providing irrigation facilities to about one lakh acres in the Mahbubnagar district and the Kadam Project benefiting an area of 67,000 acres in the Adilabad district. They were continued as spill-over schemes in the Second Plan and a sum of Rs. 145·35 lakhs was provided for them. The Rajolibunda Diversion Scheme was expected to be completed before June 1960. Also during the First Plan period a sum of Rs. 129·83 lakhs was spent on five medium irrigation projects, viz., Koilsagar and Sarlasagar Projects to benefit 16,000 acres in Mahbubnagar district, the Musi and Bhimanpally Projects benefiting 39,860 acres in Nalgonda district and the Sirala Project benefiting 3,000 acres in Adilabad district. In the Second Plan these schemes got a provision of Rs. 64·86 lakhs. The total area benefited by these major and medium projects is 229,860 acres.

The Kadam dam (in Adilabad district), 5,945 ft. long and estimated to cost Rs. 441 lakhs, was completed by the middle of 1958; but it suffered serious breaches on September 1, 1958 due to heavy floods in the river. The Government appointed a Committee to enquire into the causes of this calamity.

A unique achievement with regard to the Musi project in Nalgonda District is that without damming the river or building a reservoir, irrigation water for 2,000 acres of land has been given already through the right flank canal. The reservoir, when completed, will be an 8 sq. mile sheet of water. Irrigation water for 5,000 acres was given by June 1958 and the complete development of 38,000 acres was to be over in two years.

All the major and medium irrigation projects except the four medium projects completed during the First Plan period were included as continuing schemes in the Second Plan. The Vamsadhara Project was a new major scheme included in the Second Plan. A sum of Rs. 32·30 crores was provided in the Second Plan for the Nagarjunasagar Project which is common to both the regions of Andhra Pradesh.

The major and medium irrigation projects included in the Second Plan for Andhra were expected to bring 4·49 lakh acres more under irrigation during the Second Plan period while the area ultimately expected to benefit from these, amounts to 9·18 lakh acres.

A total provision of Rs. 93·92 lakhs was made for minor irrigation projects in the State. An expenditure of Rs. 168·37 lakhs has been incurred under this programme during the first three years of the Second Plan.

Allocation for major and medium irrigation and power projects for 1960-61: Rs. 1,664·84 lakhs.

Nagarjunasagar Project. The project in its first Stage comprises the construction of a masonry dam 302 feet high above the foundation level, across the Krishna river near Nandikonda about 90 miles below Siddeswaram, and two canals taking off from the reservoir, known as the left and the right bank canals. The dam is situated about ten miles from Macherla railway station in Guntur district. Large areas extending between the Krishna and Godavari in the north and the Krishna and the Pennar in the south can be commanded by the reservoir.

The project will have a gross storage capacity of 5·44 million acre feet and is expected to be completed in 1965.

The right bank canal which will be 135 miles long will carry a discharge of 11,000 cusecs in the first Stage. The left bank canal will be 108 miles long and will lead up to the river Muneru in the first stage, and will flow through Telangana.

The cost of the first Stage of the projects namely, construction of the dam and the two canals is estimated to be about Rs. 93·27 crores.

The present scheme which forms the first Stage of the project will irrigate about 2·06 million acres of land spread over the districts of Guntur, Kurnool, Nellore, Warangal and Nalgonda.

The second stage of the project which will be taken up later, will provide for the generation of electric power.

The Dam has reached a height of 100 ft. in parts and the excavation of the main canals is in progress up to 50 miles on either side.

Besides these, other medium projects taken up during the First Plan are Koilsagar project (Mahbubnagar District), Sarla Sagar project (Mahbubnagar District), Bheemanpally project (Nalgonda District) and Sirala project (Adilabad District).

In the Second Plan the provision made for the execution of major projects was Rs. 897·76 lakhs, for medium (spill over) projects Rs. 360·85 lakhs and new medium schemes Rs. 376·34 lakhs.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Plague, Cholera, Small-pox, Tuberculosis, Malaria, Filaria, and Yaws are among the common diseases in the State, but Government efforts to fight these have produced remarkable results in the case of some. Plague used to be almost an annual visitation to Hyderabad City but drastic preventive measures taken in recent years have practically eliminated it. Cholera, Small-pox and other seasonal epidemics continue to attack people but Government steps to reduce their incidence are also proving effective. The B.C.G. vaccination campaign against tuberculosis is in full swing and by the close of the First Plan period nearly 18,00,000 persons were tested and 6,23,000 vaccinated in the former Andhra State. In Telangana region also the scheme is being extended.

Organised assault on malaria is going on, regions vulnerable to the disease claiming priority. There are six National Malaria Control Programme Units, four for the Plains areas and two for the Agency areas, each covering one million population. These units are stationed at Visakhapatnam, Vijayawada, Nellore, Anantapur, Dummagudem and Araku valley. In the Telangana region there are three units at Nirmal, Nizamabad and Warangal. Other anti-malaria operations also exist in Tungabhadra Project area, Machkund Hydro-electric Project area and Nagarjunasagar Project area. The malaria laboratories and museum at Hyderabad afford training facilities.

Under the National Filaria Control Programme sponsored by Government of India there are two Filaria Control Units at Mandapeta in East Godavari District and one at Kamareddi in Nizamabad District and one Filaria Survey Unit at Hyderabad in the State.

Indoor residual adulticidal spraying operations form the major part of the work. Regularly persons are contacted for clinical assessment of the disease and efforts are being made to cover the whole population. Entomological observations are being carried out.

The following work was done till June 1957 in the Andhra area in connection with the Anti-Yaws schemes to eradicate Yaws from among the tribes. Population examined 5,05,103 ; coverage 95·9 per cent ; Yaws cases treated 33,598 ; percentages of treated cases to population examined 6·6 per cent ; P. A. M. expended 1,45,546 c.c. The above scheme was completed by September 30, 1957.

Work carried out in the Telangana area during 1957 : Population examined 1,36,512 ; Yaws cases treated 3,517 ; Yaws contact treated 387 ; P. A. M. spent 19,838 c.c.

No. of hospitals and dispensaries in the State : 1,048 ; no. of beds available for general patients : nearly 18,533 ; no. of beds for T.B. patients alone : about 1,400.

Figures for 1959 : Birth rate in the State 17·00 ; death rate 7·60 ; infant mortality rate 82·08 ; maternal mortality rate 4·06.

Second Plan provision for the Medical and Health Development Programme in the State : Rs. 11·01 crores.

Besides a large number of Colleges offering general education, two Agricultural Colleges, six Medical Colleges, two Science Colleges, two Veterinary Colleges, two Women's Colleges, a Law College, 13 Polytechnics, six Engineering Colleges and two Mining Institutes exist in the State. There are 11 Colleges giving higher education in Sanskrit. One novel experiment is a Janata College in Warangal district where rural youths are given training in better methods of agriculture, rural social service, health and hygiene, rural surveys and crafts.

As for training facilities, there are 4 B.Ed. Colleges, besides a number of Secondary Grade Training Centres and Basic Training Centres. The old type of adult schools are being replaced by Social Education Centres. A College of Nursing with B.Sc. Nursing Course has been instituted at Hyderabad.

Capital : Shillong.

Nearly one half of the area of Assam State is covered by hills. Plains : 23,033 sq. miles ; Hills : 22,734 sq. miles. Besides, a total area of 1,322 sq. miles, mostly hilly, has been transferred to Assam State from N.E.F.A. The hill areas are sparsely populated and inhabited by the hill tribes.

The Assam Panchayat Bill 1958 provides for a three-tier panchayat system.

DISTRICTS

Names of Districts with headquarters in brackets : Goalpara (Dhubri) ; Kamrup (Gauhati) ; Darrang (Tezpur) ; Nowgong (Nowgong) ; Sibsagar (Jorhat) ; Lakhimpur (Dibrugarh) ; Cachar (Silchar) ; Garo Hills (Tura) ; United Khasi-Jaintia Hills (Shillong) which is also the capital of the state ; United North Cachar and Mikir Hills (Diphu) ; Mizo previously called Lushai Hills (Aijal).

The hill districts have been given, under the Constitution of India, a large measure of self-governing rights according to their respective tribal traditions and customs, exercised through Autonomous District Councils under the supervision of the Government of Assam.

For purposes of Autonomous District Councils, United North Cachar and Mikir Hills are two Districts : North Cachar Hills (Haflong) ; Mikir Hills (Diphu).

The administration of land vests in the District Councils. All the District Councils have framed their own laws for the purpose and are now levying and collecting Land Revenue, House tax etc.

Anchalik Panchayats at the anchal level and Gaon Panchayats at the Gaon level have been formed in the place of Mahkuma Parishads at the Subdivisional level, under the Assam Panchayat Act., 1959. Accordingly, there are now, 16 Mahkuma Parishads, 120 Anchalik Panchayats and 2,570 Gaon Panchayats in the Plains Districts of the State. These Panchayats have covered 17,717 villages.

Number of Circles : In Assam Tahsils are termed as Circles : 52.

Number of Local Boards (District Boards) : 15.

Number of Town Committees : 20.

GEOGRAPHY

Assam has three distinct natural divisions : Brahmaputra or Assam Valley, Surma or Barak Valley and the hills.

The river basins are naturally fertile and present in the main few difficulties to the cultivator. Rainfall being high the problem in general is to dispose of the surplus water and to control the action of floods rather than irrigation in the usual sense.

Rice is the staple food crop. Tea and jute are the most important crops grown for export. Besides, potatoes are also cultivated in Assam. A good deal of short staple cotton and fruits like oranges and pineapples are grown in the hills.

Rainfall is everywhere abundant, and ranges from 50 to 258 inches a year leaving aside the highest recorded rainfall in this part of India with the maximum reached at Cherrapunji in the Khasi Hills 32 miles south of Shillong (905 inches in 1861 : record precipitation for one day is 41 inches). This is reputed to be the wettest place in the world. Temperatures are moderate.

Earthquakes of considerable severity have taken place. By far the worst in recent times was that which occurred on August 15, 1950, one of the world's five biggest recorded tremors. According to old records the Assam earthquake of 1897 is regarded as the severest in human history.

FORESTS

Main types of Forest with some species of trees of economic importance occurring in them :

Evergreen forests, mixed deciduous forests, deciduous and dry deciduous forests, riverain forests, Savannah forests, swamp forests, bamboos and temperate forests.

A large area under forests falls in the hill districts which are sparsely populated and covered with vegetation.

Assam possesses one of the richest fauna in Asia and it is claimed that outside Africa, there is no part in the world with so many varieties of animals, birds, reptiles and insects. Rhinoceroses, elephants, wild buffaloes, bisons (called 'Mithuns' by most of the hill tribes in Assam and the N.E.F.A.), swamp deer, Sambhar, spotted deer, barking deer, tiger, leopards, black panther, King Cobra, pink-headed duck and Giant Hornbill are some of the well-known specimens of wild life.

Four sanctuaries and two game reserves with a total area of about 500 sq. miles, are maintained by the Government Forest Department for the protection of the interesting and in some cases the numerically dwindling species. Kaziranga and Manas are the two most famous sanctuaries, both nearly the same size, 166 and 105 sq. miles respectively. Kaziranga, in the heart of Assam and situated on the South Trunk Road, is easily accessible and affords every facility to the visitor to see the famous one-horned rhinoceros from elephant back at close range. The sanctuary at Manas at the foot of Bhutan Hills is the more attractive from the scenic point of view.

Main forest produce : Timber, firewood, bamboo, elephants, cane, lac, elephant tusks, thatch, fishery, stone, sand, drugs, incense and perfumes, fibres and flosses.

LAND TENURE SYSTEM

There are two classes of land tenure system in the State—the permanently settled estates and the temporarily settled estates.

Permanently settled estates : These are found in Goalpara District and Karimganj Subdivision of the Cachar District. In Goalpara district the permanently settled estates held by the proprietors and the rights of most of the intermediaries under them have been acquired under the Assam State Acquisition of Zamindaris Act and the tenants holding lands under them have come into direct relationship with the Government. In Karimganj Sub-division of Cachar district there are permanently settled estates and the acquisition of such estates has started. The tenants who hold either directly under the Zamindars or intermediaries pay rent in cash or kind. There are crop-shares too. There is also a small number of people in Karimganj who hold land under landlords on condition of rendering service. An amount of Rs. 5,71,709 as an ad-interim compensation and a sum of Rs. 21,96,691 as final compensation have so far been paid for acquisition of estates and tenures under the Assam State Acquisition Zamindaris Act.

* There is some discrepancy between the figures supplied by the Central Govt. and the State Govt.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

Temporary settlement system : Also known as the Ryotwari system. Prevails in the other plains districts of the State and also in portions of Goalpara District and Karimganj which are not permanently settled. These lands are assessed to full revenue and are called Khiraj lands.

The peculiarity of this system is that generally the cultivators hold lands directly under the Government unlike the lands in permanently settled estates.

The Khiraj lands are again divided into two categories, periodic and annual. The periodic landowner has a heritable and transferable right whereas the annual landowner (technically called "settlement holder") has a right of user only and has no right of transfer or sub-letting. Subject to the payment of the land revenue the owners of annual lands get renewal of the lease from year to year. The owners of annual lease can get their lease converted into periodic after satisfying certain conditions on payment of a priscribed premium.

Besides these, there are some La-Khiraj (full revenue free) and nisf-Khiraj (half revenue free) grants in Assam and also a number of Fee Simple grants. These Fee Simple grants are for cultivation of tea. These grants are initially revenue-free, but subsequently they have been assessed at full rate of revenue under Assam Revenue Free Waste Land Grants Act, 1948. There are other Waste Lands Settlement Rules for special cultivation.

There are three tenancy Acts in Assam, viz. The Goalpara Tenancy Act, The Sylhet Tenancy Act and The Assam (Temporarily Settled Districts) Tenancy Act. The former two Acts apply to the Districts of Goalpara and Cachar (those portions of former Sylhet District which have remained in Assam after partition) respectively. The last Act applies to the plains districts of Assam. These Acts confer rights of occupancy, determine the rent payable by the tenants and regulate the relationship between the landlords and the tenants. The Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act, 1948, governs the conditions regarding crop-rent payable by the crop-sharing tenants and prescribe the conditions on which the landlord can resume possession for personal cultivation. Government has also passed a law called the Assam Fixation of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act (1956), whereby the holding of agricultural lands has generally been limited to a maximum of 150 bighas (about 50 acres) per family.

Hill Districts : In the hill districts of Assam, land administration is carried on by the Autonomous District Councils according to local customs and usages. The provisions of revenue regulations and tenancy acts in force for the plains districts do not apply there and even land-revenue as it exists in the plains, is not realised there. In its place, a house tax or hoe tax is levied on the people. In many parts of the hills, land is held in common by entire villages.

MINES, INDUSTRIES

The only minerals in Assam worked on a commercial scale are coal, limestone and petroleum oil. Petroleum output about 100,000,000 gallons ; coal output 4,86,000 tons (1958) ; and limestone output approximately 1,000,000 tons. The most extensive coal measures hitherto worked are in the Naga Hills, Lakhimpur District and Khasi-Jaintia Hills. Important deposits also exist in the Garo Hills ; but those are yet to be exploited. Limestone is quarried in the Khasi-Jaintia Hills. Petroleum is worked only in Lakhimpur and refined there. An oilfield has been found at Nahorkatiya.

An oil refinery is to be set up in the State.

Silk is manufactured in the Assam valley; also cotton weaving prevails as a cottage industry, women playing a predominant part. In this valley there are no caste weavers. In the Surma Valley or Cachar weavers carry on a brisk manufacture on a commercial scale. These handloom products find a ready market on account of the great scarcity of mill made cloth. There is no textile mill in Assam and the entire requirement of mill-made cloth has to be imported from other States.

Tea is the main industry, but there is a large petroleum mining concern with Digboi in Upper Assam as the centre and also some coal-mines. There is a big match manufacturing concern at Dhubri. Boat-building, brass and metal and earthenware, limestone burning, cane and bamboo work, furniture making, sola hat, smithy, brick making, mustard oil pressing, rice and saw mills are other industries. But agriculture employs about 80 per cent of the population. Assam carries on a considerable trade with the adjoining hill tribes and countries.

Power Projects : The only power project the Umtru Hydro-electric Project was started in 1949-50 and completed in 1956-57 at a total cost of Rs. 211·67 lakhs. The project benefits Kamrup and Kand Jhills. The installed capacity is 8,400 kW.

The Assam Government proposes to start another hydro-electric project at Umiam in Khasi-Jaintia Hills. It will be integrated with the Umtru project and their joint installed capacity will be 75,000 kW. During the IIIrd Plan Assam will generate over 45,000 kW from natural gas found around Naharkatia.

The electricity generated at the new project (the Barapani Project) will meet the anticipated demands of about 11,000 kW of industries proposed to be set up in Gauhati, Cherapunji, Tinsukia-Makund areas of Assam. The other districts, which will also receive supply from the project, are Kamrup, Nowgong and Khasi and Jaintia Hills, Dharang and Goalpara in the State.

The capital cost of the scheme is estimated at Rs. 705·98 lakhs.

Provision for the project in the second Plan of Assam was Rs. 89·5 lakhs.

The probable date of completion of the first phase of the project is 1963-64. The construction work was expected to be inaugurated on January 9, 1960.

HANDLOOM INDUSTRY

Handloom industry is an age-old cottage industry of Assam.

It is the largest and the most important cottage industry next to Agriculture, both in hills. Most of the weavers of the State are women and they generally weave cloth for their domestic use in leisure time.

Cess Fund : In order to develop khadi and handloom industries and to promote the sale of khadi and other handloom cloth, the Government of India decided to levy additional excise duty on mill made cloth. Created out of the proceeds of the cess, the Act is known as Cess Fund. Since its creation, financial assistance by way of loans and grants for the development of the industry is forthcoming.

In Assam, the handloom development schemes had been implemented since 1953-54. At the end of 1959-60, the number of co-operative societies had increased from 317 to 1,267 and looms and weavers from 3,541 to 31,060 and from 8,322 to 32,947 respectively. Upto the end of 1959-60 share capital loans amounting to Rs. 45,000 and working capital loans to the tune of Rs. 2 lakhs had been given. Improved looms and other weaving accessories are supplied to the weavers' co-operative societies from the financial assistance received from the All India Handloom Board. In order to relieve the weavers of Assam from the high cost of transport, the Board also grants a subsidy at Rs. 20 per bale of yarn procured.

Powerlooms : So far 150 powerlooms have been purchased. Out of these looms, 30 are being installed at the Industrial Estate, Gauhati, and the remaining 120 powerlooms are proposed to be allotted among powerloom co-operative societies of Silchar, Nowgong, Gauhati and Nalbari. Steps have already been taken to install two preparatory and processing plants in the State, as operation of powerlooms will not be helpful without such plants. Attempts are also being made to install two calendering plants.

The Assam Apex Weavers' Co-operative Society has started functioning from July, 1959 and now sells yarn to the primary weavers' societies at moderate prices.

Out of the total number of handlooms in Assam, only about 7 per cent are now in the co-operative fold. In the Third Five Year Plan, it is aimed to bring a sufficiently large number of looms into the co-operative fold.

TRADE

Assam has to import almost every article of daily necessity. Unlike in previous years the State has now to supplement the local production of rice—the staple food—by imports from the rest of India. The State's requirement of wheat was also met by the Central Government with imported wheat.

Assam's trade for the most part, was with areas now included in East Pakistan, but after partition it has dried up to a great extent and the traffic is maintained only by exports of fruits and vegetables and imports of fish, eggs and poultry.

TRANSPORT

Much of the trade of Assam is carried by river. Steamer companies maintain fleets of vessels which ply to and from Neamati, Disangmukh, Tezpur, Gauhati, Goalpara, Dhubri, Karimganj, Silchar and many other smaller stations.

During the dry season the formation of chars and sandbanks restrict the volume of riverine traffic and after the 1950 earthquake, Upper Assam has been forced to rely more on road and rail transport.

From January 1958, the entire railway system in Assam has been made part of a new Zone of the Indian Railways—the North East Frontier Railway. Pandu (Maligaon) near Gauhati has been made the head-quarters of N.E.F. Railway.

The railway system enters Assam by the north bank of the Brahmaputra and continues on the more important south bank after crossing the river by a ferry between Amnigaon and Pandu. From Pandu the line stretches eastward to Tinsukia, 324 miles away. Short branch lines connect the important towns of Dibrugarh, Nowgong, Jorhat, Sibsagar and Tezpur to the main line.

The construction of a road-rail bridge to link the two banks of the Brahmaputra has now been taken in hand. The bridge is expected to be completed in 1962 and the cost is estimated at Rs. 10 crores.

Because of the slender surface link between Assam and the rest of India, air services are of great value to the State. The first direct link by air between Calcutta and Gauhati was established in 1947. This air service was originally on a non-scheduled basis but very soon it became a daily service and now there is more than one service a day. Almost all the big towns—Tezpur Jorhat, Dibrugarh, North Lakhimpur, Silchar, Dhubri and Gauhati are served by daily scheduled flights. Pasighat and Along in N.E.F.A. have also been placed on the airmap.

The total length of motorable roads as on March 31, 1956, stood at 6,627 miles including 797 miles of National Highway. Of these 5,163 miles were in the plains and 1,464 in the hills. Besides, there were on this date 1,641 miles of bridle roads.

Nationalisation of motor transport in the State was started in 1948, and till November 1959, 1,116 miles were covered. The Third Five-Year Plan aims at nationalising 496 miles more.

On November 1, 1959 :

Number of vehicles operated by the Department : 570.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

Number of 1st Class service cars : 21

Number of Goods Vehicles : 139

Number of other vehicles (ambulance, staff car, etc.) : 60

Number of passengers carried in a day : 20,000

Goods carried in a day : 10,000 maunds.

Service mileage daily operated by the Nationalised Transport : Nearly 25,000.

The State Transport organisation provides employment to 3,000 persons. Capital invested till March 31, 1959 is Rs. 217 lakhs. Profit in 1957-58 stood at Rs. 31·27 lakhs. The State Transport is under the administrative management of a Board, with the Minister for Transport as Chairman.

Shillong is reached by a 63-mile nationalised motor route from Gauhati, the nearest railhead, steamer ghat and air station. Assam Government's State Transport carries both passengers and goods on a monopolistic basis on this National Highway.

The programme of road-making has its special significance in that it is designed to make Assam self-sufficient in ensuring quick transport of its exports to and imports from other parts of the Indian Republic without having to pass through Pakistan. At the same time communications within the State are being improved by provision of necessary feeder roads from and to the arterial road system of the State so that local surplus produce may find good markets.

NORTH-EAST FRONTIER AGENCY

Headquarters: Shillong, Assam.

The population of N.E.F.A. after the separation of one of its former Frontier Divisions to the Naga Unit is now estimated at 4·5 lakhs (approximately) (1959-60). For 1961 census figures see "Late Particulars."

The North-East Frontier Agency, geographically and constitutionally a part of Assam is situated on the borders of Bhutan, Tibet region and Sikiang province of China and Burma. The Agency's international border is about 800 miles.

Before Independence there was very little direct administration in the interior of the hills and control was exercised by influence and touring. Since August 15, 1947, considerable attention is being devoted to it and it is now administered by the Ministry of External Affairs, with the Governor of Assam acting as the Agent of the President of India under the provisions of the Sixth Schedule (Part B) of the Constitution. The Governor is assisted by an Adviser who is directly in charge of the administration. The N.E.F.A. is completely separate from Assam administratively.

The Agency Secretariat is situated in Shillong, capital of Assam.

Divisions in the Agency with headquarters in brackets: Kameng Frontier Division (Bomdila); Subansiri Frontier Division (Ziro); Siang Frontier Division (Along); Lohit Frontier Division (Tezu); Tirap Frontier Division (Khonsa).

† Besides the list below, there are several other colleges which are not yet affiliated to the University.

‡ There is some discrepancy between the figures given by the Central Govt. and the State Govt.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

Each Division is under the charge of a Political Officer. In addition four territorial areas are entrusted to Additional Political Officers with headquarters at Sepla, Dapo Rijo, Pasighat and Roing. Within these jurisdictions Sub-Divisions are in charge of Assistant Political Officers, and Circles, of Base or Area Superintendents. The system of administration has been organised on a single line. At the Secretariat in Shillong the heads of various departments are integrated and function as ex-officio Secretaries of their Departments, while in the Divisions the Political Officers are assisted by technical advisers like District Medical and Agricultural Officers and Inspectors of Schools. Senior officers of the Agency are drawn from a newly created special cadre—the Indian Frontier Administrative Service (I.F.A.S.).

GEOGRAPHY

The North-East Frontier Agency is a wild mountainous country and presents a remarkable topographical variety. The northern regions bounded by the Himalayas are snowbound in the winter. On the east, the hill ranges bordering on Burma also present a formidable barrier. Near Assam State areas the Agency has some plains.

The entire area is intersected by rivers. The main river artery of Assam, the Brahmaputra, known during its course in Tibet as the Tsangpo enters the Siang Frontier Division of the North-East Frontier Agency cutting the main Himalayas southwards near Gelling. It is known by the Adis as the Siang and receives many tributaries the most important being the Syom before debouching into the plains at Pasighat.

Other major rivers are the Subansiri and the Kameng (Bhoreli), the first of which also breaks through the main Himalayan range and takes its source from the table lands of Tibet. Similarly the Lohit river enters the N.E.F.A. as one of the main tributaries of the Brahmaputra between Rima and Kibithoo and after flowing through Lohit Frontier Division joins the other main river of the Division, the Dibang and later the Siang at a major confluence above Dibrugarh.

The reserve forests constitute 204 sq. miles (approximately) of the Agency and 3,512 sq. miles are proposed to be under reserve forest. In the year 1958-59, 17 lakhs (approximately) c. ft. timber was extracted and a total revenue of Rs. 22·03 lakhs earned. Forest revenue has increased nearly ten fold since 1951-52

The fauna and flora of the Agency are rich. Wild elephants, buffaloes, tigers, various kinds of deer, leopards, bisons, mithuns, bears, pigs, wild goats, and many kinds of cats are found. To the people of the Agency the mithun is most important as it serves apart from its religious and sacrificial significance as a barter currency and medium of exchange.

The monsoon sets in from the month of May and continues till the end of September. The average annual rainfall at Bomdila is 40·12″; Tawang—63·83″; Ziro—49·42″; Along—92·72″; Pasighat—229·05″; Tezu—160·03″ and Changlang—78·22″.

TRIBES

The Agency is inhabited exclusively by Hill Tribes. A broad list of the division-wise tribes (with sub-tribes in brackets) is given below :—

Kameng Frontier Division :—Monpa (Tawang or Brahmi Monpa, Dirang Monpa or Sherchokpa, Lish Monpa), Sherdukpen, Aka (Aka, Hrusso), Khowa or Khoa, Miji, Bangni or Dafla, Sulung.

Subansiri Frontier Division :—Tagin or Moya, Dafla or Nissi, Hill Miri, Apatani, Mikir, Sulung.

Siang Frontier Division :—Memba, Khampa, Mishmi Idu, Miri, Adi (Gallong, Minyong, Padam, Pasi, Pangi, Milan, Shimong, Tagin, Karko, Ashing, Bori, Bokar, Pailibo, Ramo, Tangam).

Lohit Frontier Division :—Memba, Padam (Adi) Idu Mishmi or Chulikata, Miju or Kaman Mishmi, Taraon or Digaru Mishmi, Khampti, Singpho.

Tirap Frontier Division :—Singpho, Nocte (Nocte proper, Laju, Laphan, Wakka, Ninu or Nianu), Wancho (Wancho proper, Banfera, Wakka, Ninu or Nianu), Tangsa (Longphi, Lungri, Rungrang, Ponthai, Lungchang, Mosang, Moglum or Havi, Morang, Taipi, Tikhak, Jongkak, Yoggli).

Just as a large variety of tribes is found in the Agency, so also a large number of distinct languages and dialects are spoken. The number of languages is about 30 and the dialects about 42.

Very few of these languages have a script and it is one of the objectives of the Agency Administration in the sphere of education, to provide the people with the Devanagri script for writing in their languages.

EDUCATION

Education in the Agency is of the Basic type with due emphasis on crafts and agriculture. Seven schools (1959-60) have already been converted to Basic pattern, and 100 schools were in the process of conversion in 1960-61.

Upto the end of the primary stage, the mother tongue of the students is the medium of instruction in schools, and text books in various tribal languages have already been prepared upto Class I. Assamese will be the medium of instruction from Class IV onwards and it will also be introduced as a subject of study early in the primary stage. Hindi and English are also taught as compulsory languages from Class III and IV respectively.

In 1947, when the Department of Education was set up, there were only two lower primary schools in the entire Agency. At the end of 1959-60 the situation was :—Number of Institutions : Lower Primary 120, Middle English 12, High English 4, Technical Institutions 3, Total Institutions 139.

The Buniadi Shiksha Bhawan (Teachers Training Basic and non-Basic) at Changlang (Tirap Frontier Division) runs re-orientation courses for the Teachers

There were 328 Teachers in 126 Educational Institutions and approximately 5,566 students in 1958-59.

COTTAGE INDUSTRIES (1959-60)

The people of the Agency have a great tradition of artistic and cultural self-reliance. The Administration aims at assisting them to develop their capabilities and to improve their standard of living by adopting better technique without interference in the pattern of native art.

Cottage Industries Training and Production Centres have been opened at 10 places to impart training in weaving, spinning, tailoring, carpet-making, carpentry, wood-carving, cane and bamboo work, smithy, painting, sawing, soap-making and pottery. Rearing of silk and endi is demonstrated at sericultural farms at Pasighat, Bordumsa and Namsang.

The 10 Cottage Industries Training-cum-Production Centres trained 270 trainees. About 60 instructors impart training. Expenditure during 1958-59 : Rs. 4,27,350 and upto February 1960 (for 1959-60) Rs. 3,00,000.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Main types of disease with number of patients treated within brackets (1959):

Respiratory (36,30,000), Malaria (10,38,000), Diarrhoea and Dysentery (17,23,000), Other stomach and intestinal diseases (19,02,000), Scabies (10,12,000), total indoor patients treated (4,12,000), total outdoor patients treated (219,07,000). Total patients treated (223,22,000).

Number of Hospitals, Dispensaries and Mobile Health Units (78), number of Leprosy Colonies (3), number of Leprosy patients treated (106 in 1958), number of Doctors (88), number of compounders (92), number of Nurses (11), number of midwives (17).

B.C.G. teams are touring the Agency area specially in Siang Frontier Division where the incidence of tuberculosis has given rise to concern.

A Health Training and Research Centre has started to train Junior Nurses and Rural Health Workers drawn from the tribal people themselves.

AGRICULTURE

Agriculture is the mainstay of the people of the Agency. Generally, the jhum system (shifting) of cultivation is followed as in the hills of Assam and the yield is not enough to meet the requirements.

A radical change from jhumming to permanent-cultivation is not considered possible or even desirable in the peculiar conditions of N.E.F.A. and the objective to introduce permanent cultivation wherever possible while simultaneously improving jhumming on scientific lines.

State help towards agriculturists consists of:

(i) Subsidy towards land reclamation, minor irrigation, purchase of tools, purchase of seeds, purchase of plough bullock, agricultural education and training and purchase of improved cattle, pigs and poultry;

(ii) Technical advice and guidance along with free services with necessary equipment for plant protection, organisation of marketing facilities, organisation of exhibitions, organisation of study tours, organisation of crop competitions, organisation of demonstration of improved crops, veterinary aid and livestock upgrading.

There is no regular land settlement system in N.E.F.A. as in other settled areas and no cadastral survey has been conducted. The ownership of land in N.E.F.A. varies from tribe to tribe, though generally speaking, it can be considered under the three categories, (1) land owned by individuals, (2) land owned by the clan and (3) common village land. Government attitude to land in N.E.F.A. is formulated in the three Jhum Land Regulations which were promulgated in 1947-48. These regulations give the tribal population absolute rights over their Jhum Land which is defined as all lands which any member or members of a village or a community have a customary right to cultivate by means of shifting cultivation or to utilize by clearing jungle or grazing livestock provided, that such village or community is in permanent location. In actual practice, however, the local customs and traditions are respected, and take precedence over these regulations.

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

Most of N.E.F.A. tribes have a very strong social sense, and every village is in its own way a Co-operative Society. The first Co-operative Society was started at Pasighat in December, 1955. There are now (as on 31st March 1960) 27 Primary Co-operative Societies which include 4 Multi-purpose Societies, one Industrial Co-operative Society, one Dairy Farm and 22 Consumers' Stores. There is also a Central Co-operative Store and Union Limited, at Mohanbari performing the functions of a supervising union with a working capital of Rs. 59·30 thousands. The success of the movement so far has been quite satisfactory. All the 28 Primary Societies are Members of the Central Society. The total working capital of all the 27 Societies is estimated to be nearly Rs. 8 lakhs. The N.E.F.A. Administration has been specially exempted by the working group constituted by the Reserve Bank of India, from the purview of the national policy, as co-operation is inherent in tribal life and culture and in spirit, although the individual land tenure system is very strong, co-operative farming in N.E.F.A. has been in existence from time immemorial.

Community Development and National Extension Service Blocks in the Agency cover 8,400 (1959-60) sq. miles with a total population of 1,58,000. A special N.E.F.A. type block has been evolved by the Administration with the approval of the Government of India to meet the specific needs of the tribal people. The main emphasis is laid, on self-sufficiency in food, better roads, water supply and sanitation.

COMMUNICATIONS

First priority in the Second Five Year Plan N.E.F.A. has been assigned to communications. Rapid progress has been made in the building of roads. A road now connects Bomdi La, the headquarters of Kameng Frontier Division at a height of 9,000 feet above sea level; Ziro the headquarters of Subansiri Frontier Division; Along, the head quarters of Siang Frontier Division; Tezu, the headquarters of Lohit Frontier Division and Khonsa, the headquarters of Tirap Frontier Division, and Pasighat and Roing, the Sub-Divisional headquarters of Siang Frontier Division and the Lohit Frontier Division respectively.

Physical achievements from 1951 to 1960 consist of roads (jeepable) 448 miles, bridle paths 131·00 miles, Mule paths 404 miles, Porter tracks 1,556 miles. Total 2,539 miles.

For the development of the interior, carriage of mail and cash and the evacuation of casualties the Administration depends greatly on Otter aircraft, while Dakotas are used for landing or dropping supplies all over the Agency.

A wireless net-work has been set up to provide quick connection among the various administrative centres and outposts.

SUPPLY

Air supply in the interior areas of N.E.F.A. commenced in January 1951. The chartered companies fly regular sorties to land or air-drop supplies. The total tonnage air-lifted during the calendar year 1959 was 4,957·35 metric tonnes.

Under a State Trading Scheme, ration and stores for the interior localities depend on air supply and are procured centrally at Jorhat, N.E.F.A.'s air base and dropped or air-landed in the interior.

SECOND PLAN

The Planning Commission earmarked a sum of Rs. 950·50 lakhs for the Second Five Year Plan but subsequently it was revised and a sum of Rs. 509·56 lakhs (excluding 344·00 lakhs for approach roads by Army Engineers) was provided for with a view to making the Plan a very realistic one and also to afford greater scope in speedy fulfilment of the various targets.

Out of the total Plan provision of Rs. 509·56 lakhs the progress of expenditure upto the end of 1958-59 was Rs. 175·70 lakhs against the phased Plan provision of Rs. 257·75 lakhs.

For the year 1959-60 the revised estimates were Rs. 120·56 lakhs as against Rs. 120·08 lakhs Plan outlay. For 1960-61 the budget estimates are Rs. 164·18 lakhs as against Rs. 164·94 lakhs of Plan outlay.

GEOGRAPHY

Bihar is more thickly populated than Germany. Hindus form an overwhelming majority of the population. Though Muslims form about one-tenth of the total population they constitute more than one-fifth of the urban population of the State. The scheduled tribes account for 10·6 per cent before the enactment of the Bihar and West Bengal Transfer of Territories Act, 1956. These are inhabitants of the Chota Nagpur plateau and the Santal Parganas, the latter district being a continuation of the plateau in a north-easterly direction.

Although there is a great deal of mineral wealth in Chota Nagpur and important industries are developing in connection with it, still for the bulk of the population of the State agriculture continues to be the basic occupation. Over 80 per cent of the population depends wholly on agriculture, while only 7·8 per cent depends on industries.

The soil throughout the whole of that portion of the Indo-Gangetic plain lying within the State boundaries is extremely fertile, particularly in North Bihar, in parts of which the density of the population is more than 900 people to the square mile. The State occupies a transitional position between Ganges delta with its damp climate so suitable for the paddy crop and the States to the north and west where large irrigation schemes have had to be provided to enable the soil to produce its bounty. As in the delta of the Ganga, rice is by far the most important crop as it occupies normally an area of approximately 12 million acres or over 50 per cent of the net cropped area of the State. In the circumstances, the importance of the south-west monsoon to the State of Bihar cannot be overestimated.

In addition to the rice crop, however, other grain crops are grown on a tolerably large scale. Of the monsoon cereals, maize, wheat and barley are extensively grown. The cultivation of oilseeds like castor, mustard and linseed forms a large and important part of the agriculture of Bihar.

After Uttar Pradesh, Bihar is the most important white sugar area in India, some one-sixth of the total production of white sugar in the country being turned out in Bihar factories.

Jute has been an important crop and is confined almost entirely to the Purnea District part of which has gone to West Bengal after reorganization.

Tobacco is a crop of increasing importance in the State and one which is likely to expand in importance.

LARGE-SCALE INDUSTRY

The large-scale industries are :

Iron and Steel, Aluminium, Lead, Foundry, General and electrical engineering, Bicycles, Tanning, Leather goods and foot-wear making, Sulphate of ammonia, Hume pipe and R.C.C. products, Asbestos products, Glass and glass-wares, Ceramics, Cement, Heavy chemicals, Woollen textiles, Cotton textiles, Jute textiles, Silk and Art silk, Tobacco, Distilleries, Benzol, Sugar, Food industries, Roller flour mills, Mica, Shellac and Superphosphate.

The figures below are for 1960. They are the latest available. The first figure shows the number of units and the second the workers.

Iron and steel (8 ; 38,023); Sugar (32 ; 22,314); Cement (7 ; 5,463); Mica (104 ; 10,186); Bidi (78 ; 2,083); Coke ovens (5 ; 1,586); Jute mills (3 ; 4,792); Cotton mills (4 ; 1,228); Woollen mills (1 ; 588); Cigarettes (1 ; 2,194); Pulp and paper (3 ; 3,787); Shoe (1 ; 606); Tannery (1 ; 297); Rice mills (110 ; 3,619); Oil mills (32 ; 911); Shellac (28 ; 974).

Bihar will spend about Rs. 21 Crores on industrial development in the Third Plan period. Two of the major expansion schemes include the superphosphate factory at Sindri and the insulator factory at Ranchi and the aim is to increase their output from 25 tons to 50 tons per day and the annual production capacity of 2,400 tons to 4,800 tons respectively.

The area under assured irrigation before the inception of the First Plan was 8·98 lakh acres in South Bihar and 1·39 lakh acres in North Bihar. Area added during First Plan was 2·41 lakh acres in South Bihar and 0·75 lakh acres in North Bihar. Target for the Second Plan was 6·38 lakh acres in South Bihar and 1·16 lakh acres in North Bihar.

Expenditure under assured irrigation before the First Plan was Rs. 343·44 lakhs in South Bihar and Rs. 106·56 lakhs in North Bihar. Expenditure during the First Plan was Rs. 753·03 lakhs in South Bihar and Rs. 454·26 lakhs in North Bihar. Expenditure during the Second Plan will be 1,570·28 lakhs in South Bihar and Rs. 1,786·00 lakhs in North Bihar.

The larger Irrigation works are Sone Canal System in Shahabad, Patna and Gaya districts; Tribeni Canal (recently expanded and extended) and Dhaka and Teur Canals in Champaran District; Sakri Canal in Gaya, Patna and Monghyr Districts; Saran Canal (recently renovated) in Saran District; Kamala Trisula and Balan Irrigation Schemes in Darbhanga District; Kao and Durgawati Bharari Dam and Suara Irrigation Schemes (completed); Kohira Reservoir (under execution) in Shahabad District; Jamini Kola, Semaria-Gurgawah Embankment-cum-Irrigation Sheme, Mayurakshi Left Bank Canal Karantola and Dhabuajore Irrigation Schemes in Santhal Parganas; Sirnawa Lokain, Bhartua-Nandan Kulti Irrigation Schemes (Completed) and Panchane Phase II Scheme (completed) and Panchane Phase II Scheme (under execution), in Patna District, Batane, Chariari, Mahugain, Nitane, Hullia, Keshwar River Scheme, Jamunia Irrigation Scheme and Upper Morhar Lilajan, Adri, Dhawa Irrigation Scheme (completed) and Lower Morhar Irrigation Scheme (under execution) in Gaya District; Ajan, Gidheshwari, Ganaili, Kundghat, Kharagpur Lake, Kaurihari, Nagi and Lower Kiul and Tati (completed) and Moorwe Reservoir Bijan and Phirangibigha Irrigation Scheme (under execution) in Monghyr District; Sonhula Tarar, Gebua Weir, Khajia Danr (Phase 1), Mahmuda, Chandan Bilasi, Khalkhalia Embankment and Khajia Phase II scheme (completed) and Chandan Phase I and Badua Scheme (partly in Monghyr district) under execution in Bhagalpur District; Aradih, Buchaopa, Kita and Raisa Irrigation Scheme (completed) and Kanchi Weir and Hatia Water Supply Schemes (under execution) in Ranchi District; Charwa, Gonda, Jurga, Jamunia, Ghaghra, Lotia Irrigation Scheme (completed) and Kuti-Pisi Irrigation Scheme (under execution) in Hazaribagh District; Sadabah, Kararbar, Batre and Chordanda Jinjoy and Adra Schemes (completed); Chako Birha, Phulwaria Nala, Utmahi and Sonre (Karar) Irrigation Scheme (under exeution) in Palamau District; and Kaida, Brahmini and Sonua Irrgation Scheme (completed) and Torlow, Roro and Putungara Irrigation Scheme (under execution) in Singhbhum District.

The Sone Canal System is being remodelled. Besides, Kosi Project which will benifit Saharsa, Purnea and Darbhanga Districts is under execution and Gandak Project which will benefit Champaran, Saran, Musaffarpur and Darbhanga, District has also been taken up.

Besides this, the Irrigation Department have constructed 946 State Tubewells in all, 496 of which are located in South Bihar and 450 in North Bihar. 15 more tubewells are being sunk in South Bihar.

The total water resources available in the South Bihar Plains & Chotanagpur Plateau are 26·99 million acre ft. of which 9·57 million acre ft. can be utilised for assured irrigation of 40 lakh acres at an estimated cost of Rs. 86 crores.

North Bihar abounds in snow-fed rivers and the problem there is primarily that of flood control. Irrigation is provided only in pockets, where the rainfall is erratic and where the area is made partially or wholly flood free. For tackling these problems, North Bihar has been divided into three main river valley zones, viz., (1) Gandak Valley Zone, (2) Adwara Valley Zone and (3) Kosi Valley Zone.

Most of the important rivers of North Bihar have already been embanked or are scheduled to be embanked in the near future with provision of Irrigation-cum-Drainage sluices in the embankments.

This problem of floods is being tackled on a systematic line. Irrigation Schemes have been planned for utilising 13·24 million acre ft. of the water resources available in North Bihar (including the Kosi and Gandak Projects) which will bring under assured irrigation 64 lakh acres of culturable land at an approximate cost of Rs. 98 crores.

The Master plan for irrigation in Bihar envisages assured irrigation facilities for 104 lakh acres of the total 255·60 lakh acres of culturable land in the State at an estimated cost of Rs. 184 crores.

During the First and Second Plan periods Flood Control Schemes including Kosi Flood Control had been undertaken by the State Government at a cost of Rs. 2,329 lakhs and 2,000 miles of additional embankment is nearing completion from which 31·00 lakh acres of land will be protected by the end of the Second Plan.

Flood control is mainly confined to North Bihar. An area of 24·87 lakh acres was protected from flood before the inception of the First Plan. An additional area of 5·75 lakh acres was protected from floods during the First Plan. During the 2nd Plan an additional area of 25 lakh acres will be protected from floods.

Under the drainage scheme 0·37 lakh acres were reclaimed in North Bihar before the First Plan and 0·43 lakh acres during the First Plan.

Upto the end of the 2nd Five Year Plan period for area to be covered by the Minor Irrigation schemes costing less than Rs. 1·00 lakh in Bihar would be 17·71 lakh acres total (inclusive of potential created during the first five year plan period). The total provision on Minor Irrigation works during the 2nd Five Year Plan period was Rs. 399·91 lakhs (minus Community Development).

The foundation of Bihar's first thermal power plant was laid at the village of Chakia near the proposed Barauni oil refinery on January 26, 1960.

The plant will consist of two sets of 15,000 kW. each and cost Rs. 309 lakhs with a foreign exchange component of Rs. 108 lakhs.

The plant will be installed with Yugoslav assistance.

Besides the Barauni Thermal Power Station, construction work of Pathratu Thermal Power Station has been taken up which will supply power mainly to the Hatia Heavy Engineering Project. A total sum of Rs. 1·00 crore has been allotted to Patratu Station this year. Initially this plant will consist of two sets each of 50,000 kW generating capacity. There is a provision for increasing its generating capacity by 250,000 kW during the 3rd Plan period. This scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 12·82 crores of which Rupees one crore were expected to be spent during the Second Plan period and a sum of Rs. 11·82 crores is likely to be spent during the 3rd Plan period. For extension, a sum of Rs. 23·00 crores has been provided out of which Rs. 9 crores are likely to be carried over to the Fourth Plan.

In the beginning two generating sets each of 15,000 kW capacity will be installed in the Barauni Steam Power Station. It is proposed to increase this capacity by 75,000 kW during the 3rd Plan. This scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 3·09 crores. During the 3rd Plan Rs. 0·50 crore has been provided. Rs. 6·50 crores have been provided for extension.

During the Third Plan, work on Gandak Project (10,000 kW) and Kosi Project (20,000 kW) will be taken up. For these Rs. 2·02 crores and Rs. 1·00 crore, respectively, have been provided during the Plan period.

The Government of India is considering a scheme for the extension of the Pathratu Thermal Power Station at Hatiya.

The generating capacity of 100,000 kW. of the thermal station will be increased to 250,000 kW. to meet the demands for power from a number of industrial units, including the Heavy Engineering Corporation, Ranchi. The project, to be implemented by the Bihar State Electricity Board, will be completed during the Third Plan period at an estimated cost of Rs. 12·82 crores.

For Rural Electrification in Bihar, a sum of Rs. 3·00 crores have been provided for the Third Plan.

New construction and extension works of 132,000 volts grid will be taken up during the Third Plan.

LAND TENURE

The land tenure system in Bihar is governed by the following Tenancy Acts: The Bihar Tenancy Act, 1855, The Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, 1908; the Santal Parganas Tenancy (Supplementary Provision) Act, 1949; The Kosi Area (Land Restoration to Raiyats) Act, 1957; The Bihar Privileged Persons Homestead Tenancy Act, 1947; The Bihar Bakast Dispute Settlement Act, 1947; and the Ranchi District Tana Bhagat Raiyats Agricultural Land Restoration Act, 1947. The above Acts protect all types of raiyats against eviction and ensure special privileges to scheduled castes and scheduled tribes against alienation.

The Raiyats in Bihar may be classified into the following classes:—(i) Occupancy raiyats (i.e. raiyats having right of occupancy in the land held by them); (ii) Non-occupancy raiyats (i.e. raiyats not having the right of occupancy); (iii) Under raiyats (i.e. tenants holding immediately or mediately under raiyats). In the Chota Nagpur Division there are two more classes of raiyats viz. (i) Raiyats having Khuntkatti Rights; (ii) Mundari Khurtkattidaris.

The Government of Bihar enacted the Bihar Land Reforms Act, 1950 which provides for the liquidation of Zamindari system in the State.

The Bihar Land Reforms Act, 1950 was put into force with effect from 25th September 1950, and now all intermediary interests have been acquired by the Government. Actually the vesting of the estates started from May 1952. The Zamindari system in Bihar now stands completely abolished.

The Government has laid down a sliding scale for the assessment of compensation. Where the net income does not exceed Rs. 500, the compensation payable is twenty times the net income, and where the net income computed exceeds Rs. 1,00,000 it is payable at three times the amount subject to a minimum of Rs. 4 lakhs.

The total compensation is estimated at about Rs. 160 crores except the interest payable on bonds. Provision has been made for the payment of ad interim compensation.

The assessment of compensation for mines and minerals has either to be fixed by agreement or by a tribunal appointed for the purpose.

As for funds to finance compensation, the proposal for Zamindari abolition in Bihar has been drawn up as a self-liquidating scheme.

The gross rental from the agricultural land, forests, royalty from mines and other miscellaneous sources in the State is about Rs. 10 crores, which is likely to increase further as a result of reclamation of waste lands, the development as well as expansion of the forests, mines, sairats, etc.

The amount of compensation will be paid in cash or in bonds or partly in cash and partly in bonds. The bonds will be either negotiable and transferable, and will be payable in forty equal instalments, and carry interest at two and a half per cent per annum with effect from the date of issue.

The tenant in Bihar has the option to pay rent in cash or kind.

Official statistics show that agricultural production has increased because of the new systems of tenure, the increase being estimated at 722,000 tons at the end of the First Plan.

Legislation for imposing a ceiling on existing or future agricultural holding has not been enacted in the State. The matter is under active consideration of the State legislative since 1959, which has been referred to a joint Select committee. The Select Committee has submitted its report.

The Bihar Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation Act, 1956, provides for the consolidation of holdings and prevention of fragmentation. Actually some pilot projects have been taken up and it was expected that at the end of the Second Plan, about 20 lakh acres of land would have been consolidated.

Waste Land Reclamation

The land reclamation scheme for stepping up food production can be divided into the following, (1) Reclamation of waste land by manual labour, (2) Reclamation of waste land by tractors and soil conservation methods and (3) Land settlement and colonisation.

A pilot project for reclamation of 30,000 acres of heavily eroded areas in the plateau region through heavy unit of tractors at a total cost of Rs. 120 lakhs, had been sanctioned during the 2nd Five Year Plan and the scheme is being executed in the tribal areas of the State. The Central Government have sanctioned subsidy to the extent of 75 per cent of the cost and the balance of 25 per cent is borne by the State Government.

So far 13,500 acres have been reclaimed under this scheme. During 1959-60 a total ceiling of Rs. 31·67 lakhs was provided for the execution of W. L. R. Schemes. During 1959–60, a total area of 6,000 acres of heavily eroded land was reclaimed by tractors of the Central Tractor Organization, D.V.C. and of private contractor. During the same period 6,000 acres were reclaimed by manual labour through the assistance of L. I. Loans and subsidy in the lateritic regions of South Bihar.

A pilot scheme for resettlement of 600 landless agricultural families at a total cost of Rs. 17·75 lakhs has been approved. A colonisation Block has been selected at Burhakurwa in Deoghar Subdivision, in which construction of office, School-cum-Panchayat Ghar and roads, etc. have been completed. Another block at Village Shikandara has been selected for the 2nd colony.

For 1960-61, a sum of Rs. 27·67 lakhs had been proposed and with that ceiling it was expected to reclaim about 15,000 acres of waste land both by tractors and manual labour. At the instance of the Government of India, the Railway Administration concerned with this state, sponsored a scheme for settlement and cultivation of all railway side cutting lands under G.M.F. Programme. These lands are made over to the Collectors by the Railway Authorities who use to settle these lands temporarily with local tenants in giving preference to the members of the scheduled tribes, scheduled castes and backward classes.

Bhoodan

About 23 lakh acres of land have been donated to the Bhoodan Yagna in this State and legislation known as Bihar Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1954, was passed which regulates the transfer of Bhoodan lands to the Committee and also the administration of these lands. A Committee known as the Bihar Bhoodan Yagna Committee has been set up under the Act.

The Chairman and Secretary of the Committee are Shri Gauri Shankar Saran Sinha and Shri Baidya Nath Prasad Choudhary. The Chief Minister, Shri Binodanand Jha is also a member in the Committee.

An amount of Rs. 6,69,000 has been given so far to the committee as grant in aid till 31st March, 1960. The amount given during 1959-60 is Rs.2,00,000 and 1960-61 is Rs.22,000.

Out of 21,06,955 acres of land donated till 30th June, 1960, 2,52,172 acres were distributed among 1,46,662 landless persons and 2½ lakh acres are likely to be distributed early.

The execution of ten pilot projects for the resettlement of 250 families of landless agricultural workers on Bhoodan lands in Bihar had been sanctioned during 1957-58 at a total cost of Rs. 2,50,000 out of which Rs. 96,875 as subsidy and Rs. 56,250 as loan, have been sanctioned by the Government of India and the balance of Rs. 96,875 has been given by the State Government as their share of subsidy. The scheme has been taken up for execution through Co-operative Societies, also known as Sarvodaya Sahyog Samities which have been constituted by the Bihar Bhoodan Yagna Committee. One Assistant Registrar, Co-operative Societies has been placed in charge of each project under the general control and supervision of the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Bihar and necessary funds have been allotted to each of them. Under this scheme a sum of Rs. 1,33,216 towards subsidy and Rs. 30,562 towards loan have already been spent, and 164 Bhoodan families have been resettled and 626 acres of land have been reclaimed.

A scheme for resettlement of 10,000 landless agricultural workers on Bhoodan lands had been sanctioned by the Government of India during 1957-58 at a cost of Rs. 30 lakhs, 75 per cent of which was given as subsidy and the balance of 25 per cent as loan. The entire expenditure has been borne by the Government of India and accordingly they have sanctioned Rs. 22,50,000 as subsidy and Rs. 7,50,000 as loan.

This scheme is being executed through the Bihar Bhoodan Yagna Committee. In each district, where the landless agricultural workers are to be resettled on Bhoodan lands, a District Bhoodan Land Resettlement Committee has been set up with the District Officer as the Chairman, the District Agriculture Officer as a member and representative of the Bihar Bhoodan Yagna Committee as a member Convener. Necessary funds out of the subsidy have also been placed at the disposal of the District Committees. Till the 31st of July 1960 a sum of Rs. 7,69,943 for subsidy and Rs. 2,47,015 for loan have already been spent. 8,331 families have either been resettled or are under process of being re-settled and 10,713 acres of land have been reclaimed.

Scarcity and Relief Operations: The State suffered in 1957-58 drought due to heavy damage to rabi and kharif crops. The total short-fall in production was over 18·6 lakh tons as compared to the average annual production of the five years ending 1956-57.

The amount of expenditure incurred by the State Government on various relief operations came to Rs. 3,00,50,526 during 1957-58 and Rs. 7,88,44,291 during 1958-59.

Due to good harvest, the relief measures during 1959-60 were taken up on a very limited scale and the total amount spent on relief measures during the whole financial year was Rs. 96,61,514.

The yield of kharif crop during 1959-60 was satisfactory except in the districts of Darbhanga, Muzaffarpur and Saharsa where the yield of both ruby and kharif was poor. This necessitated the taking up of relief measures in the above three districts. The total amount spent on relief measures in the whole State till 28th September 1960, was Rs. 46,07,441.

DELHI

Under the Constitution of India, Delhi is a Union Territory.

Parliament administers the areas directly through the Union Home Minister. The chief executive official of the Territory is the Chief Commissioner.

Delhi has an Advisory Council which is associated with the Home Minister.

The Council comprises (1) all members of Parliament representing Delhi, (2) the Mayor, (3) the Vice-Chancellor of Delhi University, (4) the President of the New Delhi Municipal Committee, (5) the Inspector-General of Police, (6) Local M.P.'s and (7) two Advisers (Chairman, Public Relations Committee and Chairman, Industrial Advisory Board, Delhi Administration).

The Council is consulted in regard to the (1) general question of policy relating to the administration of the Territory, (2) all legislative proposals concerning the Territory, including proposals to extend any State Acts, (3) general matters relating to the annual financial statement of the Union in so far as it concerns the Territory and such other financial questions as may be specified by the President and (4) any other matter about which it may be considered necessary or desirable by the Home Minister that the Committee should be consulted.

Subject to the discretion of the Home Minister, members of the Council have the right in regard to interpellations analogous to and under similar limitations as those of members of a State legislature.

The meetings of the Council are presided over by the Home Minister.

Besides, there are two Advisory Boards to advise the Chief Commissioner in regard to industrial matters and public relations. They are presided over by non-officials.

The Highest Court of Appeal in Delhi is the Punjab High Court—a circuit bench sits in Delhi.

GREATER DELHI

Delhi is really the size of a district. The majority of its population lives in the urban areas of Delhi.

Development work is being carried out under the supervision of the Development Department which is assisted by a Rural Development Committee.

The Master Plan, for the entire Greater Delhi area drafted after requisite surveys and investigations, has been approved by the Delhi Development Authority. The Plan makes proposals for Delhi's development upto 1981.

The main railway station is the junction at Old Delhi, from where radiate the railway lines to the Punjab, U.P., Bombay, Calcutta and Madras. The headquarters of the Northern Railway are located here.

The following are the estimated quantities of certain selected commodities imported into the Municipalities of Delhi (monthly average in metric tons) for the calendar year 1959:

Wheat 22,780; Gram 15,601; Rice 3,540; Pulses 1,551; Refined sugar 6,748; Tea 274; Ghee cream and butter 1,061; Dried fruits and nuts 2,045; Provisions 901; Spices 3,012; Steam coal, soft coke and hard coke 53,648; Kerosene oil 4,577 (litres); Hides and skins 511; Agra stones 16,957; Cement 15,234; Chemicals 4,601; Face-cream, powder and tooth paste 77; Hair oil and perfumed oil 39; English medicine 891; Indian medicine 846; Soaps, 2,806; Shoes and apparel 266; Hardware and cutlery 6,414; Photo goods 146; Betel leaf 1,043.

According to 1959 figures there were 8,491 registrations (monthly averages) at the Regional Employment Exchange and 617 placings against 1,102 vacancies notified. The number of registrations on the live register at the close of 1959 was 65,225. The number of registrations for March '60 was 5,231 and placement during the same period 372.

The average number of workers employed latest available (quarter ending Dec. 1959) in processes allied to Agriculture 40; Textile Industry 19,205; Printing, Publishing and allied industries 4,897; Chemical and chemical products industries 1,729; Non-metallic mineral products industries 2,027; Manufacture of metal 4,197; Manufacture of machinery 4,104; Electrical machinery 2,608.

INDUSTRY

Second Plan provision for industries: Rs. 45·87 lakhs. Third Plan provision is likely to be in the neighbourhood of Rs. 3·5 crores.

The main industries are: cotton mills; hand and powerloom weaving; hosiery; pottery; flour mills; vegetable oil mills and expellers; paints and varnishes; rubber goods; imitation jewellery; copper and brass utensils; wire netting; sola hats; leather goods, tanning and fibre industry.

The total number of registered factories at the end of December 1959 was 961.

The number of registered trade unions at the end of 1959 was 375.

Delhi was a great centre of artistic textile fabrics till the end of the Moghul era, and retained some importance till the advent of the modern textile mills. A revival is, however, now taking place under the Handicrafts and Handloom Promotion programmes.

In recent years the handloom industry has grown rapidly owing chiefly to the efforts of the Industries and Co-operative Societies Department, which helped in the promotion of weavers' co-operatives.

In 1959 there were 56 societies and 529 looms. There were 533 weavers and the production in 1959 was estimated at 6,21,500 yards. The target for the Second Plan was 4 lakh yds. a year.

The total number (registered) of handlooms in Delhi by 31st March 1959 was 777. By the end of 1959 there were 846 handlooms in Delhi out of which 589 were in working order. The actual number may be in the neighbourhood of 1,000. The capital invested was between Rs. 3 and 4 lakhs. The industry provides livelihood for about 3,000 persons, and the total production is estimated at 5 lakh yds.

The prototype production-cum-training centre at Okhla Industrial Estate, about 5 miles from Delhi was inaurgurated on March 2, 1961. This is an Indo-German venture which will manufacture prototypes of machines and machine tools and train about 500 workers every year.

The Co-operative Department has opened emporia in Delhi to help marketing. A dye-house has been set up under the control of the Indian Co-operative Union with an expert dyer-cum-printer attached. The Handloom Sales Depot at Jan Path, New Delhi is a centre of all varieties of handloom cloth.

There is also a very flourishing grain market, serving local needs.

As in all towns, different parts of Delhi specialize in different trades. The area round about Chandni Chowk for instance is the centre for textiles and general merchandise. The trade in copper and brass utensils is located in Chawri Bazar, which in addition has a market for hardware. Khari Bawli is the granary of Delhi with the adjoining streets specializing in condiments, spices, pickles, dry fruit, etc. Lal-Kuan Bazar is noted for building material, while Sadar Bazar deals in wholesale hosiery, glass and china-ware and general merchandise. Silver-ware is retailed in Dariba Kalan, while the bullion market is localized in Chandni Chowk.

Almost all the banks have their branches in Connaught Place and Chandni Chowk which are the Chief shopping centres of New Delhi and Delhi respectively.

Tourist traffic has grown into a regular new trade. Almost all the Indian and foreign air companies and travel agencies have offices in New Delhi.

INDUSTRIAL ESTATES

The Okhla Industrial Estate, seven miles south of Delhi and one of the biggest of its kind in India, was built by the National Small Industries Corporation. It was declared open by the Prime Minister in April 1958.

There are 35 factories in the Estate all humming with activity. Forty more units are under construction.

The items manufactured by the units in the Estate include amplifiers, radio parts, electric motors, room coolers, power presses, automobile accessories, bicycle parts, lathes, drilling machines, machine tools, safety razor blades, insulated wires and household and utility articles.

The Regional Small Industries Service Institute has set up a technical guidance and training centre in the Estate.

Nearly Rs. 8 lakh worth of goods are produced by these units every month. There are now over 1,500 workers in the various factories in the Estate.

The Estate was handed over to the Delhi Administration in April 1959.

At the instance of the Government of India it has been proposed to construct a small industrial estate in the Pilot Project Area of Alipur. A site near Badli Railway Station has been acquired and construction work started. Besides, five more Rural Estates are proposed to be set up in various rural areas of Delhi costing about Rs. 150 lakhs.

Important fruits grown in Delhi are bananas, pears, mangoes, pomegranate, lokats, figs, papais, castor-fruit and plums. Efforts are now being made to promote the growing of orchards. A separate Horticultural Department has been set up for this purpose in the Delhi Administration.

The total area under fruits and vegetables during 1958-59 was 20,000 acres and 17,000 acres respectively. Important vegetables grown in Delhi are cauliflower, tomato, peas, potato, radish, brinjal and bhindi.

Delhi now imports most of its fruits. But on large areas—a total of 3,106 acres—in and around the city vegetables are grown.

It is estimated that there is one milch animal for every three or four persons. The average yield of a cow and buffalo comes to 2 seers and 4·2 seers respectively.

The annual average daily production of milk is estimated at 7,000 maunds.

Delhi milk supply: The Central Dairy at Delhi started functioning on November 1959. About 400 mds. of milk are collected from surrounding villages where milk collection, processing and storage arrangements are set up and automatically bottled and sealed.

When in full operation, the dairy will handle about 12,000 mds. of milk daily. To meet the present requirement 7,000 mds. of milk are needed. Pasteurised whole buffalo and cows' milk in sealed half litre bottles at As. 10 per litre and toned milk, at about half this cost are supplied through 200 booths. It is a State Trading Scheme. The outlay on this during 1959-60 was Rs. 4·39 million and 1960-61: Rs. 29·5 million. The profits are expected to go up from Rs. 65,000 in 1959-60 to 3·26 million rupees in 1960-61.

There are about 120 commercial poultry farms. It is believed about 140,000 eggs are daily imported into Delhi at an annual cost of Rs. 45 lakhs. A five-year scheme is in operation which aims at making Delhi self-sufficient in eggs. During 1956-59, 90,355 chicks were hatched. 30,328 chicks are expected to be produced during 1960-61.

The local consumption of fish is estimated at 150 maunds a day. Fish is at present mostly imported, some caught in the Jamuna. The income realised by auction of fishing rights of various portions of Jumuna etc. during 1958-59 was Rs. 28,170. Twenty tanks have been improved in the rural areas of Delhi for stocking fish.

The village development scheme covers all the 309 villages. A sum of Rs. 31 lakhs has been allocated for a period of 5 years. A portion of this will be contributed by the Local Administration and the rest by the Centre towards recurring and non-recurring expenditure.

The Delhi Land Reforms Act, 1954 came into effect on July 20, 1954. The Land Revenue Act provides for a uniform system of Land Revenue administration. Previously, part of the land was under the Punjab laws and part under the U.P. laws.

The Act provides for the abolition of proprietary rights and conferment of ownership on all tenants and sub-tenants from whom compensation would be recovered and paid to owners. The rate of compensation varies from 4 to 40 times the land revenue, according to the nature of tenancy. A stay order passed by the High Court was vacated in April 1956 and implementation of the law is now in progress.

The Delhi Land Reforms Act was amended in October 1956 to exclude areas controlled, notified, held, occupied or owned by the Delhi Improvement Trust from the purview of the Act.

The Delhi Land Reforms (Amendment) Act, 1959 removes some difficulties in the working of the Act and includes Improvement Trust areas excluded by the 1956 Act out of 306 villages, the work of consolidation has been done in 268 villages. Under the Delhi Panchayat Raj (Amendment) Act, 1959, 205 Gaon Panchayats and 22 Circle Panchayats covering all the 305 villages in Delhi, have been established.

The Delhi Landholders (ceiling) Bill passed in Aug. 1960, fixes the ceiling on land holdings at 30 standard acres for a family of five.

Leases in future have been prohibited except by small owners holding less than eight standard acres and persons suffering from a disability. Future tenants will have a minimum term of five years.

The maximum rent has been fixed at one-fifth of the gross produce.

A ceiling has been placed on future acquisition of land holdings at 30 standard acres.

Delhi occupies a pivotal point in the net-work of national railways, highways and airways.

It is one of the biggest railway junctions in the country handling about 23 mail, 30 express trains besides several goods and passenger trains every day.

BHARAT SEWAK SAMAJ
47, Theatre Communications Bldg., New Delhi 1.

A national organization, non-political, non-official in character, devoted to the task of economic and social reconstruction of India by mobilising public participation in the Five Year Plans.

Sponsored by the Planning Commission in 1952, as a result of a recommendation of the National Advisory Committee on Public Cooperation, the Bharat Sevak Samaj has, within a period of nine years, grown into a country-wide organisation with branches in 31 Pradeshes and in about 300 Districts.

The Samaj has carried the message of the Plan to the people through about 200 district information committees and 3,800 village committees. It publishes a monthly bulletin in 15 regional languages.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

The Samaj runs 20 Welfare Extension Projects (Urban) in big industrial towns and cities allotted by the Central Social Welfare Board. The Central Social Welfare Board have further allotted 100 Night Shelters to be run all over the country. Out of these 30 have already started working. Besides, the Samaj runs a large number of Pre-primary & Nursery Schools, Women's Craft Centres, Maternity and Child Health Centres, Harijan Welfare Centres, Adult Education Centres for both men and women, ante-natal and post-natal centres, Ambar Charkha Centres, Milk Centres, Ladies and Children's Clubs, Libraries, Medical-aid Centres or dispensaries and Co-operative Societies.

The Samaj holds work camps as part of its programme of youth activity. It has held 5,076 labour and social service camps in all parts of the country. Nearly 3,00,000 boys and girls have participated in these camps. Special Training Camps and Seminars have also been held to train teachers, Bharat Sevak Samaj workers and youth Leaders.

Construction work has been very important in the Samaj programme. Work costing Rs. 2 crores was done on the Kosi. The Samaj paid higher wages to the workers at the same time bringing down the costs to the public exchequer. Similarly, work costing Rs. 16 lakhs was done on Nagarjunasagar, about Rs. 6 lakhs on the Chambal, and about Rs. 16 lakhs on various other flow protections and drainage works in Delhi.

The Lok Karya Kshetra Scheme is the latest project evolved by the Bharat Sevak Samaj. Each Kshetra is co-terminus with a Community Development block and generally covers about 100 villages. The specific programmes in the Kshetras are generally implemented through the process of self-help and self-financing. An All India Lok Karya Training Centre has been set up to train workers for the Samaj.

More than 1,200 trade unions with a membership of over 15,00,000 workers from all trades and industries throughout the country are affiliated to it. It has 21 Pradesh Branches and 14 Industrial Federations to co-ordinate the work of trade unions. The INTUC aims at eliminating social, political or economic exploitation of workers, organising the workers under trade unions, for securing speedy improvement of conditions of work and life and raising the status of workers in industry and society. The INTUC believes in adopting constitutional and peaceful methods for securing the redressal of grievances of workers according to the Gandhian Ideology.

The INTUC is a founder-member of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, which was formed in 1949, at a World Labour Congress held in London. The INTUC also participates in Conferences and Committees convened by the I.L.O.

If there are Congressmen in the INTUC this is because the ideals of the Congress and the INTUC are identical and not because the INTUC is a Congress body. The INTUC can serve the cause of labour well because members of the INTUC occasionally become Ministers.

GUJARAT

THE State of Gujarat came into being on May 1, 1960. Until its formation as a separate State it was part of the bilingual State of Bombay.

The State was formed through the enactment of a measure called the Bombay Reorganisation Act, 1960.

Capital : Ahmedabad (provisional).

Area : 72,137 sq. miles. Population : 20·62 million (1961 census) (Provisional). See "Late Particulars" for detailed 1961 census figures.

There are 17 Districts and 183 Talukas. The number of municipalities is 147.

Districts with headquarters in brackets are as follows :—

Ahmedabad (Ahmedabad), Baroda (Baroda), Banaskantha (Palanpur), Broach (Broach), Mehsana (Mehsana), Kaira (Kaira), Panch Mahals (Godhra), the Dangs (Ahwa), Surat (Surat), Sabarkantha (Himatnagar), Jamnagar (Jamnagar), Bhavnagar (Bhavnagar) Amreli, (Amreli), Junagadh (Junagadh), Kutch (Bhuj), Rajkot (Rajkot), Surendranagar (Surendranagar).

(For names of talukas and their population see under "Late Particulars").

It should be added here that two of the Districts have been enlarged as a result of the bifurcation — Surat and Broach.

In Surat an existing Taluka, Songadh has been enlarged through the addition of 38 villages each from the Nawapur and Nandurbar Talukas of West Khandesh District. And a new Taluka called Umbergaon has been added which consists of 50 villages formerly in the Umbergaon Taluka of Thana District.

In Broach District the Sagbara Taluka has been enlarged through the addition of 80 villages from the Akkalkuwa and Taloda Talukas of West Khandesh District.

Gujarat State has a unicameral legislature. The strength of the Legislative Assembly is 132 (will be 154 after the next election). The State sends 11 members to the Rajya Sabha and 22 to the Lok Sabha.

Certain institutions located in Bombay State,* would continue to provide the same facilities to the people of Gujarat as they did before bifurcation.

Though the State has fertile land it is deficit in food to the extent of one million tons a year. Its resources of industry and power are at the present time low. There is also a surprisingly high percentage of backward and Scheduled Classes and Scheduled Tribes. They constitute 84 per cent of the population of Dangs, 47 per cent in Surat, 41 per cent in Panch Mahals, 37 per cent in Broach and 18 per cent in Baroda. One bright feature is the possibility of the existence of mineral oil in the Cambay region where drilling is in progress.

It is expected that Gujarati would be the language of administration. Acts of the former Bombay Government have been published in Gujarati. The former Baroda and Kathiawad States have had a long experience of Gujarati in the administration and the law courts. The Gujarat University's schedule seeks to make Gujarati the medium of instruction and examination by 1961.

GEOGRAPHY

Gujarat State is situated on the west coast of India between 20·1 and 24·7 degrees north latitude and 68·4 and 74·4 degrees east longitude. The State is bounded by the Arabian Sea on the west, Rajasthan in the north and east, Madhya Pradesh in the south-east and Maharashtra in the south.

The bigger rivers are Banas, Saraswati, Sabarmati, Mahi and of course, the Narmada and Tapti. The smaller rivers are Machhu, Badar, Shetrunji and Damanganga. The land slopes gradually from the east to the west. The soils are of two classes the black cotton soil which yields the famous Broach cottons, the finest in India and alluvial which under careful cultivation in Ahmedabad and Kaira make splendid garden land. The plains watered by the Narmada and Tapti are very rich. Their fertility is so marked that they are sometimes called the Garden of India.

South Gujarat, where the rainfall varies between 30″ and 60″. The annual range in temperature is wide.

North Gujarat, where the rainfall varies between 20″ and 40″ but is mostly around 40″ in Godhra and 25″ in Viramgam. The area has lower winter temperatures.

South-central Saurashtra and the Cambay region : The rainfall is 25″ and over.

Kutch, which is semi-desert, the rainfall being very low.

The percentage of area under barren and unculturable land is very high. This is partly because of extensive barren lands in Kutch. The State is rich in permanent pastures and grazing lands.

The per capita income is Rs. 272 compared with Rs. 254 for the Indian Union as a whole. The main source of income is, of course, agriculture. The figures in Rs. crores for 1954–55 are :—

Agriculture, animal husbandry, ancillary activities 209·5 ; mining, manufacturing and small enterprises 106·6 ; commerce, transport, communications 81·0 ; other services 68·9.

The main food grains are bajri, jawar, rice and wheat. Rice is grown chiefly in the south Gujarat districts of Kaira, Panch Mahals, Baroda and Surat ; cereals are grown in the north Gujarat and Saurashtra Districts. Wheat is grown more especially in north Gujarat and to some extent in Saurashtra. The district of Panch Mahals is also noted for maize. The total production of 19·6 lakh tons gives a per capita consumption of 11 ozs. a day. The State has a food deficit of one million tons a year.

Among non-foodgrains crops, cotton and maize are important. More than one-fifth of the area under cotton in the Indian Union is in this State.

The State has limited forest resources. The area occupied is about 8·4 per cent of the total geographical area of the State. The forest areas are concentrated mainly in Dangs, Junagadh, Panch Mahals, Baroda, Broach, Surat and Banaskantha Districts and to some extent in Jamnagar and Kutch.

The major forest produce is teak, bamboos, yellow wood, red wood, black wood, sandal wood, Khar, Simal, Dhumda, Dudhia, etc. Minor forest produce is grass, honey, wax, colouring wood. Dangs has rich teak forests. The Gir forests in Saurashtra contain a lions' sanctuary, the only one in India.

About livestock, there is a high proportion of she-buffaloes over three years. The State is noted for its high yield of milk per head of cattle. Certain breeds like Kankrej and Gir are well-known. The high milk yield generally contributes to the high production of milk and dairy products.

Banking facilities are better than elsewhere ; there is a bank for every 33,000. Of the different areas in the State Rajkot has the highest facilities.

Gujarat is rich in minerals like salt, limestone, manganese, gypsum, china clay, calcite, bauxite, etc. Kaira is rich in bauxite and limestone, while calcite and limestone are mined in Jamnagar. Manganese is mined in Baroda and Panch Mahals, while fireclay is mined in Surendranagar District. Gypsum is available in all the districts of Saurashtra.

Recently oil and natural gas have been found at Lunej in the Cambay region and Baroda where drilling is in progress. A refinery is to be set up in the State shortly.

Oil has been struck at Kalol near the proposed new capital Gandhinagar.

The major industries of the State are textile (including ginning and pressing of cotton), general and electrical engineering, vegetable oils, chemicals (including salt), soda ash and cement. The concentration of industry is most striking in Ahmedabad where nearly one-fourth or 856 of the factories in the State are registered.

The distribution would roughly be as follows:— textiles and its ancillaries in Ahmedabad, silver thread in Surat, cement at Porbandar, Dwarka and Sikka, chemicals around Baroda.

A dozen industrial estates are proposed to be located in underdeveloped areas so that there may be one such estate in each district by the end of the Third Five-Year Plan. The Government has also decided to carry out pilot plant tests of certain minerals for industrial use.

Power development in Gujarat is higher than the average for India. About 53 per cent of the number of towns is electrified.

The implementation of the Ukai project may make a big difference to the industrialisation of southern Gujarat. The first stage of the Narmada Project costing Rs. 42 crores was inaugurated on April 5, 1961.

Road transport is satisfactory for the State as a whole — 20·75 miles per 100 square miles of area or 93·7 miles per lakh of population. The position is good in Rajkot and south Gujarat and more especially in Dangs. It is poor in Jamnagar, Surendranagar, Banaskantha, Sabarkanta, Mehsana and Panch Mahals. It is poorest in Kutch.

Saurashtra has a net-work of railways. The Baroda area is also well-served. But railway communication is very poor in Dangs.

There are 58 ports in Gujarat (one major, eight medium, 49 minor). The bigger ports with their annual turnover :—Kandla (10,68,727 tons), Okha (3,79,000 tons), Bedi (3,61,000 tons), Bhavnagar (2,28,951 tons), Verawal (1,70,000 tons), Sikka (1,62,260 tons), Porbandar (1,45,664 tons).

About education nearly 15 per cent of the population attends school.

There are three universities in Gujarat — the Gujarat University in Ahmedabad, the Sayajirao University in Baroda and the Sardar Vallabhbhai Rural University in Anand. The establishment of two more universities one at Rajkot and the other in South Gujarat is under consideration.

Each Government dispensary or hospital in the State serves about 18,000 of the population and each bed about 2,400. On an average about 8,540 persons register every month for employment. Out of this about 847 are placed in employment.

The Second Plan outlay for the State was Rs. 145·88 crores or Rs. 91 per capita.

NEW CAPITAL

The Government had decided to build the new capital of the State at Gadhinagar, 15 miles north of Ahmedabad City on the west bank of the Sabarmati river.

In view of the find of oil at Kalol near the proposed capital and the prospect of getting coal near that locality, it is still an open question.

UKAI PROJECT

The foundation stone of this project was laid on Nov. 27, 1959. The dam would stand about 70 miles from Surat on the river Tapti in Surat District. It is a power-cum-irrigation project, costing about Rs. 60 crores which would help the industrial development of southern Gujarat. It is also notable because the building of a dam here led to the necessity of the transfer of some villages from Dhulia Dist. in Maharashtra to Gujarat as they would be flooded by the reservoir.

The dam would be about two miles long and 345 feet high. The reservoir will contain more than six million acre feet of water and will be 200 sq. miles in area.

The project will irrigate 550,000 acres of land. The installed capacity would be 110,000 kW with three lines to Dhulia (Maharashtra), Baroda and Utran respectively. It will take eight years to complete.

It will help grow an additional 113,000 tons of foodgrains, 28,000 tons of cotton, and 52,000 tons of sugarcane annually.

HOUSING

We give below a note on the work of the Saurashtra Housing Board year by year. The rest of Gujarat was covered by the Bombay Housing Board of the former bilingual State.

1953–55: During these two years 700 subsidised industrial tenements were constructed under subsidised Industrial Housing Scheme. The distribution of these houses was as follows: Bhavnagar 200, Jamnagar 200, Rajkot 200, Surendranagar 200, Junagadh 40.

1956–57: During this year 834 tenements were constructed. The distribution was Rajkot 310, Surendranagar 224, Junagadh 240, Jamnagar 60.

The above tenements are all one roomed, with a total floor space (including bath, W.C.) of about 280 sq. ft. The ceiling cost of each room is Rs. 2,700. The Government of India has fixed the standard rent at Rs. 10 p.m. with services charges extra.

1957–58: During this year 400 tenements were constructed. The distribution was Rajkot 200, Surendranagar 150, Bhavnagar 50.

During 1958–59 the Board took up the construction of 680 tenements. All except 150 in Surendranagar were completed. The distribution was Rajkot 366, Surendranagar 150, Bhavnagar 164.

The ceiling on the cost of the above tenements is Rs. 3,300 and the standard rent fixed by the Government of India is Rs. 12·50.

The Saurashtra Housing Board has also undertaken to develop the plots of land under the Low Income Group Housing Scheme. Acquisition proceedings for the land are under progress. For this Scheme, Government have already placed an amount of Rs. 4 lakhs at the disposal of the Board.

Agriculture and Community Development: (3,591·91) 1,045·00; Irrigation & Power: (5,755·95) 1,204·00; Industry and Mining: (476·18) 76·00; Transport and Communications: (1,675·57) 317·00; Social Services: (2,797·43) 794·00; Scientific and Industrial Research: (285·05) 30·00. Grand total: (14,588·01), 3,462·00. Expenditure incurred in the 1st four years of Plan: Rs. 109·59 crores.

PLANNING

Two policy decisions are: Gujarati will be the language of administration, law courts and university, and Hindi for communication with the Union Government.

Under planning the main effort will be to wipe out the State's food deficit estimated at between one million and 1·8 million tons. The State's requirements are estimated at 3·5 million tons a year, and the target is set at 3·8 million tons.

About Rs. 100 crores are expected to be spent on the increase of food production—for irrigation, fertilizers, seed farms, improved methods of agriculture.

While more than Rs. 38 crores out of the Rs. 49 crores earmarked for irrigation will be for spill-over schemes from the Second Plan, the remainder will be spent on 23 medium and minor irrigation projects (three in Gujarat, 13 in Saurashtra and seven in Kutch) and on part of the Rs. 14-crore Sabarmati project.

The utilisation of river waters for irrigation in Gujarat is expected to be increased from 22·5 per cent. to nearly 40 per cent. by the end of the Third Plan.

Under the scheme called the package plan an intensive drive is to be undertaken to increase the yield per acre.

There are at present 52 seed farms in Saurashtra and 66 in Gujarat.

Gujarat State Financial Corporation: See "State Financial Corporations".

An attempt will be made to impose a ceiling on cultivable area under cash crops. Now this is about 41 per cent. of the whole area under cultivation in Gujarat.

The Gujarat Land Ceilings Bill was moved in the Gujarat Legislative Assembly in Sept. 1960. The Bill seeks to fix ceilings on existing land holdings and on future acquisitions of land applicable uniformly throughout the State. The ceilings proposed in the Bill are dry crop land: from 56 to 132 acres; rice or paddy land: from 28 to 66 acres: seasonally irrigated land: 28 to 66 acres; perenially irrigated land: 14 to 33 acres. The Bill was subsequently referred to a Select Committee of the Assembly.

In ten districts less than one per cent. of landholders possess more than 48 acres each, just over ten per cent. between 16 and 48 acres each and over 88 per cent. have less than 16 acres each, which forms the economic holding for Jirayat land. The average holding per capita is barely five acres.

In 1948, there were as many as 27 different systems of land tenure in vogue in Gujarat. Some uniformity has now been introduced in levying land revenue.

In addition to solving the ticklish agrarian problems as in the Pardi grass-lands, the Bill provides land for the landless, accelerate the consolidation of holdings and pave the way for a voluntary system of co-operative farming as envisaged by the Planning Commission and the Congress Party.

Other points under planning are given below:

Free and compulsory primary education is to be extended to all areas in the new State for children in the 6–11 age-group. It will cost the Government Rs. 6 crores. Special emphasis is to be laid on girls' education and by the end of the Third Plan there will be a high school within five miles of every village.

The establishment of additional polytechnics and industrial workshops is another feature of the education programme.

The Third Plan period would include a scheme for the eradication of malaria in the State. The scheme would be worked out in co-operation with the World Health Organisation and the Union Government. It would cost Rs. 1·4 crores.

The State Government plans to establish a Rs. 40-lakh vaccine laboratory at Baroda to supply anti-malarial, anti-tuberculosis and anti-small-pox vaccines.

Another feature of the State's Third Plan is said to be the allocation of Rs. 8·5 crores for the development of intermediate and minor ports.

AHMEDABAD DISTRICT

Headquarters: Ahmedabad. (Provisional Capital of Gujarat).

Talukas or Mahals: Deskroi, Dhandhuka, Dholka, Dehgam, Viramgam, City Taluka, Sanand.

A district in Gujarat, it lies between North Latitude 28° 23′ and 23° 37′ and East Longitude 71° 21′ and 70° 28′. It is bounded on the north by Mehsana and Sabarkantha Districts, on the west by Surendranagar District, on the south by Bhavnagar District and on the east by Kaira. The total area of the District is 3,502 sq. miles. The language spoken is Gujarati.

In the extreme south of the District and also just beyond the northern boundary are a few rocky hills. But between these two points the whole District forms a level plain, gradually rising towards the north and east. The chief physical feature is the river Sabarmati which rises in the north-east, near the extremity of the Aravalli Range and flows towards the south-west falling finally into the Gulf of Cambay.

The District as a whole is open and poorly wooded. The chief trees are mango, rayan, mahua and nim. Many of the trees and shrubs supply food, medicines and material for dyeing and tanning.

The rainfall varies but slightly between the central portions of the District and the outlying tracts. The annual rainfall averages about 30 inches.

The principal towns in the District are besides Ahmedabad, Viramgam, Dholka, Daskroi, Dhandhuka, Dholera, Dehgam and Sanand. Dehgam taluka has been selected for development under the village extension services scheme.

The chief food crops are wheat, jowar and bajra and the chief money crop, cotton. The best rice is grown in Daskroi and the next best in Sanand and Dholka. The cotton which has a good staple is mainly grown in the Dhandhuka and Dholka Talukas. In Daskroi and Dholka many garden crops are also grown.

Ahmedabad city which is the second biggest textile centre in India is the only large industrial area in the District. The number of textile mills and factories is about 150 including 71 textile mills with a total number of 2,091,834 spindles and 41,720 looms and employing a daily average number of 1,30,916 workers, as on August 31, 1959. The approximate quantity of cotton consumed in 1959 was 707,032 bales of 3½ Cwts. per bale. The total invested capital is Rs. 110 crores. In 1957, Ahmedabad mills accounted for 57·25 per cent of the country's output and 38 per cent of superfine cloth. The Employees' State Insurance Scheme for workers and their families covering half a million people, is to be launched shortly. Ahmedabad is also a centre of railway communications. One line from Ahmedabad goes south-east to Baroda and Bombay; another goes south to Dholka; a third goes west to Viramgam where it joins the Saurashtra railway system; a fourth goes north-east through Parantij; and a fifth north through Palanpur and Ajmer. Ahmedabad has also a number of archaelogical landmarks and an international diversionary airport. Ahmedabad's 50-Kilo Watt Broadcasting station is equipped to reach even remote villages in Gujarat State.

With the establishment of the Gujarat University, Ahmedabad has become an important educational centre. It has over 30,000 alumni in Gujarat, Saurashtra and Kutch. The Ahmedabad Textile Industry's Research Association is the first institute of its kind in the whole of India. Ahmedabad is linked by air with Bombay, Jaipur, Delhi and Karachi.

The population of Ahmedabad City according to the 1961 census is 11·5 lakhs. Ahmedabad Corporation was established in 1950.

HIMACHAL PRADESH

Area: 10,904 sq. miles; Population: 1·35 million (Provisional) 1961 census; Administration Headquarters: Simla; Strength of Territorial Council: 43 (41 elected and 2 nominated).

The Centrally administered territory of Himachal Pradesh comprises 22 former Punjab Hill States and their 9 tributaries. The 22 States are Baghal, Baghat, Balsan, Bilaspur, Bushahr, Bhaji, Beja, Chamba, Darkoti, Dhami, Jubbal, Keonthal, Kumarsain, Kunihar, Kuthar, Mehlog, Mandi, Mangal, Sangri, Sirmur, Suket and Tharoch.

The 9 tributaries are Delath, Dhadi, Ghund, Khaneti, Koti, Madhan, Ratesh, Rawingarh and Theog.

The State came into being on April 15, 1948.

Bilaspur was merged into Himachal Pradesh on July 1, 1954.

Himachal Pradesh lies between North Latitude 30° 22′ 40″ to 33° 12′ 40″ and East Longitude 75° 47′ 55″ and 97° 4′ 20″. It is bounded on the north by the Jammu and Kashmir State, on the south by Tehri-Garhwal and Dehra Dun Districts of Uttar Pradesh and the Ambala District of Punjab; on the west by Ambala, Hoshiarpur and Kangra. On the east the boundaries are undefined.

The Territory is divided into six administrative districts, Mahasu, Sirmur, Mandi, Chamba, Bilaspur and Kinnaur.

Mahasu District is divided into the following tehsils and sub-tehsils.

Tehsils: Rampur (Bushahr), Rohru, Chopal, Jubbal, Theog, Arki, Solan and Kasumpti. Sub-Tehsils: Kumarsain, Suni and Kotkhai.

About 95 per cent of the total population are agriculturists.

Kinnaur District, the border district which was constituted in May 1960, was carved out of areas which originally formed part of the Mahasu district. For administrative purposes, the district is sub-divided into three sub-divisions: Kalpa, Nichhar and Pooh which are administered by Sub-divisioned Offices. The district is mainly inhabited by Kinner tribesmen.

Sirmur District is divided into four Tehsils, Nahan, Pachhad, Rainka and Paonta. About 95 per cent the total population depends upon agriculture.

Mandi District contains the Tehsils of Mandi Sadar, Karsog, Sundernagar, Joginder nagar, Sarkaghat and Chachiot. A great majority of the total Population depends upon agriculture.

Chamba District is divided into the Tehsils of Chamba, Churah and Bhattiyat and the Sub-tehsils of Bharmaur and Pangi. Practically all persons are agriculturists.

Bilaspur District lies on both the banks of the Sutlej River and is divided into two tehsils Bilaspur and Ghumarwin. Agriculture is the main occupation of the people.

For population of Districts according to 1961 census see "Late Particulars."

ECONOMY

The main agricultural wealth of the Territory consists in potatoes and fruits such as apple, apricot, plum, peach, nuts, pomegranate.

The climatic conditions in this Territory are suitable for the growing of a large variety of fruits. Citrus and other sub-tropical fruits like mango, guava, loquat, pomegranate are grown in the valleys while stone fruits are grown in low and mid-hills. Apples and pears are grown in the cooler regions. The superior varieties of apples which were restricted to a few progressive areas like Kotgarh and Kotkhai are now grown extensively in other parts of the Pradesh. At present about one lakh maunds of apples are exported to various parts of India. With the new orchards fast coming up, the production of fruit will increase considerably during the 3rd Five Year Plan.

Salt is another important item; while forests yield timber, fire-wood and charcoal. Handicrafts which include Pashmina shawls, wool of fine quality, resin, herbs, musk and skins are another source of income.

Himachal Pradesh forests supply the largest quantities of coniferous timber in Northern India. They are the main source of revenue in the Territory, the estimated revenue during 1959-60 being Rs. 181 lakhs including revenue from the sale of resin and turpentine. The entire Territory is divided into three forest circles which are further sub-divided into 12 territorial divisions. Circles: Chamba, Simla, Sirmur. Sub-divisions: Simla: Upper Bushahr, Lower Bushahr, Simla, Solan and Bilaspur. Chamba: Chamba, Chaurah, Mandi and Suket. Sirmur: Jubbal, Rajgarh and Nahan.

A forest utilization division has recently been opened to develop the forest resources of the Territory. A separate circle for Soil conservation will be started during 1961-62. The forests are also useful in ensuring the safety of the catchment areas of the Jumna, Sutlej, Beas, Ravi and Chenab rivers. On the protection of these catchment areas depends the steady and constant flow of water in these rivers, and the success of irrigation and engineering works in the plains.

Seed potato is the chief cash crop in which the Territory has established itself as an important supplier to the plains of India. In 1959-60 alone, seed potatoes worth Rs. 1·25 crores were sold to other parts of India. The total acreage under potatoes, which was about 18,000 in 1950-51, stood at 24,000 in 1958-59.

One of the oldest foundries of the country is located at Nahan besides a resin and turpentine factory.

Five year plan investment for 1961-62: about Rs. 5·209 crores. The total investment for the whole plan is likely to be about Rs. 16·363 crores.

Electricity.—The length of transmission lines of electricity is 678 miles in the Territory and the number of Sub-Stations 172. The total installed capacity by the end of the Second Plan was expected to be 830 kW.

During the Second Plan period, a micro or baby hydel set was installed at Chhaila, for harnessing the waters of the Giriganga. This power house has been meeting the demands for electricity from the nearby villages.

JAMMU AND KASHMIR STATE

Capital: Srinagar.

Area: 84,471 sq. miles; Population: 3·58 million (Provisional) (1961 census).

Official language: Urdu; Regional languages: Kashmiri, Dogri, Balti, Dardi, Punjabi, Paheri, Ladakhi. There are three municipalities, 26 town area committees and four notified area committees in the State.

The State has now a Legislative Assembly (100 including 25 for occupied areas) and a Legislative Council (36).

For administrative purposes, the State is divided into two provinces: Kashmir (including the Frontier District) and Jammu.

Districts: in Kashmir Province: Srinagar, Baramulla, Anantnag and the Frontier District of Ladakh; in Jammu Province: Jammu, Kathua, Udhampur, Doda and Poonch.

For population of districts and tehsils according to the 1961 Census see "Late Particulars."

The Jammu and Kashmir State constituting the extreme western section of the Himalayas, lies between 32°17′ and 36°58′ north latitude, and 73°26′ and 80°30′ east longitude.

Non-Muslims form about 23 per cent of the total population. Culturally both Muslims and Hindus belong to the same group. Consequently, they speak the same language and have common customs and conventions, and sometimes even places of common worship.

About 10·3 per cent of the total population is urban. There are 2 cities, 37 towns and 8,740 villages in the whole State.

A double tube 1½ miles long low level tunnel, the Jawahir Tunnel, was bored through the mountain of Banihal and traffic has been allowed through both the tubes. The tunnel has provided an all weather link between Kashmir Valley and the outside world. The tunnel is officially called the Jawahir Tunnel after the Prime Minister.

AGRICULTURE

Kashmir State has a delightful climate, though winter months are very cold. The maximum recorded temperature of the Kashmir Valley is 99·3 degrees and the minimum 11°. In Jammu the temperature in summer goes upto 115°, or sometimes even higher, but comes down to 30° and even to 20° during winter in some parts of the State. The average rainfall for the whole of the State is 28·45″.

Forests hold an important place in the economy of the State. They yield fine wood of many varieties, medicinal herbs and also provide game and fodder for the cattle.

The oldest forest industry is that of rosin and turpentine.

Agriculture is the main occupation of the people. But only 3·6 per cent of the total area is cultivable, and the remaining portion is full of mountains and deserts. The total amount of land actually under cultivation in the State is 2,069,767 acres. The main crops grown are rice and maize, and in Jammu wheat and maize. The State on the whole is deficit with regard to food supply.

The total area of the State in acres is 54 million. Out of this the culturable area today would be of the order of 2·1 million acres.

Total irrigation potential created upto March 1958: 10,000 acres. Total area irrigated as a result of this newly created potential upto March 1958: 3,330 acres. Percentage of utilization upto March 1958: 33.

The Government passed the 'Big Landed Estates Abolition Act' in 1951, by virtue of which the right of ownership held by a landlord owning more than 22¾ acres was extinguished without compensation and was thereafter vested in tillers of such lands. In pursuance of this Act, the Government distributed the land held by big landlords (as defined in the Act) among the tillers and thus landlordism, to a large extent, was abolished in the State. 8,989 persons held more than 22¾ acres each and together accounted for 900,000 acres. The area of land from which expropriation took place without compensation was 4·5 lakh acres. About 2·3 lakh acres of land were transferred in ownership right to about 2 lakh tillers with more than 7 lakh dependents. Land vested in the State amounted to 2·2 lakh acres.

The Government has a land settlement drive beginning with Baramulla and Poonch districts.

Tenants holding lands at the commencement of the Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1955 were declared protected tenants. Landlords have a right to resume land for personal cultivation from them to the extent of two acres of wet land or four acres of dry land in Kashmir Province and four acres of wet land or six acres of dry land in Jammu Province. However, where the holding of a landlord exceeds four acres of wet land or six acres of dry land in Kashmir Province and six acres of wet land or eight acres of dry land in Jammu Province, the protected tenant will have to be left with a minimum area of two to six acres.

The maximum rent payable by tenants owning more than 12½ acres is not to exceed one-fourth of the gross produce for wet lands and one-third for dry lands. In the case of other tenants it is not to exceed half of the gross produce. Ceiling on holdings has been fixed at 22¾ acres. This limit applies to lands owned by proprietors.

Rural debts were scaled down thus bringing relief to the indebted rural population.

Various irrigation schemes with a capacity of irrigating about 19,000 acres of land were completed during 1958-59. Work of Kathua Feeder of the Ravi Pratap Canal has been intensified during 1959-60. The Government have drawn up a Master Plan for flood-protection of the Valley. Work on outfall channel from Wular Lake to Baramulla is in progress and is calculated to protect the valley against floods.

About 44 seed multiplication farms have been set up and 90,000 mds. of ammonium sulphate have been distributed during 1959-60.

INDUSTRY, MINERALS

Woollen textile manufacturing is the biggest single industry in the State. It gives employment to about 300,000 people, including both part-time and whole-time workers. Kashmir woollens, such as shawls, carpets, namdas and gabhas have a world-wide popularity.

Next in importance comes the silk industry. Kashmir filatures are the largest in the world for a single unit of production, and produce one of the finest quality silks.

Silk worm rearers number about 60,000. The total number of persons employed would be over 100,000 and the number dependent on the silk industry would be about a million. The industry is run by a Government department. (For more details see article on Silk and Sericulture).

The joinery mill is a unique venture, as few such industries exist outside Europe and North America. The factory has an installed capacity for the manufacture of 36,000 doors and 36,000 windows which on an average should mean a turn-over of goods worth Rs. 35 lakhs per year.

Two other factories set up are a tannery and a carpet factory.

Papier-mache, silver-ware, and wood-carving are among the other minor industries of the State.

The industrial co-operatives include carpet weaving, pashmina weaving and embroidery, chain stitch weaving, tapestry weaving, wood carving and papier-mache. The total value of the goods sold by the Induscos in one year is about Rs. 3 lakhs.

Production centres of calico printing, khadi, wooden articles, hand-made paper etc. have been started at various places in both the Provinces.

The total no. of factories in the State: about 50.

Total labour: over 5,000.

Total no. of workers in cottage industries: about 14,500.

Woollen manufactures, silks, forest products such as timber, herbs, some chemicals, furs and skins, and fruit and vegetables are the main items of export, whereas foodstuffs, textiles, sugar and tea, spices and hardware form the main imports into the State.

The following is a list of the minerals found in the State: Coal, Lignite (possibilities of petroleum), Bauxite, Iron ore, Copper ore, Lead, Zinc, Nickel ore, Manganese, Gold, Arsenic, Chromite, Ochre, Gypsum, Graphite, Kaoline, Bentonite, Fuller's Earth, Marble, Slate, Steatite, Turpentine, Barytes, Corrundum (Sapphire and Ruby), Beryl and Aquamarine and Tour-mallin.

Tertiary coal deposits in Jammu occupy an important position in the economy of north India. The two fields are Jangal Gali about 40 miles from Jammu and Kalakot about 75 miles from Jammu.

Soapstone, barytes and china clay are worked by the Mining Department of the State and products sent to the Government Paint and Mineral Factory at Jammu.

The sapphire mines are about 200 miles from Jammu.

Gypsum deposits occur about 40 miles from Jammu.

The Government Art Emporium has about 100 production centres at which local craftsmen and artisans work.

There is a State Financial Corporation. The Government have also established a corporation with an authorized capital of Rs. 5 crores for the commercial exploitation of mineral deposits in the State.

Industrial estates have been set up to encourage the private sector by affording them facilities for industrial development.

An agreement was signed on June 17, 1961 between the Kashmir Government and the Sahu-Jain Ltd. for setting up a group of plywood industries in Kashmir. Under the agreement a joint company is envisaged with an authorized capital of Rs. one crore of which Rs. 95 lakhs would be subscribed by the Sahu-Jain group.

Power Schemes: During the First Five-Year Plan, the Rs. 2·30 crore Sindh Hydro-electric Project was completed and the production of electric power increased from 5,110 kWs. to 11,461 kWs.

The Ganderbal Project, the first phase of which was completed during the First Five Year Plan and the 2nd phase of which was to be completed by the end of the 2nd Plan, envisages generation of 9,000 kWs. of power by installation of two additional generating sets of 4,500 kWs. each. Much of the work has been completed.

In addition the scheme envisages the purchase of 5,000/6,000 kWs. of power from the Punjab Government for meeting additional load in Jammu as the existing generating capacity is insufficient.

Irrigation: The Government of India has approved the Kathua Canal Project for irrigation of over 30,000 acres of land of kharif and rabi crops in the State, and has sanctioned Rs. 15 lakhs as loan for financing expenditure on the project for 1959-60.

The total estimated cost is Rs. 66·6 lakhs.

Tourism in the State: Tourist traffic is one of the main sources of income both to the State and the people.

A sum of Rs. 124 lakhs would have been spent on the development of tourism in Kashmir by the end of the Second Five-Year Plan. The State proposes to spend about Rs. two crores for that purpose during the Third Plan. Numerous schemes for providing more facilities to tourists are envisaged.

No. of tourists during 1957: 43,018 (37,172 Indians, 5,846 non-Indians); during 1958: 60,557 (54,017 Indians, 6,540 non-Indians); during 1959: 71,220 (61,560 Indians; 9,660 non-Indians); during 1960 (upto the middle of October): 69,646 (59,715 Indians, 9,931 non-Indians).

EDUCATION

Education was declared free throughout the State from Primary to the University stage, in the year 1953.

	1958–59	1959–60
Primary schools ..	2,542	2,910 (includes Maktabs, Pathshala and aided)
Secondary schools ..	456	534
Colleges	12	12

Against the total number of scholars attending educational institutions in the year 1951–52 which was 1,32,000, the number went up to 2,83,000 in 1959-60. The number of girl students in schools before the First Plan was nearly 19,500 and it has now risen to over 34,000. In 1957 a Polytechnic was also opened at Srinagar.

A Medical College has been established for the first time in 1959 with a seating capacity of 150 students every year. The State's first Engineering College has been established during 1959-60.

The budget for education has risen from Rs. 33·47 lakhs to about Rs. 2 crores in 1960-61.

In 1958 two industrial training institutes one at Jammu and the other at Srinagar, were opened.

(For detailed statistical information on education in the State, see Education Tables under 'Late Particulars').

ROAD DEVELOPMENT

In respect of means of communication the State was very backward having a very poor road system. Before the Plan was taken in hand there were 2·5 miles of road per 100 sq. miles and only one mile of road per 2,000 of population. There were only 1,600 miles of motor road, 427 miles of jeep track and 2,400 miles of bridle path.

During the Plan Period, 425 miles of new road were constructed, 482 miles of existing roads improved and over 20 major bridges of 7,000 ft. aggregate length constructed.

Road building entered a distinct phase of development during the 2nd Plan period. The total length of the roads in Kashmir Province alone by the end of 1959-60 has approximately been 1,197 miles excluding bridle roads, thus achieving nearly 70 per cent of the targets in the first four years of the 2nd Plan. A net work of roads has been laid in the other parts of the State. The Leh-Kargil road, about 150 miles long, has been recently completed.

PUBLIC HEALTH

There are two central hospitals at Srinagar (450 beds) and Jammu (250 beds), two tuberculosis hospitals at Srinagar (190 beds) and Jammu (70 beds).

Number of Sanatoria: 2. One at Tangmarg with 63 beds (35 paid) and one at Balote with 30 free beds.

No. of District Hospitals: 7. Each has a bed strength of 30 with arrangements for anti-rabic treatment. Pathological, gynaecological, surgical, laboratory and dental treatment is also provided.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

There are two central laboratories attached to the two central hospitals.

Under the B.C.G. campaign 25 lakh people have been tested and 13 lakh vaccinated so far (Nov. 1960).

The table below gives the details:

(See under 'Late Particulars')

HOUSING

A Housing Board under the Chairmanship of the Prime Minister, Jammu and Kashmir deals with housing schemes in the State.

A sum of Rs. 95,00,000 had been allocated by the Government of India for the Low Income Group Housing, Industrial and Village Housing and Slum Clearance Schemes under the Second Five-Year Plan.

One hundred and eighty-two quarters have been built in the newly established townships of Gandhinagar, Jammu (104 quarters), and Jawaharnagar, Srinagar (50 quarters), on Government account. About 700 houses have been constructed by Government servants in the low-income group in both the townships.

The loan assistance offered to various classes of Government servants in different income groups is Rs. 2,500, Rs. 3,000, Rs. 3,500 and Rs. 4,500.

FIVE-YEAR PLANS

The State Government revised the First Five-Year Plan to meet the genuine requirements and needs of the people. The provision for the Plan was raised from Rs. 700·00 lakhs to Rs. 973·21 lakhs in the Central Sector and from Rs. 300·00 lakhs to Rs. 300·94 lakhs in the case of the State Sector.

The State's Second Five Year Plan is estimated to involve a total outlay of Rs. 3,392·07 lakhs as against Rs. 1,274·2 lakhs of the First Five-Year Plan. The Plan gives high precedence to the development of agriculture and industry and the expansion of educational and medical facilities. It is estimated that employment opportunities to the tune of 14·85 lakh man-months will be created during the Plan-Period.

THIRD PLAN: The Planning Commission has pruned the outlay on Kashmir's Third Plan from Rs. 169 crores to Rs. 95 crores.

The outlay on the core of the Plan will be Rs. 75 crores. Of this amount, the State Government has undertaken to raise Rs. 13 crores during the next five years. Besides this, a sum of Rs. 6 crores has been allocated for matching schemes.

The Planning Commission has fixed the ceiling at Rs. 14 crores for projects to be sponsored by the State Mining and Mineral Products Corporation.

CONSTITUTION

A Constitution was finally approved and adopted unanimously on November 17, 1955. It came into effect on January 26, 1957.

The Constitution declares the State of Jammu and Kashmir to be "an integral part of the Union of India." This is irrevocable. For another section lays down that no amendment seeking a change in this can be moved in the legislature.

Every person who is, or is deemed to be, a citizen of India shall be a permanent resident of the State, if on the 14th of May, 1954 he was a State subject of Class I or of Class II or having lawfully acquired immoveable property in the State, he has been ordinarily resident in the State for not less than 10 years prior to that date. Any person who, before the fourteenth day of May, 1954, was a State Subject of Class I or of Class II and who, having migrated after the first day of March, 1947, to the territory now included in Pakistan, returns to the State under a permit for re-settlement in the State or for permanent return issued by or under the authority or any law made by the State Legislature will on such return be a permanent resident of the State. The permanent residents will have all the rights guaranteed to them under the Constitution of India.

The Constitution lays down that the Executive of the State should consist of the Sadar-i-Riyasat who will be elected by a majority of the total membership of the Legislative Assembly. He will hold office during the pleasure of the President. The executive power of the State will be vested in him and shall be exercised by him. The Sadar-i-Riyasat will hold office for a term of five years.

The Legislature of the State will consist of the Sadar-i-Riyasat and two Houses, to be known respectively as the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council. The Legislative Assembly will consist of one hundred members chosen by direct election from territorial constituencies in the State.

The Kashmir Legislative Assembly on 21st Feb. 1961 passed a Bill amending the State Constitution to continue reservation of seats in the Legislative Assembly for the Scheduled Castes till 1970.

Twenty-five seats in the Legislative Assembly will remain vacant to be filled by representatives of people living in Pakistan-occupied areas of the State.

The official language of the State will be Urdu, but English will, unless the Legislature by law otherwise provides, continue to be used for all official purposes of the State.

The emoluments of the Sadar-i-Riyasat will be Rs. 5,500 a month.

The Municipal Councils and Town Area Committees now consist wholly of elected representatives. The powers of the Municipal Councils have been increased. Similar changes have been brought about in the case of Town Area Committees.

The State has been moving towards greater and greater integration with the rest of the country.

First the responsibility to administer departments like National High Ways, Telephones, Telegraphs, Income Tax, Broadcasting and Customs etc. was transferred to the Government of India. The Accounts and Audit Department of the State came under the Auditor General of India. The accounts of the revenue and expenditure were subject to the audit scrutiny of the Auditor General. Customs barrier and the permit system which regulated the entry and exit of people into and from the State were abolished.

As from May 1957, the State Government was put on par with other States in respect of financial matters including proportionate allocation of funds from the centre. Under this arrangement the State now receives its due share of financial allocation strictly in accordance with the principles that apply to other States. The Schemes and Projects under the Five-Year Plan are now vetted and approved by the Planning Commission and expenditure on these is sanctioned on the recommendation of the Commission. Every major project is examined by various Central agencies like the Central Water and Power Commission to ascertain their technical and economic feasibility.

Another step towards unity was the creation of a State cadre of IAS and IPS officers.

The National Sample Survey now operates in the State as it does elsewhere.

The Indian Election Commission now exercises jurisdiction over Kashmir.

The Judges of the Kashmir High Court have now the same rights and emoluments as Judges of other High Courts. This also means that they will now be appointed by the President of India.

Finally, the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court now extends to Kashmir as it extends to the rest of the country.

The laws of the Government of India however apply to Kashmir through orders made by the President of India. The residuary legislative powers thus rest with the State legislature.

PROJECTS OF THE THIRD FIVE YEAR PLAN

Idikki H.E. Project : The scheme which is estimated to cost Rs. 35·00 crores will have a power potential of 317,000 kW at 60 per cent load factor and will be the largest scheme to be launched in the State. It is proposed to commence work on the scheme during the Third Five-Year Plan, for which a provision of Rs. 300 lakhs has been made. The scheme is under investigation of the Central Water & Power Commission.

Kuttiadi H.E. Project : The project envisages power development from the Kuttiadi river in Malabar area of this State. The scheme has a power potential of 45,000 kW at 60 per cent load factor. The scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 450 lakhs and a provision of Rs. 300 lakhs has been made in the Third Plan.

It is proposed to inter-connect the Kerala and Madras power systems through a 220 kV transmission line during the Third Five Year Plan.

By the end of the 2nd Five Year the installed capacity of the hydro-electric stations in the State was expected to be 145,000 kW. The present demand is of the order of 112,500 kW. Though the installed generating capacity is in excess of this, the available plant capacity (which is limited by water availability) is only 100,000 kW, creating a shortage of power which will be partly made good by installing thermal plant. The energy output for the year 1960-61 was expected to be of the order of 600 million units.

Power for distribution in Malabar area of the State, is received from the Madras State Electricity Board. When the transmission lines under construction are completed, this part of the State will be linked with the hydro-electric grid now existing.

Apart from the major schemes, a number of medium, minor and lift irrigation schemes are also in progress.

A sum of Rs. 20 lakhs had been allocated in 1959-60 for the Malampuzha scheme. Total amount spent on this upto the end of March 1959 was Rs. 4·61 crores. Work on the dam and left bank canal had been completed. Work on right banks canal and Edathara Channel was nearing completion.

There are extensive lands located on a higher level from the rivers by the side of Chalakudy, Periyar, Muvattupuzha and Pampa. A series of schemes have been started by the Government whereby water is lifted from rivers by means of electric pumps and led on to the fields through channels. During the year 1960-61 a provision for Rs. 25 lakhs had been included in the budget towards lift irrigation scheme.

The State has a proposal to develop the Kuttanad area. The development Plan includes construction of a spillway at Thottapally 12 miles south of Alleppey, a bed regulator across Vembanad lake at Thanneermukkom.

The spillway at Thottapally which is a flood control work was started in 1951 and completed in 1956 at a cost of Rs. 59·61 lakhs.

The Thanneermukkom bed regulator estimated to cost Rs. 150 lakhs is a salt water exclusion work designed to prevent saline intrusion into the paddy lands of Kuttanad. Work was started on this project in 1958 and it is expected to be completed in 1963.

Antisea Erosion Works :—The State has a coastline of about 350 miles. The only permanent method of preventing sea erosion is by constructing sea walls and groynes. Works on these lines had been taken up during the 1st Five Year Plan and some of the works included in the 2nd Plan has been completed and others are in progress. During 1960 there was a provision of Rs. 30 lakhs in the budget for these works.

Shipyard : The work on the second shipyard at Cochin would start during the Third Plan period.

The shipyard will take eight to nine years for completion. The Kerala Government has already acquired the land required for the purpose.

LACCADIVE, MINICOY AND AMINDIVI ISLANDS

Administrator, C. K. Balakrishnan Nair ; Headquarters (temporary) : Kozhikode.
Secretary, P. Kelukutty Menon.

Area : 10 sq. miles ; Pop. : 24,108 (1961 census) (Provisional).

Island	Area	Population	Density
Minicoy	1·75 sq. miles	4,138	Not available
Kalpeni	1·02 sq. miles	2,613
Androth	1·67 sq. miles	4,183
Agathy	1·08 sq. miles	2,411
Kavarathy	1·35 sq. miles	2,828
Ameni	0·97 sq. mile	3,531
Kadamath	1·17 sq. miles	1,851
Chetlat	0·39 sq. mile	953
Kiltan	0·62 sq. mile	1,520
Bitra	0·05 sq. mile	80

With the reorganisation of States, in Nov. 1956 the Government of India took over the administration of the Laccadive, Minicoy and Amindivi group of Islands, a small sprawling group of coral islands in the Arabian Sea, lying between the latitudes of 8° and 12° north lat.

They now constitute a Union Territory under an Administrator.

Ten of the islands are inhabited out of a total number of 19. Minicoy, Kalpeni, Kavarathy, Agathy and Androth lie in the Laccadive group and Ameni, Kadamath, Kiltan, Chetlat and Bitra in the Amindivi group.

The islands lie from north to south, Minicoy being the southernmost and Chetlat the northernmost. They are within 20 to 114 miles away from one another except Ameni and Kadamath which are only six miles apart. They are 125 to 250 miles off the Kerala coast.

There is no scope for colonisation in the small satellite islands on any appreciable scale.

All the inhabitants of the Islands are Muslims. Originally Hindus, from Malabar* (except for Minicoites) the islanders appear to have been converted to Islam sometime in the sixth century. In appearance, mode of dress, manners and customs, the islanders, except those from Minicoy, are indistinguishable from the Moplahs of Malabar.* Their dialect is old Malayalam, with local variations peculiar to each island. The Minicoites are more akin to the inhabitants of the Maldives and their language, Mahl, is said to be allied to primitive Sinhalese. In appearance too they are strikingly different from the inhabitants of the Laccadives and the Amindivis. Their customs and manners are also different.

Mainly as a result of isolation, the islanders have remained backward economically, though in point of intelligence and initiative they are in no way inferior to the Moplahs of Malabar.* They have been declared 'Scheduled Tribes' but in reality are far more advanced than tribes elsewhere.

In the islands formerly administered from South Kanara, a Tahsildar exercises the powers of a Second Class Magistrate, a Police Officer, a Revenue Officer and a Port Officer in the Amindivis. He is also a Civil Judge without monetary limits operating under the customary laws of the islands and is assisted both in his civil and criminal work by Panchayats known as Mukthesars in Ameni and by Moopans in the other Islands.

In the Malabar group the present system is based on Amins appointed from among competent and influential islanders, assisted by clerks. Neither post is hereditary. In the place of Mukthesars or Moopans in the Amindivi group there are here Karanavans or assessors to assist the Amins in the administration of civil and criminal justice, which is governed by the Island Regulation of 1912. The Amin is usually selected from Karanavans.

Appeals now lie to the Secretary to the Administrator who is a I Class Magistrate and to the Administrator who has been invested with powers of a District Magistrate.

The Union Territory is now under the jurisdiction of the Kerala High Court.

There are two more Tahsildars now, one for Minicoy and the other for the Laccadive group with a view to improving the existing administrative machinery. The Deputy Tahsildar, Ameni, has now been designated as Tahsildar.

There is no land tax on any of the islands of the Laccadive group but only a tree tax on Government land.

The total revenue from these sources can never be a large amount, because the occupied area of the islands is only about 9 sq. miles. The present average annual income from this source is only about Rs. 20,000.

There is no tax of any kind in the Amindivi group of islands except from two minor leases of Government Pandaram lands and also from court fees, search fee, copying fees, magisterial and customary fines.

The Minicoy Island, which deserves separate mention, pays a lease amount on Pandaram lands, a poll tax of 25 nP. per unmarried woman, 37 nP. per unmarried man, and 75 nP. per married couple, and two other lease amounts for garden crops and village sites. The poll tax is subject to exceptions.

To set right the existing system of land ownership and collection of taxes it was proposed to conduct a survey of all islands for changing the basis of ownership from one of trees to one of land. The survey is now going on island by island.

ECONOMY

The islanders are given rice in exchange for coir at depots on monopoly basis at the exchange rates fixed by Government from time to time by reference to market rates for coir and rice on the mainland. Government have coir depots in all the islands except Minicoy which is not subject to this monopoly. Islanders are prohibited from selling coir to the public. The object is to ensure the islanders, whose main occupation is coir twisting, a regular supply of rice in exchange for coir, thereby minimising the chances of middlemen interfering in the coir trade. The scheme is worked on no-profit-no-loss basis.

The only agriculture on the island is coconut cultivation but no scientific approach to the question was ever made before. Cultivation of coconuts is now done scientifically with departmental advice and direction.

Fisheries development has been taken on a fairly big scale. On Minicoy, the bonito or 'mas' fishing forms an important and valuable industry.

The main health problems are the eradication of leprosy and filariasis.

Leprosy is on the increase in two islands, Minicoy and Androth. A leper colony started in 1952 at Androth with the aid of a local committee has been taken over by the Government.

In Minicoy too there is a leper colony. At Kadamath another colony was started on Sept. 22, 1960.

In the Laccadive group, each island has a Government dispensary, with a Civil Assistant Surgeon, a pharmacist and a maternity assistant. The dispensary at Minicoy has been converted into a hospital in 1960.

In the Amindivi group there is a Government dispensary at Ameni in the charge of a Civil Assistant Surgeon which caters for the medical needs of all the five islands. Another dispensary was opened in this group at Kiltan early in 1958.

Nine Health Inspectors have been appointed to combat the spread of filariasis and other dire diseases.

There are nine primary schools, one in each island except Bitra where free midday meals and books and slates are given to the students. Four primary schools have now been upgraded into upper primary schools and one as a high school. There are also two feeder schools in one island (Androth).

Girls' schools have already been started in Agathy, Androth, Ameni and Kalpeni islands.

Lack of proper communication is however the biggest single handicap of the administration. The normal communication to the islands is by means of island sailing boats during the months of October to May when the islanders buy all their requirements from the mainland and sell their produce especially copra, coconuts, cadjan leaves, vinegar, palm gur, mass fish and coir in the mainland markets. For the rest of the year the islands are practically cut off from any contact with the mainland. In Minicoy there is a wireless station. In other islands there were not even postal facilities. Wireless stations have now been opened at Kavarathy, Androth and Ameni islands also. Inter-island communication is also rare because the islanders have more contact with the mainland than among themselves.

A steamer service has been introduced by chartering a power vessel for service to the islands during fair season. A small power launch has also been purchased by the Administration for inter-island communication of touring officials.

Seasonal branch post offices have now been established in seven of the islands, which will work only during the fair season.

SECOND FIVE-YEAR PLAN

As approved by the Planning Commission, the broad proposals for improvement of these islands under a Second Five-Year Plan, that is, for the three and a half years, were as below :

	Rs.
Agriculture and Community Development including development of Fisheries ..	19·69	lakhs
Transport and Communications	19·75	,,
Industries	4·11	,,
Education	12·40	,,
Publicity	0·92	,,
Public Health	15·40	,,
C.P.W.D.	0·58	,,
Total	73·85	,,

* Kerala.

Under agriculture which on the islands consists mainly of coconut cultivation the plan target of 50 to 60 coconuts per tree per year has been nearly achieved.

Fisheries improvement, which is a major development scheme for the islands, consists of mechanised fishing through pablo boats in off-shore waters, new types of fishing gear, expansion of 'mas' fishing, extraction of shark liver oil and research.

The most important item in reconstruction will however be a monthly steamer service. A vessel will be purchased soon.

A new lighthouse will be opened in Androth and the existing lighthouse at Kiltan will be improved.

Under industry, coir twisting is being developed through training-cum-production centres.

To improve sanitation safe drinking water will be introduced through a scheme of subsidised draw wells. Water seal squatting slabs will be distributed to the islanders practically free. A lady doctor has been appointed. The training of 18 Dais has been completed as envisaged in the Second Five Year Plan. One of the island dispensaries has been converted into a hospital. Two maternity centres one at Kadamath and the other at Chetlat, were opened during 1959-60.

The scheme for the electrification of Minicoy island has been taken up for execution. The Planning Commission has agreed to an increase in outlay on this scheme from Re. one lakh to Rs. 1·992 lakhs.

It is also proposed to move the headquarters of the Administrator to the islands after a regular steamer service is established and wireless stations opened in all the islands. A land revenue system was to be organized by the end of the Plan period. A regular administrative machinery will gradually come into existence.

An Advisory Council has been constituted by the Ministry of Home Affairs with five islanders to advise the Administrator.

One member is nominated to the Lok Sabha from the islands.

Huge deposits of Iron-ore occur in Durg and Bastar districts. In the Bastar district the deposit is confined to the Dhalli-Rajhara range of hills with a reserve of 114 million tons and is linked to Bhilai by a branch line for supplying the steel plant there. The Balladilla reserves here have been estimated at 610 million tons of high grade ore. There are six deposits at Ronghat also with a reserve of 824·8 million tons.

There are four coal bearing areas namely North Chhattisgarh Basin, South Chhattisgarh Basin, North Satpura Basin and South Satpura Basin. Besides, there are five principal coal-fields in the Rewa Division. The total reserves in this State down to a depth of 1,000 ft. is estimated at 160,373 million tons.

ELECTRIC POWER

The total Second Five Year Plan provision for the State on electricity schemes was Rs. 2,804·81 lakhs.

The following are some of the major works that were taken up in the Second Plan:

Bhilai Diesel Station: To meet the power requirements of the Bhilai Steel Factory during construction stage, a 6,000 kW diesel station was established and was commissioned in 1957.

Raipur Thermal Station: To meet the shortage of power demands of the Raipur, Bilaspur and Durg area, the capacity of the Raipur Thermal Station was augmented by 4,200 kW and the extension was commissioned in 1957.

Korba Thermal Station Scheme: To meet the power demands of Bhilai Steel Project, the National Coal Development Corporation and other industries, a 90,000 kW thermal power station was planned at Korba in the Bilaspur District near the Korba coal fields. The station and the associated transmission lines were completed and two turbines of 60,000 kW capacity were commissioned in 1958-59 and the third set of 30,000 kW was commissioned in 1960. Power to the Bhilai Steel Factory is transmitted in a 132 KV double circuit transmission line, feeding Bilaspur enroute. The mining areas at Jharandalli and Deorjhal of the Bhilai Steel Factory are also fed from this system. Further extension by 200 kW of the Korba Station is also proposed during the Third Plan to meet increased demands of the Bhilai Steel Project and Collieries as also other industries in the area.

To facilitate development of the Chirimiri coal field area the work on the Korba-Chirimiri 132 kV transmission line has been started.

Itarsi Thermal Station: The work on the 3,000 kW thermal station at Itarsi which was commenced during the 1st Plan was completed during the Second Plan and the station commissioned in March 1957.

Bhopal Thermal Station: At Bhopal one more 2,500 kW generating unit has been added during the Second Plan period. Another unit of the same capacity was ready for commissioning in December, 1960. The Bhopal and Itarsi Thermal stations have been interconnected by a 33 KV transmission line to meet the increased demand of power at Bhopal.

Satna Thermal Station: The work on the Satna Thermal Station of 1,850 kW and the associated transmission lines which was commenced during the 1st Plan period was completed and the station was commissioned in 1958. This station now feeds the Satna-Rewa-Maihar areas.

Birsinghpur (Amarkantak) Power System: As a result of the reorganisation of the States the Board proposed to establish a 60 mW power station instead of the three isolated sanctioned stations of (a) 20 mW Thermal Station at Burhar in Vindhya Pradesh, (b) 10 mW extension at Satna Thermal Station, (c) 20 mW Thermal Station at Katni in Mahakoshal. The work is in progress.

Chandni System: The increasing demand of the Nepa Mill has necessitated further augmentation of the Chandni Power Station by 10 mW. The work on the extension scheme has been taken in hand.

The interconnection of Indore and Chandni Power Stations by a 132 KV transmission line has been started.

Chambal Hydel Project: Power to the extent of 40 mW will now be available from the Gandhi Sagar Power Station inaugurated on 19-11-1960 and another 45 mW from the Ranapratap Sagar Power Station is expected to become available during the Third Plan period for being utilised in the Madhya Bharat and Bhopal regions of the State.

In all, 24 diesel stations have been put up so far in the Second Plan period for supply of power to isolated places in the state.

Rural Electrification: About Rs. 4 crores had been provided in the Second Plan for this purpose. The benefit of electricity has been extended to 492 places so far; out of these 398 are villages with population less than 10,000.

The progress of development of electricity in the State is as indicated below:—

CO-OPERATION

LAND TENURE

The Madhya Pradesh Land Revenue Code, 1959 came into force on 2nd October 1959, to provide a single uniform legislation for the whole State. The salient features of the Code are described below.

Since the abolition of the rights of intermediaries, land has been directly held from the State Government by cultivators who will now be known as Bhumiswamis. They will be the real owners of the land they hold.

The Bhumiswamis will be able to mortgage their land both by simple or usufructuary mortgage. In respect of unirrigated land, no mortgage shall be valid unless at least 10 acres of land is left with the Bhumiswamis free from any encumbrance or charge.

A Bhumiswami shall be owner of all trees standing in his holding subject to certain safeguards provided only in public interest. Lands which are not fit for permanent cultivation or over which it is not desirable to create permanent rights or over which buildings are to be erected will be given on leases on such terms and conditions as may be justified in each case.

OCCUPANCY TENANTS

All persons who hold land from Bhoomiswamis shall now be called occupancy tenants. The Bhumiswamis will have the right to resume land from their occupancy tenants for their personal cultivation provided that the total area after such resumption is within the ceiling of 25 acres of unirrigated land, subject to the condition that the occupancy tenant must be left with at least ten acres of unirrigated land. After the Bhumiswamis have exercised right of resumption within the specified period, the occupancy tenants will be conferred Bhumiswami rights on their paying 15 times the land revenue in five equal annual instalments. If after resumption the Bhumiswami fails to cultivate personally land resumed from the occupancy tenant, the latter shall be entitled to restoration of that land.

The maximum rent payable by an occupancy tenant shall not exceed four times the land revenue in the case of irrigated land; three times the land revenue in the case of lands under Bandhs and twice the land revenue in other cases.

Sub-letting of land: No subletting or leasing of land shall now be permitted except in very emergent cases once in three years or by certain classes of persons.

The rights of residents of a village in the unoccupied land and its produce are governed by entries in the village Wajibul-arz at present.

Tanks over which villagers exercised rights of irrigation or any kind of nistar on the day of abolition of the rights of intermediaries, will now vest in the State Government for purposes of nistar of the residents of the village on compensation being paid to the ex-proprietors.

Village Management: Village management is to be entrusted to elected Patels for the time being and ultimately to elected Gram Panchayats.

Land Improvement: The Code provides for planting of fruit bearing trees, with the previous permission of Revenue Officers on unoccupied land of Government. It also provides for "Shramdan" for maintaining works of public utility and for laying down standards of efficient cultivation and management to be followed by certain cultivators in the interest of grow more food.

Zamindari and Jagirdari abolition: Laws for abolition of Zamindari and Jagirdari (Madhya Bharat Zamindari Abolition Act, Samvat 2008, and Madhya Bharat Jagirdari Abolition Act, Samvat 2008) have been enacted and enforced. Compensation payment to zamindars and jagirdars already commenced.

Provision of compensation: Eight times the net income for zamindars and seven times the net income for jagirdars.

In the former Vindhya Pradesh region 1/3 area was under the Jagirdari system. The V.P. Abolition of Jagirs and Land Reforms Act, 1952 was passed and the Jagir rights were abolished by 30-6-1954. According to this Act, rights of 21,722 jagirdars were abolished and the State revenue increased by Rs. 40,44,000.

The dispossessed jagirdars have challenged the Abolition of Jagirs and Land Reforms Act before the Supreme Court and meanwhile receive interim compensation.

In about ⅓th of former State of Bhopal there were Jagirdars and their rights were abolished by the Bhopal Abolition of Jagirs and Land Reforms Act, 1953.

The following table gives an idea of the progress in the payment of compensation as at the end of October 1960:

SECOND FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The Second Five-Year Plan of the State involved a financial outlay of Rs. 19,090 lakhs. The First Five-Year Plan of the four units envisaged a total outlay of only Rs. 6,732 lakhs. The Second Plan, in contrast, was much bigger in size as well as in scope. The outlay on various sectors of development was as follows :—

Head of development	Total (in lakhs of Rs.)
1. Agriculture & Community Development	5,048
2. Irrigation & Power	6,479
3. Industry & Mining	1,035
4. Transport & Communications ..	1,290
5. Education	2,063
6. Health	1,446
7. Housing	450
8. Other Social Services	938
9. Miscellaneous	341

Broadly speaking, 74·70 per cent of the total outlay represents real investment which would lay the foundations of the State's growing prosperity, both in industrial as well as in agricultural fields. The remaining outlay of 25·30 per cent will be spent on social services including education, health, housing etc. Besides, there are the Central Government Projects such as the Rs. 131-crore Steel Plant at Bhilai, opening of the Korba Coal Mines with an approximate cost of Rs. 21 crores and the establishment of a Heavy Electrical Equipment Plant at Bhopal.

Agriculture : Continued emphasis had been given to agriculture during the first two Plans, resulting in an additional production of more than 8 lakh tons and directly benefiting an area of nearly 170 lakh acres. During the Second Plan period the production of food grains was expected to be raised from 76 lakh tons to 86 lakh tons and there was to be an additional production of 12,250 tons of Gur, 12,500 bales of cotton and 5,000 tons of oilseeds. In all 1·76 lakh tons of fertilisers, 20 lakh tons of compost and 2·23 lakh maunds of green manure seeds would have been distributed. During the same period consolidation of holdings was to be undertaken in 36 lakh acres, tractor ploughing in about 5 lakh acres and contour bunding in 0·73 lakh acres. The total irrigation potential created during the two plans under minor irrigation will be 3·25 lakh acres. 700 families of landless persons will have been settled in 10,000 acres during the period. In the field of animal husbandry, there were to be more than 300 veterinary hospitals and 544 outlying dispensaries in the State by the end of the Second Plan.

Irrigation & Power : 38·17 per cent of the total outlay was provided in the Plan for irrigation and power plans. Irrigation projects of the State comprise multi-purpose projects, major and medium projects, minor irrigation projects, tube-wells and flood protection works. These include the Chambal Hydel & Irrigation Project, remodelling of Mahanadi Canal in Raipur district, Bila River Project in Sagar, Sukta River Project in Nimar, Pampavati Tank Project in Jaora District, Choral River Project in Indore District, Chillar River Project in Shajapur District, Ravigawan Canal Project in Panna and the Nagod Canal in Satna District.

The Chambal project alone will irrigate about seven lakh acres of land in M.P. and generate 2,10,000 kW. of power. The Korba Thermal Scheme will generate 90,000 kW of power.

By the end of the Second Plan the total irrigation potential of the State was expected to increase by 4·54 lakh acres and the installed capacity of power was to be raised from 78 M.W. to 147 M.W. 136 towns and 396 villages were to be electrified.

The total mileage of surfaced and unsurfaced roads will increase to 18,886 and mileage under asphalted roads to 2,190 by the end of the Second Plan.

In the field of education, enrolment in the primary schools was expected to reach 17 lakh students and the total number of primary schools was to increase to 31,000. All villages having population of 500 or even less will have a primary school.

Sixty-eight towns will have water works by the end of the Second Plan. There will be 210 primary health centres and 630 subsidiary health centres. The total number of general and maternity beds in the State will be raised to 12,000 by 1960-61.

By the end of the Second Plan 1,33,000 scholarships will have been awarded to middle school students. 1,750 scholarships to high school students and 1,000 stipends to normal school students of Scheduled Tribes. The scheme of mid-day meals will benefit 33,000 students of Scheduled Tribes.

Industry & Mining : During the Second Plan period a spinning mill of 12,500 spindles was expected to be started which will have a production capacity of 10,000 bales per year, a vegetable oil and solvent extraction Plant and a distillery for power and industrial alcohol was started. Preliminary works were expected to be completed on these schemes by the end of the Plan. These units will go into production within the first two years of the Third Plan. During the Third Plan period the manufacture of organic chemicals based on industrial alcohol will be undertaken and the power alcohol plant will be further expanded. Nearly 800 industrial co-operatives would be opened to help small scale industries.

All these besides the three major industrial undertakings, viz. the Bhilai Steel Plant, the Heavy Electrical Equipment Plant and the exploitation of the Korba Mines, as also the harnessing of the rich deposits of a variety of mineral resources will make Madhya Pradesh an important industrial area.

Paper Mill: The Rs. 14-crore paper mill being set up in the private sector with foreign financial and technical assistance at Amlai, near Shahdol in Madhya Pradesh, is expected to go into production by the middle of 1963.

Spread over an area of 1,200 acres, the mill will produce 150 tons of paper per day.

The U.S. Government, has granted a loan of 18·5 million dollars (about Rs. 9 crores) for the mill which is being set up by the Orient Paper Mills, Calcutta.

ELECTRIC POWER

Total installed capacity: 4,32,268 kW (July 1960).

Total production: 1,903 million units (July 1960).

Madras has built up an electricity grid extending to almost all the districts and rural areas. In fact, Madras leads the rest of India in rural electrification especially for agricultural purposes. In 1960 alone 1,400 villages were connected with electricity bringing the total number of electrified villages to 10,000. Among the new connections reported for 1960 were 19,000 for agricultural purposes, 1,568 for industrial purposes, 42,961 domestic and 3,028 street lights.

Power Grid: The grid comprises seven hydro-electric Power Houses at Pykara, Moyar, Mettur, Papanasam, Periyar, Kundah and two Thermal Power Houses at Madras and Madurai with the total installed capacity of 5,01,700 kW, 14,713 miles of high tension transmission lines of voltages varying from 11,000 to 1,10,100, 20,975 miles of low tension distribution lines and 60 EHT and 65 HT sub-station and 9,000 distribution stations.

In 1960-61, two more hydro sets of the Kundah Hydel project began to spin and raised the installed capacity of the State power grid from 3,21,500 kW to 5,01,700 kW. The power demand which stood at 3,90,250 kW in 1959 rose to 4,90,250 in 1960. The total power output of the system registered 25 per cent increase from 1,431·2 million units in 1958 to 1,787·7 million units in 1959. There was no power cut in 1960 as seasonal conditions were favourable.

The total capital investment to the end of 1960 is Rs. 123 crores and the gross revenue earned during 1959 was Rs. 15·43 crores.

The Mettur Dam is 176 feet high and can impound a total of 93,500 m.c. ft. of water mainly for irrigation purposes. Part of this water is utilised for the generation of hydro-electric power. Power is generated at 11,000 volts, 50 cycles, 3 phase and stepped upto 110,000 volts for transmission to various load centres.

At Erode the Mettur System is linked with the Pykara network. Power is transmitted to Singarapet in the north and Erode in the south (a total of 100 miles) taking off from the power station.

Second Five Year Plan: The power schemes for the Madras State included in the Second Five Year Plan are estimated to cost Rs. 53·25 crores. This period was to be confined to the construction of 3 new power plants, two at Kundah and one at Periyar and extensions to the existing thermal station at Madras. With the completion of these schemes, the installed capacity will be more than doubled. It was also proposed to erect about 8,200 miles of Extra High Tension and 8,000 miles of Low Tension lines during the period to extend supply to about 1,000 villages and 10,000 pumpsets per annum.

Two thousand five hundred villages were to be electrified in the State during the Second Plan. A sum of Rs. 14·88 crores had been set apart for this purpose.

Periyar Hydro-Electric Scheme: The Periyar Hydro-Electric Scheme, estimated to cost Rs. 10·09 crores will add 105,000 kW of installed capacity on completion of the scheme. The first unit of 35,000 kW. about 80 miles from Madura at the foot of Periyar Hills on Kerala border, was commissioned on October 12, 1958.

Madras Plant Extensions: Erection of the two Nos. 150,000 lbs./hr. boilers and one No. 30,000 kW turbo-set was completed and the set commissioned on April 26, 1958.

Kundah Hydro-Electric Scheme: Works in respect of Kundah Hydro Electric Scheme, the sixth and the biggest Hydro Electric Scheme so far undertaken by the Madras Government were in progress. The scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 35·44 crores. The first power house with a 40,000 kW. capacity was commissioned on March 25, 1960. The second power house capable of generating 70,000 kW. was commissioned on 18th Jan., 1961.

This scheme gets aid under the Colombo Plan from the Canadian Government to the tune of 25 million dollars by way of machinery and materials.

Work on the Rs. 32 crore Parambikulam-Aliyar Project is in full swing. (March 1960.) This project will have seven reservoirs five of which will be on the Anamallai Hills and two in the plains interconnected by 12½ miles of tunnels. The scheme will be commissioned in stages as and when the reservoirs and canals are completed. The project will irrigate 250,000 acres of the District. The estimated value of grains produced annually will be Rs. 5·34 crores. Electric power to the tune of 125 mW will also be developed utilising two drops in the canal systems.

A Rs. 10 crore rayon factory manufacturing rayon yarn, staple fibre, sulphuric acid and carbon disulphide, situated about 28 miles from Coimbatore along the Bhavani river, was expected to go into production by the end of 1960. It is an Indo-Italian venture, the machinery worth about six crores of rupees being supplied by Italian industrialists on a deferred payment system.

COIMBATORE DISTRICT

Dt. Hqrs.: Coimbatore.

The Coimbatore District, next in importance to the City of Madras, has an area covering 6,024 square miles with a population of 3,154,296. It is one of the major districts in Tamil Nad. The Anamallais (elephant hills) which form part of the District in the south have large coffee and tea plantations covering 40,000 acres and employing 40,000 workers whose annual wage bill is nearly Rs. 3 crores. Some 35 million lbs. of tea and 1,000 tons of coffee are produced. There are also cardamom and cinchona plantations. The finest teak in India is produced on these hills.

After agreement with Kerala in sharing the waters of the west-flowing Parambikulam and Sholayar rivers, work on the Rs. 32-crore multi-purpose Parambikulam-Aliyar Project has been commenced. This project envisages the construction of 7 reservoirs—5 in the Anamallais, 2 in the plains and 12½ miles interconnecting tunnels. A special feature of the project is that all canals and distributaries will be concrete lined. The project will irrigate 250,000 acres and produce 100,000 kW. power.

Coimbatore, the District Headquarters, is the largest industrial city in Madras State. The district has 71 textile mills, 57 of which are spinning mills and the rest weaving mills. The spinning mills have a spindlage of 1,743,984 and weaving mills 3,171 looms. All the mills employ approximately 55,000 workers of whom 12,000 are women. The finishing part will be done at Tiruchirapalli and Jaipur by cottage industry groups.
